

From the Vocational Departments

CARPENTER SHOP: The beginners have been repairing many chairs. Justin Wilson has remodeled the table from his room. Dilts is making a marquee over one of the carpenter shop doors. A cornice of the auto shop was repaired. Ohlerking and Brady reshingled Mr. Mason's house. Most of the new boys are becoming expert picture frame makers. Bearchum has been making a complete overhaul of Winona hall's furniture.

BARBER SHOP: The barbers are few, but very ambitious. Paul Adams, a new barber, has gone on a vacation from the barber shop. Viola Redelk is now learning the art of barbering.

TAILOR SHOP: The new boys are learning the preliminaries of tailoring such as: making button holes, pockets, and pressing. The band suits are coming fine. Ten band suits are cut and four are completed. Two suits are ready for try-on and four others will soon be ready for fitting.

SHOE SHOP: The shoe shop boys will appreciate the sending of shoes to the shoe shop before they are worn out too much. The boys have been doing much lately and their instructor says, "The boys have taken more interest in their work and they show much pep in their work."

AUTO SHOP: Henry Cross, George Stensger, Charles Williams, and Frank Harrison have transferred to welding in the National Defense course. This practically took all the best mechanics out of the shop. Frank Gochanour installed a new generator on one welder, while others are installing a new clutch disc in a second welder. Richard Larson is a new mechanic. Sharnute learned to lubricate a Ford and repack front wheels.

BAKERY: A 60 pound cake was made for Chemawa's birthday and decorated with our school colors. Cashimere and Saluskin did the decorating. 300 cookies were made for the Hi Y. 400 jellies were made for the junior dance. Bakers wish to thank Mr. Mason and Mr. Wilder for making and painting a sugar and flour bin for the bakery.

CHILD CARE: The 9th grade child care class has been very busy in making layettes for the Red Cross. Each two girls have to make one between them. Evidently they seem very interested in this as they have been looking up reports pertaining to child care and there has been some very splendid reports given in class.

ARTS & CRAFTS: The freshman Arts and Crafts group are still making and furnishing the basket they started under the direction of Mrs. Markistrum. Others are doing cross-stitch work, embroidering, block-printing and bead work. There are a few that are making blouses.

SEWING: The junior sewing girls are working on their junior prom dresses.

The 8th grade sewing class is anxious to make print dresses for themselves. That is to be their next project. They have completed weaving rugs.

The upperclassmen that are taking Arts and Crafts from Mrs. James are making fine progress. This group includes mostly juniors. They are weaving belts on the looms now and a few are making luncheon sets. Emma Pohipe is also in the class and is weaving draperies for the main office.

COOKING: This week the junior cooking girls are busy planning luncheons. Each one must prepare and serve a luncheon to an invited guest.

The Home Management class, under the guidance of Miss White, is getting along fine. Their main interest outside of managing the practice house is poultry and they also expect to put in a garden soon.

The sophomores in cooking are also busy planning a luncheon. They are far enough advanced in luncheons that each one can serve a complete luncheon with out difficulty.

SEWING: The senior Home furnishing's class have finished the furnishing and modeling of furniture for the practice house. The practice house will be ready for use as soon as the varnishing of the floor is finished.

The 8th grade cooking class is very busy planning a luncheon. They are very eager to learn and are coming along just fine.

The afternoon sophomore class is on luncheons and salads. They hope to acquire skill in preparing both.

The 7th grade class is learning to embroidery and sew under the guidance of Mrs. Sanders.

PRODUCTION SEWING: The Junior's productive class have been kept very busy the past two weeks in finishing up Brewer hall night shirts and Barber shop aprons.

The Red Crow group which consists of only a few girls are making progress. They have completed many valuable articles such as: sleeveless army and navy sweaters, and they have finished childrens garments which include mittens, caps, sweaters sache.

Sewing sheets, pillow cases and dresser scarfs is a very busy task that is what the freshmen productive sewing class have been doing and it really has kept them busy, but they are finishing them soon.

It has been quite a busy and interesting week for the senior sewing class as they are starting on their graduation dresses. They have also completed barber shop aprons.

Senior Girls Give Dinner

A senior dinner was given in Hawely hall on February 29, as a benefit to buy equipment for the practice cottage. Sixty-four attended the dinner.

The room was attractively decorated with sixteen card tables that were covered with blue checkered table cloths and red candles. Their special dish was hamburger steak.

After the dinner the students danced to music furnished by Bing Tyler's radio-phonograph.

Compliments were extended to the seniors from the employees and students for the delicious dinner and the fine time they all had.
