SIXTH GRADE NOTES

The sixth grade girls, division II, have started on their gym suits. We hope to get them finished so we will have them to wear in the gym. Miss Terry is our teacher.

There is only one girl on the Honor Roll this month, Annie Stevens. Maybe there will be more girls next month. Every girl is trying her best.

The fifth and sixth grade girls are working hard this year to make the Christmas play a success and we hope the high school students will enjoy our program.

The sixth grade girls and boys have organized a Club. The name of it is "The Young Citizens' Club." Our motto is "Do as you would be done by." We have adopted a code. We have named our rows as streets. We must live to our street name and follow our code.

June Jordan received a letter from Violet Lynch a couple of days ago. She said she hoped the sixth grade girls were getting along fine in their school work.

SENIOR NOTES

The Annual Staff held a meeting last week in Miss White's room.

The class held a meeting recently and elected George Thompson for our yell leader. Matthew John was elected in charge of the class prophecy; Terrance Courtney, class will; David Little Swallow, humour; and Charlotte Jordon, class poem.

All the members of the class have had their pictures taken for the annual.

Since Oregon sunshine is not favorable to photography the pictures were taken in the auditorum by artificial light.

FOR SALE

A "music case" completed by Pat Shavaneau, and a scissors or shear case, completed by John Peltier, are now on sale at the Shoe and Leather Craft Department.

MISCELLANEA

The high school classes in home economics dressed twenty turkeys which were used for Thanksgiving dinner in the students' dinning room.

The members of the typing I class had an opportunity to write, on Nov. 24, their first letter dictated to them by their teacher, Miss Hoffman.

Pearl Beaumont, one of the smaller girls of Hawley Hall, gave a delightful scarf dance for the entertainment of the Treble Clef Club on November 19.

Each boy in the blacksmith shop has made a blacksmith hammer complete, including tempering. Leslie Evans has completed a wrought iron bridge lamp for Brewer Hall.

The girls of Hawley Hall are working enthusiastically upon a play which is to be given on Christmas. The play is in the form of an operetta and has many clever dance numbers.

Auto shop students have been busy building engine stands for the past week. These stands will make our work on engines much easier. We are all set to win the shop basketball championship.

One of the tailor shop boys recently received a letter from James Kelly, member of the 1931 graduating class at Chemawa, in which he states that he is getting along nicely with his work in a tailor shop in Spokane, Washington. The tailoring course was taken by James while a Chemawa student. Good for Jim!

One section of the sophomore class and the senior class in home economics entertained their guests in the D. S. building from 4:15 to 5:00 p. m. on Tuesday. Light refreshments were served. The other section of the sophomore class entertained after school on Friday. Freshmen classes will entertain on Tuesday and Thursday of this week.

The Wah-ke-tah campfire group held their usual weekly meeting at the domestic science building on Wednesday, Nov. 18. After the business meeting the game of hearts was played by all the members and Alva Hawley and Phoebe Archambeau held high scores, while Lillian Halsey and Dora La France held low scores. Miss Terry surprised her group by showering them with fruits and nuts.

Weather being favorable for two days the carpenters almost finished the garage roof and half the siding is on. We are now making the outside doors, so in a few more favorable days this project will be finished. The carpenters have the basket ball intramural tournament all doped out. We are going to be winners. Watch and see. Henry Beauvais has adopted the slogan (with apology to Buick): "When better picture frames are built 'Jugg' will build them."

A group of senior girls who are interested in nursing are working with the underweight children in the school. A nutrition class has been organized and this is in charge of Charlotte Jordan and Lucile Powakee, with Mildred Ross, Lillian Halsey and Evangeline Gillette assisting. The underweights are weighed once a week and a chart is kept for each one. At the weekly meeting they are given health and food
