Which is the worst to be—useless, helpless, or worthless?

Who will win the song, poem and yell cakes next Friday, Chemawa's 47th birthday?

James Greely, a Chemawa ex-student, was recently married at Warm Springs to Merl Scott.

Mr. Sorensen and detail have finished work on boiler number two and it is now ready for use.

Mr. Lipps, too well known to be introduced to The Chemawa American readers, arrived Sunday.

The "movie" on Iron and Steel shown on last Thursday was greatly enjoyed by the students.

Mr. Downie is giving beautiful framed pictures each week for the two best kept rooms in McNary Hall.

Freda Strom is attending school in Tahola, Wash. Freda was a member of the present Sophomore class at Chemawa.

The Juniors rejoice to learn that their classmate, Elias Hoskin, is doing well in the Watson High School in Bellingham, Wash.

With Fred Rickard and Clifford Meachem "mumping" the Sophomore class was not able to give all of their program on Sunday evening.

Gideon B. Grub is getting in trim for future cross-country races. Henry Bowker, John Frenier and George Nicholson are also limbering up.

A large number of Chemawa's neighbors, as well as almost all the employes, heard Rev. Henry Roe Cloud deliver his splendid address on Sunday evening.

If you care to hear of a case of rapid transit, interview Mr. Bent regarding an auto trip which he recently made to Eugene and return. He was surely "going some."

It does seem that such little things as mumps should have been looked after long ago by such men as Charley Moon, Percy Woodcock, Archie Greycloud and John Edelman.

We wish it were within our power to do justice in a brief write-up to the wonderful achievements of Rev. Henry Roe Cloud who was with us last Sunday and who was the principal speaker during our chapel exercises. We know of nothing more interesting than the "life story" of Mr. Roe Cloud as he, himself, related it to us. He is a man of true vision and a vital force among men. He is an inspiration for the youth of the land regardless of race or color. He is a living example of what purpose and energy may achieve. He stands on the heights and is honored by all able and intelligent people. He seems to appear to us as the "Abraham Lincoln" of his people. Would there were more like him.

Louis Walks writes that he is now successfully filling an assistant engineer's position at Crow Agency.

Many students and employes enjoyed President Coolidge's speech on the life of Washington in the auditorium Tuesday morning through the courtesy of Mr. Bewely who installed his own radio for that purpose.

A week ago Mrs. Ruth Denny and children arrived here from Tacoma, Wash., to spend a few days with relatives and to meet her husband, who has accepted a state job in New Mexico, and who was motoring through from Idaho. Mr. Denny was accompanied by his mother and they were detained enroute and did not arrive here until Saturday evening. Mrs. Denny is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Brewer.

Last Saturday Mr. Sanders acted as chauffeur for Supt. McGregor and a federal officer from Portland and conveyed them to the Siletz Agency, one hundred miles west of Chemawa—but not "as the crow flies." The investigation into the recent murder of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ike Washington was the object of the trip. Whether or not anything of importance was learned we have not ascertained. The party arrived back at Chemawa early on Sunday afternoon.

Pupils of the Salem High School staged a "play" in our auditorium last Monday evening for the entertainment of our students and employes. Everyone who attended agrees with us that the young actors acquitted themselves with credits to spare and the thanks of all Chemawa go to the youthful entertainers. The hour of going to press and lack of space prohibits a more extended write-up. The title of the play was "Whose Little Bride Are You," and it was in three acts.

Wednesday's assemblies were in charge of Miss Gunn's eighth grade classes. In the morning Grace Monson presided and Zelma Johnson, Frances Nicholas, Carmen Chamberlain and Ida Audette recited. Natalia Buzeroff asked current event questions. The girls sang a song at the opening and closing of the program. Dewey Matt presided in the afternoon. Walter Howard gave the life of Kipling, Russell Validy recited "The Recessional" and Eustace Markishtum asked current event questions. Both were good assemblies.

The Sophomore boys were in charge of our chapel exercises last Sunday and Ernest Brunoe was chairman, which position he filled very nicely. On the rostrum with him were Supt. McGregor, District Superintendent O. H. Lipps and Rev. Henry Roe Cloud. The chairman called upon Supt. McGregor, who introduced Mr. Lipps, who made a splendid though brief talk in introducing the speaker of the evening, Rev. Roe Cloud. The talk of the latter was in a class by itself and for an hour held the audience spellbound. The orchestra contributed a number, Joseph Kahklen sang "The Stars and Stripes Forever" by Sousa, and the choir sang "America for Me" by Hay.
