Thanksgiving again!

Painting is on at Hawley Hall.

Are you going to try out for the basketball team?

Captain Stacy visited the Salem High School last week.

The tailors are working on the "capotes" for the girls' officers.

Mr. Frost decorated the auditorium for the Sunday evening service.

The Domestic Science department is furnishing the "food trays" for the sick people.

Mr. Fisher gave an interesting and instructive talk at the teachers' meeting Saturday.

The home economics department will do hemstitching for 5 cents per yard or three yards for 10 cents.

Mr. John Dexter is again at his post in the orchestra, for the betterment of that already splendid organization.

Oliver Ezekiel of the Freshman class has returned home on account of a sick sister. His home is in Kamiah, Idaho.

Monday and Wednesday there are to be food sales in the Wigwam, sponsored by the seniors. All sales are for cash only.

Clifford Celestine, of the junior class, Joe Ike, of the eighth grade, and Arthur Bruce, of the sophomore class, are the latest arrivals.

Solomon Fleury of the senior class, and Eula Hudson of the freshmen class, made the highest grades in a test given in capitalization to all the high school English classes.

Dr. Collard, traveling physician of the service, is as welcome at Chemawa as on former visits. "A friend in need is a friend indeed" and Chemawa has always been helped by Dr. Collard's most cheerful and beneficial visits.

A fine girl came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Palmer on Thursday last. Mrs. Palmer was a teacher at Chemawa and has many friends among both students and employees. The Palmers now live in Salem and this "little lady" has the sincerest wishes of all Chemawa.

During chapel last Sunday evening Supt. Lipps gave what was largely in the nature of a health talk—a timely topic. His talk was truly a good one in every way and on lines of the very greatest importance to our young people. Supt. Lipps has been a true student of human nature and in addition has had so much experience, face to face, with the Indian people and their problems that he is an authority in matters pertaining to Indian education. On the program with Supt. Lipps was a number by a mixed sextet, a fine choir number, and the orchestra also contributed.

Mrs. Leavenworth gave the Wednesday assemblies a splendid talk on the distances of the universe. A group of eighth grade students sang and Myrtle Rinehart and Lucy Craig asked and answered "current event" questions in one division and George Courville and Edward Vining asked them in the other.

The Florence Nightingale Club held a meeting on Nov. 7th and elected the following officers: Oxcenia Hendrickson, president; Martha Packineau, vice-president; Aleatha Northover, secretary; Freda Strom, treasurer; auditor, Delores Santos; chaplain, Ruby Paul; sergeant-at-arms, Marjorie Montgomery.

Friends of Frank P. Corbett will be pleased to learn that promotion has been bestowed upon that gentleman and he has been transferred from Parker, Arizona, to Ft. Mohave, Arizona, with added duties and responsibilities. Frank is now a full-fledged disciplinarian and bandmaster in his new field, we are happy to note.

The 9th and 10th grade domestic art girls have completed new uniforms for the nurses, while the 7th grade have made gowns, sheets, towels, pillow-cases and articles too numerous to mention for the various buildings. It is a pleasant and interesting sight to see so many bright and cheerful workers, all doing their bit toward clothing the five hundred girls here at the school.

The long waited for football game between the juniors and seniors will be played on the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day. These two teams have been pulling at the traces for some time and are so anxious to lay claim to the class championship that they are willing to forego the "big eats" that the honor may be theirs. The juniors have only to win this game to claim the beautiful silver loving cup. Each class lays claim to a victory of some sort. If the juniors are unfortunate enough to lose this game they will try to make up for the loss by excelling in the stands with well organized cheering. The game will be called promptly at 2:30 and the officiating will be in the hands of competent people whose names are to be withheld until the last minute.

The Winona Literary Society gave their annual social last Saturday evening. The gym was beautifully decorated in pink and white. After the guests had assembled the Society sang a song which made every one feel the welcome spirit that the Winonas intended they should. President Emma Sexton made a brief speech to the assemblage, which was followed by acrobatic stunts by Hildegard Hamilton and a sailor's dance by Margaret Ball and Mabel Peratrovich. Amusements of a varied nature followed. A song contest between the Rose, Carnation, and Apple Blossom Divisions of the Society was very interesting. Mr. Carroll, Miss Judd and Mrs. Mason acted as judges and awarded first place to the Rose Division. This division was composed of Helen Peratrovich, Harriet Hill, Mabel Peratrovich, Ivy Sanderson and Emma Sexton. Punch was served throughout the evening. After the song contest delicious refreshments were served, which were soon followed by "Home Sweet Home" and "Good Night." This was the first society social of the season and Mr. Klein, advisor to the society, and the Winonas deserve much praise for affording such a time good to their many friends.
