

HOME ROOM

TULALIP NO. 1: This group has been studying the questions and answers of the reservation survey, and have had to study much of the Constitution and By-laws for more information for the test. All information acquired is kept in notebooks.

KLAMATH: The Klamath Homeroom have written letters to their Agency but haven't as yet received any information. Their map is being sent to the Superintendent of their Agency for correction of any recent changes on the reservation.

SILETZ: Members of this group have all of the answers to the Reservation Survey quiz in readiness for the Homeroom test. Each member has drawn a name of another of their members to send a valentine too.

ALASKA: The Alaska Homeroom is getting down to serious business now, since the new officers were elected for the next quarter. They are going to write letters to their home town to get more information on the different resources.

TAHOLAH: Each member has been studying exceptionally hard lately for the coming tests. The chief study recently was of lands.

CROW HOMEROOM: All the information of the Crow reservation gathered now was received last year, so they are taking down notes and memorizing figures. They have also studied parliamentary procedure and each member had a turn as acting chairman.

GRAND RONDE: Mr. Jackson visited this Homeroom recently. Miss Thompson also visited and gave some valuable suggestions on how to improve the Homeroom. Two new members were recently admitted into the Homeroom.

TULALIP NO. 2: This group has been putting information of government loans, reservation lands and timber, and the different occupations and their incomes per year in their notebooks.

TONGUE RIVER: This group has specialized in land study-grazing, timber, and lands. They are planning to invite their reservation delegates to their Homeroom during the conference. Mrs. Black visited their Homeroom and spoke about rural life. The Fort Peck group was also visited and a joint meeting was held.

WARM SPRINGS: Questions are being written to ask the Indian delegates of Warm Springs who are coming to attend the conference. Much studying has been made on the Reservation Survey. Mr. LaVatta visited the Homeroom and talked about the possibilities on the reservation. He also gave the name and address of a man whom they could get forestry information.

NORTHERN IDAHO: The Homeroom is making charts on personal health questions, and have some very interesting questions. A general review is being made on questions concerning the reservation.

FORT HALL: The Homeroom members are recording notes in their notebooks and are making preparations for drawing a map.

YAKIMA: The Yakima Homeroom members are copying important notes in their notebooks, and are making a review of several of the reservation problems.

FLATHEADS: The Flatheads are studying and reviewing the questions and answers concerning the reservation. They are also drawing posters about flies for their health project.

CALIFORNIA: The Californians have started to study about the two reservations, and have divided the week in half. Two days are spent drawing maps and health posters, two days are spent on a research of the two reservations, and one day is for a general discussion.

Respect for Others

Man does not live alone. What will be your attitude towards others? Your Superintendent, principal, and teachers are interested in you and are prepared to help you. They are your friends. Are you a friend to them?

Your classmates and schoolmates have their rights as well as duties. Do you respect their rights as you would have them respect yours?

Your parents give and do much for you. They are willing to sacrifice in order to give you the foundation needed to live happy and useful lives. Do you appreciate what they do, and do you properly obey and respect them?

Everyone should be concerned about health and safety. Do you respect the rights of others in these matters?

So let's be frank and start the New Year right by having respect with each other.
