CHEMAWA CELEBRATES

Queen Leona Shoaway of Pendleton, Oregon, reigned over the 73rd Anniversary Celebration held in the gymnasium on Feb. 26, 27, and March 2.

Leona and her court of six princesses: Georgia Lucei, Donna Jane, Augustine Phillips, Patsy Ochiho, Lorraine Tom, and Pauline Johnson, were chosen by popular vote of the student body.

Originally planned to be presented just once for the public, the program attracted such a large audience that it was necessary to present it a second time.

Against a background of snow-capped Mt. Hood, Northwest and Navajo students richly dressed in their ceremonial costumes danced many of their tribal dances to thrill the audience. "Mr. Moon" looking down on the celebration reminisced of the many birthdays he has watched and included in his story many of the high lights in the 73 years life of Chemawa. Many interesting facts were revealed that gave us a vivid realization and appreciation of how far Chemawa has come and what it has meant to others in the years past just as it means much to the students today.

No affair is the accomplishment of any individual. It took the efforts of many of the employees and the students to make Chemawa's 73rd Anniversary a happy, successful affair. No birthday party is complete without a birthday cake. That too, was a part of Chemawa's party through the efforts of Mrs. Sanders who baked and decorated the huge cake large enough for all of the students and employees to share.
