Ethel Harris and Leo Cottonior became Mr. and Mrs. on Wednesday morning June first.

Mr. Norman J. Spawn, associate supervisor of industrial education, was a recent visitor at Chemawa.

Depression may have taken its toll on everything but the barbers still do business on a large scale. Mr. Hal reports that during the school year approximately eight thousand hair cuts were given.

Rev. S. D. Johnson, pastor of the Leslie Methodist Church in Salem, was the speaker in the Sunday morning chapel a few weeks ago at the Protestant Church. Priscilla Hayashi presided. Joe White sang a solo.

Chemawa has been invited to enter a float in the Rose Festival parade on June 9. For the first time in our history Chemawa will be represented in this famous and colorful spectacle and a suitable float is being prepared.

William Demmert and Florence Allman, Chemawa students, were married in Portland Saturday, May 27. They will make their home in Klawock, Alaska. Bill and Florence were two of our very best students and everyone wishes them happiness.

Chemawa bows its head in grief at the death of Father Gall Eugster, o. s. B., who died at St. Benedict's abbey on May 17. For 17 years Father Gall was a resident and active priest at Chemawa. Students attended the funeral services which were held at Mt. Angel on Friday, May 19.

The sophomore cooking class gave a tea honoring the seniors at the Wigwam on Tuesday, May 9, from 4 o'clock to 5:30. The tea table was decorated with a centerpiece of various colored tulips and white paper. The color scheme was also carried out to the daintily decorated sandwiches, tea cakes and cookies. There were about sixty guests present including not only the senior class but the senior faculty and advisors.

The Girl Reserves had their annual ceremonial for the awarding of honors won this year. Ten members of the senior Y. W. receiving their rings were: Florence Allman, Oma Woodcock, Edna Wesley, Esther Hillman, Violet Johnson, Lena Leighton, Eunice Buck, LaVerne Ulmer and Hildred McCarty. The main feature of the program was "The Candles Burn" presented by a group of high school Girl Reserves.

Mrs. Smith's Nitsi Poo Tan Campfire group went on a picnic Saturday, May 13. The girls roasted "Hot Dogs," hamburgers and marshmallows. The girls have finished the Woodgathers rank: Joy Whitelaw was awarded symbols for leadership, citizenship and hand-craft; Myrtle Dupree received symbols of citizenship and handcraft; Maxine Paquette, symbol of citizenship and hand-craft symbol. Mercedes Archdale received a symbol for effort and improvement.
