

THE TASTE WAS WRONG

Many people, young and old, have a habit of blundering along and not understanding the "what" or "why" of that which they have undertaken, even though it may be a matter of consequence. Sometimes the blunderer lands on his feet and no great harm is done; sometimes the results are serious, if not tragic.

A case in point came to light the other day and is localized here at Chemawa. One of our lady employes who runs her own home told her girl to prepare some parsnips and cook them for the evening meal. The instructions given seemed ample and no more thought was given the matter until the family gathered around the table for repast a few hours later. The lady of the house tried the parsnips; they seemed vastly "out of tune" in the matter of taste. The girl was called and questioned.

Finally the lady of the house told the girl to show her just where she had gotten the "parsnips." Out to the woodshed they repaired. It turned out that the girl had prepared and cooked some old dahlia bulbs that had been lying in the shed. The girl, while preparing the "vegetables," had eaten some raw. We now feel assured that eating dahlias is not necessarily fatal, but the family maintain that they will never become a favorite dish in that household.

SENIOR NOTES

Clifford McLeod gave an interesting review of the Tacna-Arica controversy.

The Senior boys are enjoying analyzing botany specimens under their teacher, Mr. Fisher.

Our Weather Prophet says the morning fogs are only a fake to our beautiful days of sunshine.

The Seniors have twenty specimens of flowers analyzed which shows that we are on our way to "Victory."

Are we busy? We'll say! We have some new geometry sharks, new problems and new leaves to start on.

Willard J. Williams is temporary boss of the mason crew. He got his job through the absence of Mr. Carrow.

"Freak" DePoe was sick in the hospital last week. We certainly missed his humorous ways in the classroom.

This is the last month of school and you will find all the Seniors busy with their lessons. It's just like the best part of their lives now.

Last Thursday afternoon the Senior Boys quartette helped entertain the D. A. R.'s from Oregon City in the Auditorium. The boys received many compliments.

Last week Percy Woodcock had the honor of asking current event questions at the general assembly. He asked some good ones as, "Why are the fat men of London worried?"

We are trying to keep up with the times. We have finished the "Tale of Two Cities," and started on Carlyles' "Essay on Burns," which we hope to finish before school is out.

The baseball championship between classes was started by the Seniors and Juniors last Sunday afternoon; with the omission of R. DePoe, a good player who is sick, our team played good ball for "Scrubs."

DOMESTIC ART NOTES

You know what? The Seniors have laid aside their caps and aprons and are now back at their construction dresses. Paris isn't the only place where styles are originated, for we have some very attractive dresses being made by the Senior girls.

Last Thursday afternoon a large number of visitors passed through our department. They seemed very much pleased at the display that was put up in our exhibit room. Many compliments were awarded to our dear little teacher, Miss Vesper. We also had the privilege of serving tea to these visitors.

An Easter frock was ordered to be made here and you can bet it was made very attractive, for we each had our turn on it to show our skill. Ask Christobel Iliff if this is not so.

Last but not least: Our graduation dresses are to be under construction soon and we all look forward to the time when we will be wearing them. Wait till you see us step out in them.

Look for more news next week.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE NOTES

We Juniors are very busy today preparing cake and sandwiches for a Ladies' Club from Oregon City. There will be about a hundred guests at the tea.

We are very thankful to the painters, for we have our diningroom floor painted yellow, which brightens the room and makes it very attractive. They are also painting the outside of our department.

In order to keep up with the painters we are making some new curtains for our dining-room.

One of our "bright" Juniors had the misfortune to mistake the linen table napkins for curtains and starched them stiff.

Good-bye,
THE JUNIORS.
