VOCATIONS

MACHINE SHOP

During the last two weeks the machinists have been very busy. Peter Berger and Louis Youpe are making a number of brush pruners and tree pruners for the gardeners for the coming season of cultivation.

More circumstantial evidence of spring's nearness is that some of our boys are over-hauling the lawn mowers and making the necessary repairs.

PAINTING DEPARTMENT

Mr. Sanders and his painters have taken over the beauty shop for a week and are they giving it a beauty treatment.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Clarice, our little girl spent the week-end with Dr. Steeves at Salem.

All of our mump patients have recovered and we have had no signs of other cases.

Madeline Skinner is one of our patients with a sprained arm.

BEAUTY PARLOR

At last the boys have begun to recognize the beauty shop. Sam Shoulderblade, David Archambeau and Raymond Connors have made appointments for permanents.

HOME ECONOMICS

The home economics staff is going to attend a conference at Corvallis all day Tuesday, February 12.

Mrs. Wilcox entertained the Aumsville and our own basketball team at Winona hall Friday night. The refreshments were prepared by the junior foods class. Chemawa girls won the game and hoped that this proved a good compensation for the Aumsville loss of the game. Clara Bozeroff, Pearl Beaumont and Juanita Frye helped with the serving.

CARPENTER SHOP

The carpenter shop will soon have an up-to-date lighting system. Thanks to the electricians.

Elmer "Buster" Thompson has completed and paid for a fine solid ash cabinet which he has sent home to his folks. A very thoughtful and practical way to show that some progress is being made.

William "Homer" Settler has about completed an auto trunk for Coach Larnard. We presume it is to carry his excess luggage in. We also hear that "Homer" is trying to get a "bonus" for his harvest.

BARBER SHOP

George Cummings, who will graduate from barbering on February 16, will leave for Ft. Washakie, Wyoming where he and Fred Harris will go in business together.

Oliver Jackson will replace George on his departure

PERSONALITY

By NELLIE SUMMERS, Chemawa student

Personality is that which sets one apart from others. It is character forcefully expressed. One may have character without personality but one cannot radiate qualities he does not possess. If you meet a man for the first time and remember afterwards some expression of his face, the tone of his voice or remark, his personality has played its part and won.

Great men of all ages have possessed strong personalities. Our leaders are people who are able to put across their ideas and make people want to adopt them as their own. In business life many men as well as women who have good ideas are left behind, plodding in the same old rut, because they do not know how to express themselves. That is where address, one of the main requirements of a good personality comes in. The other requirement is dress.

When meeting people for the first time we receive an eye expression. Therefore it is necessary to look better than they really are while others do not emphasize their good points.

Personality is something that may be acquired by a careful survey of oneself to see what qualities must be cultivated. It is good to be alone once in awhile and take inventory of what we possess and what we are lacking. It takes many qualities to make a pleasing personality. Among some of the most important are: Cheerfulness, courteousness, enthusiasm, moderation, ambitiousness and numerous others. Anyone practicing these qualities faithfully everyday will reap the rewards which is a pleasing personality and which makes friends. So much of our happiness depends on friends and people around us.
