LITERARY SOCIETIES

Reliance

Our business session was devoted wholly to a discussion of plans for our open session. A short but well delivered program followed. Helpful talks were given by our critic, Miss Canfield and several other visitors. In closing we found that, in spite of a great change in the membership, the Reliance Literary Society still possessed the ability to raise the roof when it yelled.

Nonpareil

The Nonpareil Literary Society held their usual meeting in room 7. Roll was called and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary. Then the following program was rendered:

Society Song, Members; recitation, Cora Black; impromptu, Elizabeth Poitrus; vocal duet, Rebecca Carpenter, Laura Wauu; jokes, Anna Lee Thomas; song, Lillian Holst, Lucy Eaton; pen picture, Uintah Kirk; three-minute talk, Hilda Opein.

Songs and yells were given with "Nonpareil pep." We had many welcome visitors and interesting, helpful talks were given by Mr. Swoboda, Mrs. Swoboda, Miss Stewartson, Miss Ahrens, Miss Tyrrell, Mrs. Peratrovich and Mrs. Canfield. The Society then adjourned to meet next Friday.

Excelsior

The Excelsior Literary Society held a most interesting meeting with its new officers on Friday evening. The following were chosen to head the society: President, Dewey Sampson; vice-president, Daniel Orton; secretary, Cruz McDaniels; sergeant-at-arms, Frank Corbett; reporter, Lawrence Mercurief; yell leader, Roy Corville. At the meeting a voluntary program was rendered, to which the members responded with much interest and enthusiasm. At the close of the program, our advisor, Miss McDowell, gave an interesting talk.

Much interest was taken by our official visitors. We thank Miss Judd and Mr. Beebe.

For the coming Friday the Excelsiors have planned to initiate new members. You are all welcome to attend if you intend to be an Excelsior.

Winona

Each Winona answered to roll call with the year of her birth. Some dated back to ages B.C. and a few are yet to come. After the color song Carrie Anderson gave some mandolin music, Lucy Sexton read a very amusing prophecy, Annabel Woods and Katie Cleveland sang, Rose Gray presented some well-selected jokes and riddles, Josephine Corbett read several pen-pictures, the one of "Old Sampson" being hardest to guess.

Carrie Anderson, Katie Cleveland and Lucy Sexton sang; Anna Holst and Edna Hill each told of visits to American scenery; Virginia Brickell recited and a very amateurish Jazz-Band rendered a Mother Goose song. The cheer leader then took charge and the girls sang ten of their society songs in rapid succession.

Mrs. James, a visitor, claimed to be "spacheless," but introduced Mr. Turner, who, she said, would make a good speech, and he did. The girls enjoyed his talk about his school days very much.

The Reliance brothers surprised us with a cheer for "Winona" beneath our windows. We returned the favor and adjourned to our usual home song—"Wi-no-no-no-na!"

SENIOR NOTES

Two dozen and one are in the class now! Aren't we proud?

Naomi Crawford is the only new student to make senior this year. We are glad to welcome her.

A senior boy reciting his memory work on the "Seven Ages" gave his audience quite a shock by saying: "First the infant, full of strange oath!"

The senior girls enjoy the "make-believe" course dinners, where the service is performed with empty dishes. Good practice, but my! it makes them hungry.

Miss McDowell took the class on a scientific observation trip over the campus last week. According to one test plants in general are in a healthy condition.

The beautiful elm which has been shading the corner of the club building had to be felled a few days ago and we found it an interesting specimen for botany study.

Our latest member to report for duty, George Thomas, wears a worried look. They say he's afraid he'll have to give up his title, "Java King," because of the new demerit ruling.

The Senior election for the first semester occurred on Friday morning. There were some very close victories and the result was: President, Dewey Sampson; vice president, Frances Thorpe; secretary, Rose Gray; treasurer, Wallace Morgan; sergeant, Wilfred Evans; reporter, Charles Ell; cheer leader, Albert Spearson.

WEDDED

At noon on Wednesday in the presence of relatives and a few friends, Miss Ruth Brewer and Ellwood Denny were married at the bride's home at Chemawa. Both Mr. and Mrs. Denny are Oregon Agricultural college people, Mrs. Denny having graduated with the class of 1920. Mr. Denny's home is in Unity, Baker county, and the young couple left soon after the wedding for that place, where they will spend a few days. They will make their home on the Denny farm near Caldwell, Ida.

Mrs. Denny is the daughter of Mrs. K. L. Brewer of Chemawa. She is a member of Omicron Nu, home economics honor sorority at the college, and held other responsible positions while a student there.

Mrs. E. R. Mason, sister of the bride, was her attendant and Mr. Mason attended Mr. Denny.
