

(FROM THE QUIVER OF JOHN RUSKIN)

Observe, then, all wise work is mainly threefold in character. It is honest, useful, and cheerful.

Knowledge is good, and light is good; yet man perishes in seeking knowledge, and moths perish in seeking light.

You drive a gambler out of the gambling room who loads dice, but you leave a tradesman in flourishing business who loads scales.

The first character of right childhood is that it is modest. A well-bred child does not think it can teach its parents, or that it knows everything.

Half the evil in this world comes from people not knowing what they do like, not deliberately setting themselves to find out what they really enjoy.

I think that every rightly constituted mind ought to rejoice, not so much in knowing anything clearly, as in feeling that there is infinitely more that it cannot know.

A rich man ought to be continually examining how he may spend his money for the advantage of others; at present others are continually plotting how they may beguile him into spending it apparently for his own.

It is useless to put your heads together, if you can't put your hearts together. Shoulder to shoulder, right hand to right hand, among yourselves, and no wrong hand to anybody else, and you'll win the world yet.

Perfect taste is the faculty of receiving the greatest possible pleasure from those material sources which are attractive to our moral nature in its purity and perfection; but why we receive pleasure from some forms and colors and not from others is no more to be asked or answered than why we like sugar and dislike wormwood.

He who habituates himself in his daily life to seek for the stern facts in whatever he hears or sees will have these facts again brought before him by the involuntary imaginative power, in their noblest associations; and he who seeks for frivolities and fallacies will have frivolities and fallacies again presented to him in his dreams.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAM

The students from the fourth to the eighth grades enjoyed a delightful Hallowe'en Assembly last Friday morning, presented by the Auditorium classes under the direction of Miss Judd. Georgelina Champlagne presided and called for the following program numbers:

The Origin of Hallowe'en	- - - -	Oleta Starr
Song, "Hallowe'en"	- - - -	Assembly
Recitation, "Two Ghosts"	- - - -	Mae Beaumont
Song, "Hallowe'en, O Hallowe'en"	- - - -	Sixth Grade Girls
Story, "Hallowe'en Fires"	- - - -	Lena Leighton
Recitation, "Best be Quiet"	- - - -	Clara Bremner
Recitation, "The Jolly Pumpkin"	- - - -	Gertrude Dupree
Play, "Tommy Meets his Excuses"	- - - -	Fifth Grade Pupils
Song, "Harvest of the Year"	- - - -	Assembly

Many of those taking part in the program were making their first appearance in public and they showed excellent preparation and stage presence. The stage was attractively decorated with autumn leaves, and jack-o'-lanterns cleverly placed by lattice fences. The jack-o'-lanterns were cut by the sixth grade boys and the decorations were arranged by those participating in the program. Striking Hallowe'en posters from the art classes under the direction of Mrs. Walker also added to the mysterious atmosphere.

LOCAL

Mr. Sanders, our painter and glazier, would certainly appreciate some co-operation on the part of the boys to the end that a smaller number of broken windows panes will be called to his attention.

The Reliance Literary Society affected organization for the year at a meeting called last week. Mr. C. D. Rainey is advisor for the society this year. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, James Kelly; vice-president, Dowd Franklin; secretary, Clifford Case; treasurer, Frank Johnson; sergeant-at-arms, Louis Paraseau, and yell leader, Harold Masten.

The McBride Hall Girl Reserves turned their regular meeting into a Hallowe'en party. They had decorated the Y. W. C. A. room with black cats, pumpkins, witches and the other appropriate symbols. A spectral-voiced ghost greeted them as they appeared at the door. Fortunes were told by all the approved Hallowe'en methods. Altogether a delightful evening was enjoyed by the girls.

Mr. Lobdell, our school librarian, has "started something" that is destined to make a noise in Chemawa circles—something that will be heard from. It is a harmonica band and quite a number of boys are already making a noise "going and coming." We do not know if girls, too, are eligible for membership, but hope that they may be. The American will be found in the booster column.

Supt. and Mrs. Lipps had the pleasure of entertaining Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Camp and daughter one evening last week as they were enroute from Toppenish, Wash., to San Francisco, Calif. Mr. Camp has been the government auditor for this district for many years and he is a most able and likeable gentleman. Just recently he has been temporarily in charge at Toppenish agency and he now is superintendent at the government warehouse at San Francisco. This means promotion for Mr. Camp and he has a host of friends at Chemawa and elsewhere who will rejoice in the recognition that he has received.
