

From the Vocational Departments

CARPENTRY: The carpenters have reshingled Mr. Frye's house and will soon reshingle Mr. Berry's. Alby made the screen doors for the bakery. Jake and Dilts are making bookcases. Grant has made a standing picture frame especially to show the people in Alaska.

PAINT SHOP: The painters are repainting the beds from the hospital. This time Ducco paint will be sprayed on by the use of a spray gun. They are going to varnish the floor of the new practice cottage when the other workers are through.

ELECTRIC SHOP: The electricians have helped tidy the campus by painting the telephone poles green and taking the slack out of the outside lines. They recently installed a new range outlet for Miss Peters and a new air compressure for the N.Y.A.

BARBER SHOP: The barbers are nearing the finishing line by cutting the hair of the grade school students. All the boys are doing fine in studying the barber science. Melvin Wounded-eye will be the only one graduating from the barber shop this year.

TAILOR SHOP: Mr. James is back in the shop. The tailors made pennants for "jolly up" awards. Has anyone noticed any "college pants?" It's a fad spreading as conventional wear.

MACHINE SHOP: These boys have been fixing up the welding table. The shop has had many improvements made. The boys are doing fine work and are busier now, too. They have been taking the old paint off some beds.

AUTO SHOP: The mechanics have put new tires on the bus and truck. They rebushed the front end of the bus, and fixed the fender of the new V-8. Mesplie and Wilder tuned up a model T. Roswell and Brown painted the pick-up. Shorty adjusted the carburetor on Mr. Abraham's car.

BAKERY: The bakers, with outside orders and daily production, are kept busy. Edden and Beaudry made cobbler, cookies, and rolls for the Boy Scouts. Rice and Cassimere made the cookies for the Freshman picnic and reception. S. Williams, exbaker, made wafers for the Junior-Senior Prom. Joseph and Gardipee make daily production. Sorrenson, if serious, can really roll dough.

FOODS: All girls in Miss White's Foods Class have been very busy trying to complete their plans for the last semester.

The seventh grade girls have finished the study of breakfasts and have been divided into three groups. Each group has prepared and served a breakfast for the other members of the class and have also invited guests. The guests were Miss Thompson, Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Johnson.

After completing the study of school lunches, the 11-A girls packed an ideal school lunch and went for a picnic. They also prepared trays for the sick. The flowers used on the trays were later sent to the hospital. We were also glad to send several jars of jams and jellies which we canned last fall. We have just finished baking dainty cookies and nut bread to be used for the reception to be given Sunday night for the D. A. R. We also baked cakes for the shower given Tuesday evening in honor of Mrs. Pepper. We are now planning our final dinner to be given soon.
