SHOP TALK

HOME ECONOMICS: Dorothy Hayward and Anne Plasteur are busily painting chairs, a table and a cupboard. The furnishing of the Seniors Practicing Cottage is progressing very smoothly.

The House Hold Furnishing class under the supervision of Miss Cronk is taking up Color scheming which proves to be both an educational and interesting subject.

The G-2 class in productive sewing have arranged a weekly schedule. On Monday and Tuesday they do productive work, on Wednesday they do fancy work for the approaching sale, and on Friday they are allowed to do their own mending. Other classes in productive sewing have similar schedules.

Both classes in Family relationship with boys and girls are anticipating a meeting at which class members will discuss the question, resolved: Women Should Work After Marriage.

Most of the senior commercial girls have completed their bedspreads in Mrs. Jame's class. They are hoping to make use of them in the near future.

The senior cottage has now received its last coat of paint and is ready for the two seniors to live in it.

PROJECT BOYS: All the Project boys are busily preparing for Spring. Some are working in the machine shop repairing shovels and hoes. The others are all busy digging post holes for the posts for their string beans.

AUTO SHOP: Al Bighorn and Matt Mireau have just completed over-hauling the project boy's fruit sprayer.

Preston Bell and Benton Juneau have replaced a broken transmission housing on one of the cars.

CARPENTER SHOP: Fred Lodge and George Bell have almost completed two small huts for Pigville.

Some of the carpenters have been busy tearing down the old greenhouse and clearing a spot for a house.

ELECTRIC SHOP: Duane Van Pelt, Adam Bearcub, and Herman Redelk have been busy installing a new telephone line from the telephone exchange to the high school building.

PAINT SHOP: The paint shop boys have been all over the campus repairing and replacing all the broken windows.

BAKERY: The bakers have been busy figuring out tasty recipes for Chemawa's birthday cake. So with all hands busy the cake should be a tasty success. We all hope so as we'll have a taste of it.

BARBER SHOP: The barbers have all taken an interest in their shop and have been giving the floor a coat of varnish.
