Junior Carnival Raises Funds

Dorms, clubs and classes added to their treasuries at the fund-raising carnival sponsored by the Juniors February 14.

The Juniors, who took a ten per cent share of the earnings of each booth, made a profit of around 90 dollars, which they will use to help finance the Junior-Senior Prom.

Other groups included the NFFE, Block C Club, Corah Ensemble, the Math Lab and the Rally Squad.

Ms. Ellie Esler, Junior Class Adviser, gave credit for the success of the carnival to the class officers and particularly to Vice-President Brad Filkins.

"We also had the most successful cleanup I have ever seen here," Ms. Esler said. "The carnival was over at 3:30, and the gym was ready for the basketball game with Stayton by five."

What does everyone plan to do with the money that they made? The Coral Ensemble hopes to take a performance trip with their share. The math lab will donate their share to one of the classes.

The Block C club hopes to use their share to help pay for letters given to athletes. Chemawa's NFFE chapter will use its share to help support a Salem-area Little League baseball team.

The Outdoor Club plans to use its share to help pay for some of the skiing and fishing trips they go on.

Four Graduated Early This Year

Special mid-term graduation exercises were held for Four Chemawa seniors on January 17.

Bridget Yvonne James, of Taholah, WA; Vernon "Rick" McCraigie, of Seattle, WA; Marlene Marie Moses of Snoqualmie, WA; and Debra Lee Simpson, of Omak, WA, became Chemawa's newest alumni in a special afternoon ceremony in the auditorium.

Mr. Ron Halfmoon, Coordinator for Title IV Civil Rights for the Oregon State Department of Education, gave the commencement address to the graduates and other students.

Superintendent Ed Lonefight presented the diplomas and Rev. Gerald McCray gave the invocation and benediction.

These first members of the Class of 1975 form the latest link in a chain of alumni that now stretches back over ninety years.

Staff to Present Old-Time 'Drammer'

Once again, by popular demand (?), Chemawa's faculty is preparing another evening of drama for the entertainment of students and staff.

This year's production will be an old-fashioned mellerdrammer entitled "Her Fatal Beauty" or "A Shop Girl's Honor". It will be directed by Miss B. J. Graham and will feature Mr. & Mrs. Esler, Ms. Brixius, Mr. Dashney, Mr. Holmes, Ms. Ernstrom and Ms. Pentecost.

A definite production date has not been set yet.
