CHANGES IN THE SERVICE

After a little less than two years since his appointment as the superintendent of Haskell Institute Dr. Robert D. Baldwin has resigned from the Indian service and is back at West Virginia university in the position of professor of education in charge of graduate work in school administration. He left Haskell on the 20th of last month leaving Paul L. Fickinger, assistant superintendent and principal, in charge. Last Saturday Mr. Clyde M. Blair, former superintendent of Chilocco and Haskell, left the Klamath agency in southern Oregon for Lawrence, Kan., and will relieve Mr. Fickinger on his arrival at Haskell. The position left vacant at Klamath by Mr. Blair will be taken over temporarily by Mr. B. S. Courtright, field agent.

Dr. Henry N. Sisco departed on Saturday, Jan 28, for Concho, Okla., where he will take charge of the new agency hospital for the Cheyenne and Arapaho agency.

A MAN of humble origin, in the highest office of the land he remained a simple and unpretending citizen. Gentle and peace-loving, he was called upon to conduct a great and bloody war. When stern resolution and relentless force was the order of the day, he ruled the popular mind and heart by the tender sympathy of his nature. Cautious conservative by temperament and mental habit, he led the most sweeping and sudden social revolution of our time. In preserving homely speech and rustic manner in the most conspicuous position of his day he drew the scoffs of polite society, but he thrilled mankind with utterances of surpassing beauty and grandeur. In his heart the best friend of the defeated south, he was murdered by a crazed fanatic who took him for its most cruel enemy. Lampooned and maligned in life by sectional passion and excited party spirit, around his bier friend and foe gathered to praise him—which they have never ceased to do.

Abraham Lincoln—one of the greatest of Americans and best of men.
