Superintendent's Message

We are approaching the close of another school year. Soon you students will be returning to your homes for work on the farms, in the forests, in the shipyards.

During the coming summer months we can all make an important contribution toward winning the war if we work at some worthwhile activity.

The present school year has shown some progress. You students have demonstrated interest and ability in carrying greater responsibility. You are becoming conscious of the school's many problems. You have gladly given of your time and energy in helping to develop and carry out a finer program. More and more, as you demonstrate ability, you shall be called upon to participate in the plans and operation of the school.

We have word from the Chicago Office that our authorized enrollment is to be reduced to 375 students next year. In view of this it will be most important for you students who are eligible to attend school at Chemawa next year to be here on the opening day.

On behalf of all the employees I wish to commend you for your cooperation and fine record during the past year, and to wish everyone of you a very happy summer.

MYRTHUS W. EVANS

Class Prophecy

On the evening of April 28, 1960 Abu Abdul, the great magician of all time, gazes into a crystal ball. As he waves a silk scarf over it the foggy mist gradually disappears and he finds Chief Petty Officer Arnold Davis of the United States Navy. He is defending his world's light weight title for the thirtieth time in Madison Square Garden.

The mists form again. As they disappear he sees Martha Miller Nelson as a secretary in the Office of Indian Affairs in Chicago, Illinois.

As this fades away he sees George Walters running the hundred in nine flat, at the National A.A. U. meet at New York City.
