Marie Farron, all-day vocational student, visited her home in Harrah, Wash., over the week-end.

Superintendent and Mrs. Ryan were guests at the Shawver home for dinner on the evening of Jan. 10.

Dorothy Stevens and Clara Bozeroff recently motored to Portland with Mr. and Mrs. Showalter and visited some of their friends in Milwaukie, Ore., on the way back.

We have been informed that Lawrence Horn, Earl Brown and John Arnoux, three of Chemawa's former students, are in Fort Apache, Arizona, training for supervisory positions in the IECW.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Allen had as their dinner guests last Thursday, Mr. Kunkel, Mr. C. W. Turner and Father Ildefonse. After dinner the visitors and their hosts enjoyed a few hands of bridge.

Vendean Johnson, son of Mr. V. H. Johnson, is making his home at Chemawa and is enrolled in the Salem high school. We trust young Mr. Johnson will find his stay at Chemawa interesting and enjoyable.

Word has been received that Miss E. W. Patterson, girls' advisor of last year, has undergone a major operation. Mrs. Wilcox, our Winona housemother, has been confined to her room for an old ailment. We hope that they will both be back on their feet soon.

Tuesday, Jan. 9, the Little Flower society held its regular meeting with the sponsor, Mrs. Allen. A short business discussion preceded the program. Vocal solos were given by Marie Farron and Alice Alexander and the entire group sang songs before adjourning.

In spite of the disagreeable weather the work of erecting the new brick building on the site of the old plumping shop and the former well-house is progressing rapidly and efficiently. This furnishes labor for skilled and unskilled workmen from the school and Salem.

Miss Lulu Eldridge has been sent to Chemawa by the Indian office in Washington, D. C., to make a study of the opportunities for vocational training for Indian girls and boys in the northwest. Since coming to Chemawa Miss Eldridge has been by no means idle for the task placed upon her shoulders by the Office requires a prodigious amount of research and detailed preliminary work.

The boys in the Altamot cooking school invited a number of their lady friends to dinner Jan. 10, at the Altamot Cafe. The following girls were guests; Evelyn Spanish, Catherine Bailey, Clara Bremner, Gladys Majhor, Dorothy Mercer and Theresa Decelles. Matthew Decelles was acting chef for the day and every one paid him many nice compliments on the tasty dishes he set before them.

Joseph Bettles, who was a great Chemawa athlete during his student days and later dairyman here, is now the head man on the two-thousand acre farm of the St. Andrews school at Pendleton, Ore. Mr. Bettles besides having become a man of affairs has also become quite a family man having a wife and three children of whom he is very proud.

Many old-time friends of Reginald G. Downie will be saddened to learn that he passed the Christmas season in the Veterans' Hospital, Minneapolis, Minn. A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Downie were transferred from Chemawa to the Flandreau school in South Dakota, where Mr. Downie is boys' advisor. We felt at the time of the transfer that the climate might not prove agreeable to the health of our western friends, and it seems we were at least partially right. On the same basis of reasoning we believe that Mr. Downie should be transferred to a position in the west or southwest. He has proved a valuable man in the Indian Service and his record entitles him to a chance to conserve his health. Reggie is as game as the best of them and all he asks is a fighting chance. We are with him and feel certain that he will be given his chance and will be restored to good health speedily.

CHAPEL

In chapel Sunday, January 7, the orchestra played Petite Suite de Ballet by Gluck, Daniel Motanic sang as a vocal solo, O'er the Billowy Sea by Smith and the choir rendered a specially arranged chorus of Stand Up For Jesus by Millen. Superintendent Ryan, after a brief talk in which he introduced Miss Eldridge, a visiting official, surrendered the stage to Mr. Moynihan, well-known attorney of Salem and a member of the famous capital city Legion drum corps, who gave us an extremely interesting account of his visit to Chicago and the Worlds fair last fall. Mr. Moynihan illustrated a great deal of his talk with a large panorama of the Exposition grounds and numerous small cards of various points around and about the fair. An unusually interesting feature of his discussion and of the exhibition was the Pantheon de Guerre, a painting so gigantic in every respect that it would be difficult to describe here. Without doubt it was a special treat to everyone present to hear Mr. Moynihan's interesting talk and one that will be long remembered.

In chapel Sunday, Jan. 14, Superintendent Ryan addressed the students in a brief talk in which he urged them to acquire self-confidence and put forth their best efforts to accomplish something that would aid them in making a success of their future. The orchestra played A Dream of Spring by Flath, the choir sang Onward Into Light by Donizetti, a quartet of girls sang Neopolitan Nights by Zamecnik and the assembly closed with everyone singing the Pep song.
