The Dalles Weekly Chronicle.

Vol. 1.

The Dalles, Oregon, Friday, May 1, 1891.

Number 16.

STRIKES IN PROSPECT.

The Thousand Men Belonging to the Building Trades in Philadelphia Will Join the Big Strike Now Being Processed.

Press reports state that 1,000 men belonging to the building trades in Philadelphia are anticipated to join the big strike now being processed. The Missouri Valley and the Illinois and Indiana points have already massed a large body of workingmen and the strike will be nationwide in character. The movement is an outcome of dissatisfaction over the system of work and wages in the building trades and the demand is for a better understanding of the relations between the employers and the workingmen. The strike is expected to be a long-drawn-out struggle and will affect the entire country.

THE GREAT WAGON.

J. J. Barlow, the well-known wagon manufacturer of Oregon, has just completed the largest wagon ever built in this state. The wagon is a four-horse team, and is designed for the transportation of heavy loads over mountainous and hilly terrains. It is equipped with the latest in technology, including a powerful engine, advanced brake systems, and reinforced axles to withstand the stresses of heavy loads. The wagon is expected to revolutionize the transportation industry in the region.

STRIKES IN PROSPECT.

The labor situation in the mining industry in the western states is worsening, with reports of strikes and wage disputes becoming increasingly common. The miners are demanding higher wages and better working conditions, while the mining companies are resisting any increases in labor costs. The conflict is likely to escalate, with the possibility of wider-reaching labor unrest.

STRIKES IN PROSPECT.

The railroad workers are prepared to go on strike if their demands for better wages and working conditions are not met. The workers are demanding increased pay and improved benefits, but the railroad companies are refusing to budge on their current positions. The labor dispute could have far-reaching implications for the transportation industry and the economy as a whole.

STRIKES IN PROSPECT.

The textile workers are planning to strike to demand better working conditions and higher wages. The workers are unhappy with the current state of affairs in the industry, which they feel is exploitative and unsafe. The strike is expected to be a major blow to the economy and could lead to widespread shortages of textiles.

STRIKES IN PROSPECT.

The construction workers are preparing to strike to demand better pay and working conditions. The workers are demanding a living wage that would enable them to provide for their families, but the construction companies are resisting any increases in labor costs. The strike is likely to have a significant impact on the construction industry and the economy.

STRIKES IN PROSPECT.

The farmers are planning to strike to demand better prices for their crops and better treatment from the government. The farmers feel that they are being exploited by the large agribusinesses, which are driving down prices and exploiting the farmers. The strike is likely to have a significant impact on the food market and could lead to widespread shortages of certain crops.