price—to exert themselves.

There are all sorts of chances for the boy or girl who has backbone, who is self-reliant, and determined to make something of himself or herself. But if you are a weakling, if you have no grit, if there is no lime in your backbone, if you have no desire to be somebody, to stand for something in the world, you will take the lazy person's chance—slide along the line of least resistance—and very soon you will be with the rest of the nobodies, the floaters with neither life nor ambition.

Students, develop this staying power. Stick, hang on, and acquire faith in your own ability and the glorious opportunity of every day's work.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS

The dairy force are building a new bull pen.

The engineers are painting at the power plant and improving the appearance of things greatly.

The laundry, bakery, and trash house came in for special attention by the painters recently.

The truck crew is busy hauling dirt to make a fill around the new Senior Domestic Science building.

The masons took a couple of days off recently and cleaned the drainage ditch from the road on the north of the school reserve to the railroad fill near the power house.

The electricians are wiring the new shops for lighting. The mains are carried directly over the top of the building and the feed wires come in from a pole at west of the shops.

Recently the writer had occasion to stop at "Pigville." It was lunch time and the inhabitants were out in force. Among those present was a family of eight, exclusive of the mother, and a fine lot of youngsters they were. Each industriously working to make a hog of himself, and from indications they were on the road to success. The whole appearance of pens and population shows excellent care on the part of Mr. Gibson and his force.

DOMESTIC ART NOTES

"As you sew, so shall ye rip."

This is a very busy week, but we'll let you know in a few lines what we are doing.

First, if you want to see some nice looking construction dresses, ask the Junior girls.

There are tunics, slip-over, sport and every other kind of styles of dresses, made from serge, voile, gingham and even silk. Some of the styles have just come across the Atlantic.

Last Wednesday we had a very interesting lesson on color value, which ought to help us in the near future in selecting colors that will harmonize with our type and build.

A charming nursery is made from the small room adjoining the prevocational and vocational sewing rooms. It is beautifully decorated with children's dresses and articles that would no doubt lavish baby Moses if he were here.

The busi-bees,
JUNIORS.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE NOTES

Good morning, friends!

Well, another week has gone by and we are busy as ever. Last Saturday six of our class made biscuits for tea at the "Wigwam." We hear they were greatly enjoyed.

The lunches for high school students are being made this week by Aleatha Onley, Alice Flexible and Hazel Boyd.

We had the menu for the Nonpareil party on hand and it was a good one. The cakes were made by our department. We had been practicing all week so of course we were successful.

Adieu till next week,
THE SOPHIES.

LOCAL

During the past week or two there has been much activity in the "great outdoors" at Chemawa. In our fields teams have been plowing early and late, and the tractor has been kept busy, too. It is planting time for nearly everything in field and garden—and then there is the flower garden, which is expected to prove a thing of beauty if not a joy forever.

A letter just received from Mr. Loos, formerly bandmaster at Chemawa, states that all is lovely with himself and wife. They own and conduct a hotel in LaPorte, Indiana, and report fine success financially. Mr. Loos has been very much in demand as a band instructor in LaPorte and has under him two boys' bands and a girls' band, altogether 105 students.

The Freshmen held a meeting in the auditorium on Tuesday, March 10. The meeting was held mainly for election of new officers. The officers elected are as follows: President, Eldred George; vice-president, William Brendible; secretary, Merceline Farlow; treasurers, Ida Audette and Paul Ketah; sergeant-at-arms, Samuel Delorm; cheer leader, Gus Brunoe; song leader, Zelma Johnson; reporter, Robert Hall. A short business discussion followed, and then we adjourned.
