Enjoy Dimes Ball

Chemawa joined in the "March of Dimes" to contribute its share in helping the helpless victims of polio. A March of Dimes dance was sponsored by the school to promote this worthy cause which most of the student body and many employees attended.

The decorations, made by the sixth grade and Art club, were unique and fitted the occasion as there were large paper piggy banks in many colors for wall decorations, artificial dimes hung from the ceiling, and a large wooden piggy bank was on the stage to receive the collections.

Mr. Matt and his orchestra furnished the music for the dancing. During intermission Laura Mae Conway and Carol Ann Hudson entertained the audience with tap dancing numbers and Beverly Hugus, Isobelle George and Rosalie George sang.

Refreshments were sold by members of the senior class. Mrs. Frisbey, of the employees club, donated doughnuts which the seniors sold also. The refreshment sales amounted to $24.93; contributions $60.65; total $85.58.

We who donated our nickels and dimes know it was for a very worthy cause. We know that our dimes marching will join other dimes which eventually will mean children walking

TURNER ASSEMBLY

Seniors of the Turner high school presented an all school assembly to the students of Chemawa on February 3, 1949. This was an exchange assembly between the senior classes of both schools.

The Turner assembly consisted of a style show and music. The girls modeled teen-age apparel for different occasions and seasons of the year.

Included in the musical show was an accordion, saxophone, drums and piano. The girls in the style show presented a musical number. The theme of the style show was woven around a short comedy with a female vocalist applying for a job at a local radio station. However, she did not get the job until she had improved not only her voice but her manners, and had gotten rid of her wad of chewing gum. Thanks, Turner. Come again.

Miss Jean Clair Casey, regional consultant in nursing, was a campus visitor recently from the Portland office.

FOURTH GRADE LAMBS

At school the fourth grade has sheep. One sheep had two little lambs not long ago. The lambs are cute little fellows. Mrs. Mason sometimes sends someone out to play with them. They like to play with us. They drink milk from their mother. The wool on the little lambs' backs is not like the wool on the big sheep's back. I think sheep and lambs are good animals for pets. The little lambs have cute little faces and little short legs. They can hardly run.—Franklin LaPen, 4th Grade.
