FARM NEWS

The farm is putting in a big drainage project to drain the beaver dam land so it will be fit for farming. They have men from Grand Ronde and Siletz working on it.

LEATHER CRAFT

The leather craft shop has been very busy getting out the large amount of shoes that are coming in the shop. The rotators are just beginning to learn the art of shoe repairing.

BARBER SHOP

During the past few weeks the barbers have done their regular work. They took an examination in which half of their work must make up for half of their grade; the other half came from the book work which includes all that they have studied in the past. Each one of the barbers gave a shave, shampoo, haircut, tonic and massage as part of the test.

AUTO SHOP

Since the cold spell all the cars on the campus have been in to take their "snort" of alcohol.

All the car owners have been quite careful. So far only one car has been in with a cracked head.

The tool room is being rearranged and the checking system, which has proved very useful, is to be started.

PAINT SHOP

The Paint shop boys are going to be quite busy this week and next. Monday they gave the ceiling, walls, and stairs leading up to the Art room a second coat of paint. It was a day and a half job, but by putting the full force on the job at once, they finished in record time.

CARPENTER SHOP

William Spotted Eagle and Sam Burd are repairing the floor in the shop. They are getting good experience from this work.

Alvin Amera and Leonard Bighorn are making some waste paper baskets for Winona hall.

Rollo Brown, assisted by William Settler, has cut an opening and placed a door in the wall in Mr. Showalter's new class room.

Vernon Jackson is making a dining room table of walnut. Leonard Bighorn is making a panel desk. Leslie Warrior has just finished a large cabinet. Victor Desautel is busy putting the finishing touches on a walnut stool.

PRINT SHOP

The print shop has been very busy the past two weeks. Two booklets on the care and treatment of trachoma have been printed which will be used for a clinic that is scheduled to be held sometime this month. Other small jobs and routine work has also been on the menu.

TAILOR SHOP

The tailors are still very busy. Joe Reddoor and Wallace Zundle are making suit coats. Henry Abbott is making suit pants and Jay Hedderick and Clifford Day have just finished making the All-Star basketball trunks. John Sharp and Jay Hedderick are now learning how to draft pants and coats. They hope to be experts in the near future.

JUNIOR COMMERCIAL

The past week or so has been a clean-up week for the Junior commercial students. Each pupil has been taught how to keep their machines and desk in order. We hope there will not be any untidy stenographers when they leave Chemawa.

In business science, everyone kept a schedule of what he did for a day and a half to see how much time was wasted. Most of them found out they wasted more time than was necessary.

HOME ECONOMICS

Christmas vacation is over, and all of the home economic students have at last settled down to their routines.

The girls who take productive sewing from Mrs. Hauser have been very busy making pillow cases so that in case of a time when it will be necessary they will be all ready. In Mrs. James' department the girls have been occupied in making layettes and working on some of their embroidery work that they did not finish.

A dinner was served Saturday, January 9th, honoring Mr. Hirst and Mr. Lipps. The girls of Mrs. Groop's cooking class prepared and served the meal.

Campus News

Mrs. Cecelia Shoeship has been visiting her son who was sick in the hospital here.

Virgil Carson, a student of this school, received an injured leg while riding on a sleigh, Sunday afternoon.

The boys enjoyed the unusual snow of the season by having many snowball fights and face washings last week.

Martha Bingham and Wilma Yellowrobe went to inspect at McNary hall Sunday and found the boys' rooms very neat and presentable.

Misses Josephine Peas and Hazel Strom visited the campus over the week-end. We are glad to have them come and see their "old friends."

Margaret and Marjorie Skahan arrived here Friday night to enroll as students. We all hope they like it here and will make the best of everything.

The cold weather proved destructive to the hospital when a steam pipe broke on the second floor and flooded the first floor. Help was immediately sent from McNary hall.

The grade school girls gave a tea in Winona hall Monday afternoon in honor of their former teacher, Mrs. LaDuc, who is leaving and also to welcome their new instructor, Miss Bradford.

Louida Osbourne was very highly honored by being admitted to the officers body. Because of her kindness and attitude shown towards her fellow classmates, teachers, and employees, she acquired this position.

Robert Strong, one of the students, has been given a position as a cook in Salem, Oregon. We hope Robert may succeed in his new job and make good use of the training he has had here.

The occupants of room 32, Henry Champine and Jay Hedderick, won a large box of candy for the best decorated room during the Christmas vacation at McNary hall.

On New Year's night, through the rigors of an elimination tournament, Vernon Jackson emerged undisputed checker champion of McNary hall. He is said to be looking for a worthy opponent in Winona hall.
