History Mystery

Gary Conley, Terray Harmon, Kathy Shebley, Russ Brown and Bill Johnson contributed to this report.

Last week's History Mystery, above, was published on page one of the Jan. 31, 1970 issue of The Dalles Chronicle under the headline "Riverfront, downtown projects begin." It was one of two photographs: the first was of work on "a protective dike on the upriver side of boat launching ramp at the small boat harbor on the Columbia River being built by Wasco County highway crews."

The picture above was captioned, "June 1 deadline is what workers will be shooting for in construction of the Tapadera Motel, including a dining room and lounge, as work began this week. Among subcontractors on the project are a number of local firms, including John Milne & Son plumbing, heating and air conditioning, Hire Electric, Brown Roofing, The Dalles

Linoleum, Jack Fisher Painting and Kennelly Glass." Gary Conley correctly identified the construction site, and said the small building in the background, located at the corner of Union Street, was Railway Express, which shipped baggage and packages via the railroad. The Dalles Grain Elevators, since burned and demolished, are also visible. Bill

Johnson also noted the Railway Express, which is now gone as well.

Russ Brown said the view was through what was once the site of The Dalles Hotel, now the location of the Tapadera Motel. The operator of the bulldozer is almost certainly Dale Taylor on his 955, he said.

ARLINGTON — The Rangers have been forced to adjust to a familiar game plan against them recently. Teams have been double-teaming Ben Morris inside in an effort to control the 6-foot 5 post. So far, thanks in part to the outside shooting of Luke and Lance Lindell, that transition is going quite smoothly. The No. 1 ranked Rangers bombed Arlington 74-52 Friday night.

ATHENA—The Sherman Husky boys hoop team remained in second place Saturday, upending third-place Weston-McEwen 59-46 in Athena. Sherman senior Asa Richelderfer scored 20 points to lead all scorers, while Josh Macnab added 12. Justin Miller and Josh Thomas each potted eight points for the Huskies.

HELIS—Like Tigger of Winnie the Pooh fame, the Dufur Ranger girls' basketball team bounced back quickly. After a horrific second half showing in a home loss to St. Paul on Tuesday, the Rangers rallied back, topping

Griswold 47-28 on the road Saturday. "I was happy to see it on the road," said Dufur coach Hal Lindell. "Because that's a long trip (over by Pendleton), especially after we got beat like that the other night."

SALEM (AP)—Gov. John Kitzhaber and the Legislature have been in a perpetual joust over land use planning, and whether that's so in his final legislative session will have a lot to do with who runs the place. Either way, aides suggest, don't assume Kitzhaber will propose a bunch of new laws.
