

FOOTBALL PRACTICE IS --

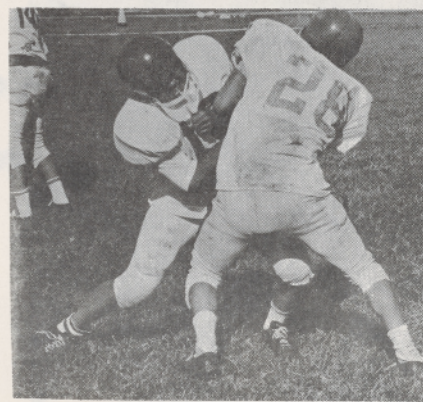

Football practice is trying your hardest to knock your best friend flat on his rear end, and your best friend trying to do the same thing to you.

Football practice is working on a new play again and again until finally everything goes right and you break away for a long, clear gain. Then you have to come back and do it all over again.

Football practice is the coach telling you for the fifteenth time what you (and the rest of the line) are doing wrong. "Now try it again!" he says.

Football practice is hard contact under a hot September sun or a cold October rain, when you could be having a coke with a girl.
