Mr. and Mrs. Mason motored to Corvallis to witness the football game between Oregon State College and Idaho.

Misses Cecile Smith and Edna Crofoot, both of Portland, and graduates of Chemawa, were visitors at the school last Sunday.

Friday will be all Saints Day, hence Halloween is tomorrow night. We are sincere in the hope that there may be no rowdyism at Chemawa.

Coquelle Thompson was a visitor at the school over the week-end. He is now attending the Oregon State College and is getting along famously.

There were movies at the school last Saturday evening. "Annapolis" and "Our Gang" were the films produced and they were good. There was the usual splendid attendance.

Last Saturday was "girls' day" for Salem. There were quite a goodly number of our young ladies in the capital city. They made the trip in auto buses provided by the Southern Pacific Company.

When we went to press it was the understanding that Supt. Lipps was scheduled for an address at the Methodist church in Salem last night and that our orchestra was to play also. An account of the affair will appear in our next issue.

Supt. Lipps arrived home in the middle of last week, having been as far as Fort Hall, Idaho, on business for the government. He states that conditions at Klamath Agency, at Warm Springs, at Burns, Oregon, and Fort Hall are normal and that there is nothing of a startling nature to report.

John Kuhn (Red Cloud), a Cherokee Indian, and in all probability one of the greatest living sousaphone players, broadcasted from Chicago last Saturday afternoon. Reports say that his art is nothing short of wonderful. The prominence of Mr. Kuhn in musical circles should be an inspiration to our boys.

Mr. Grant Teter, our dairyman, experienced some hard luck last Sunday evening when his auto, a new Ford, stalled on the Southern Pacific track at the crossing just south of the school and was demolished by a train. We understand that Mrs. Teter was accompanying her husband at the time. Fortunately neither were hurt, but it is certainly too bad to lose the car.

Mr. Sanders, our instructor in painting, returned home early last week from his annual deer hunt. He was not fortunate in locating a buck with forked horns or better, although he saw numerous does and fawns, hence he returned home minus his usual supply of venison. However, he brought home some delicious kippered salmon that he caught and cured himself. The salmon alone made his trip worth while.

The junior class were guests at the "chamber music" concert on Monday evening, and it was a pleasure for those playing to be greeted with such splendid order and evidence of interest. Next Monday the sophomore class will be the guests of the evening. However, attendance is not compulsory. It is a pleasure to note the interest on the part of employees; among others in attendance last Monday evening were Supt. and Mrs. Lipps, Mrs. Brickell, Mrs. Coddington, Miss Earlougher and Miss Peterson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Mason was the scene of a birthday dinner last Friday—both Mr. and Mrs. Mason being honored, as there is but one day between their birthdays. Mrs. Brewer, mother of Mrs. Mason, prepared the dinner, which was just splendid. Relatives and intimate friends made up the party.

Among others who enrolled at Chemawa this fall were three girls from the Ft. Bidwell school in California. We have just learned all three were prize winners at the Modoc county fair of that state this early fall. All prizes were for needle work of some description. Una Ochiho took one first and one second prize, Rose Townsend took three firsts, and Pearl Diggins secured one first and two second prizes. We think this most commendable in every sense as it is a good indication of what these young people will accomplish in the years to come.

During our chapel exercises last Sunday evening Supt. Lipps, who was in charge, gave a talk with his recent trip through Eastern and Southern Oregon and Southern Idaho as the theme. First he visited the Klamath country, next the Warm Springs Reservation, and then the little school plant at Burns. Then his itinerary took him out of Oregon to Fort Hall, Idaho, where there is a prosperous reservation. The people and the conditions of the country visited were discussed in a most instructive manner and it was really very entertaining as well, as Supt. Lipps is gifted in descriptive powers. It was a splendid talk. The choir gave a pleasing number and the orchestra contributed a very fine selection, "The Prince of Pilsen" by Luders.

CHAPEL DEDICATED

Sunday was a red letter day in the history of the Protestant religious work at Chemawa, when the building, which has been set apart by Superintendent Lipps for religious services, was formally dedicated at a most impressive service. Dr. D. A. Thompson of Portland, Synodical Executive for Oregon, presided at the service and conducted the responsive service of dedication. The sermon by Dr. Norman K. Tully of Salem was addressed particularly to the young people and was a masterly challenge to a life of Christian service and an acceptance of the true values of life. The prayer of dedication was offered by Dr. Fred C. Taylor, of the First Methodist church of Salem, who also pronounced the benediction.

Assisting further in the service were Rev. James Aiken Smith of Dallas who offered the opening prayer, and Supt. O. H. Lipps who read the scripture lesson. The Chemawa Trio, with Mrs. Turney at the piano; Mr. Kunkel, violin, and Clyde Cooley, 'cello, played very beautifully as a prelude the Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana, and as an equally inspiring postlude a Serenade by Widor. Miss Judd and a chorus of girls sang a three part anthem by Barnby, "Sweet is Thy Mercy."

A large number of guests from Salem, Portland and Dallas attended the dedication service Sunday afternoon.

This building was formerly a girls' dormitory—replaced now by the new Winona Hall. The present chapel is the room which was the play room and study
