

The Weekly Chronicle.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF WASCOCO COUNTY.

Entered at the Postoffice at The Dalles, Oregon, as second-class matter.

Subscription rates table with columns for term (Weekly, Monthly, Quarterly, Semi-annually, Annually) and price.

T. A. Wood, the level headed real estate man of Portland, strikes the key note to success when he urged Portland to put up money for the business of manufacturing in that city.

Somehow we gained an impression that the Telegram was about as fair and honest a paper as comes to our exchange table; but the following paragraph which appeared in that journal yesterday, has shaken this opinion considerably.

We cannot too earnestly urge upon the readers of the CHRONICLE the imperative necessity that exists for sending to the county conventions only such delegates as can be relied on to support men for legislative offices who are known to be true friends of the dalles portage and an open river.

Nothing can justify the attack made upon the Prineville Chinaman, Ah Doon, by which he was taken from the stage at the muzzles of a half a dozen pistols, held in hand by as many white ruffians who were too cowardly to let their faces be seen and then treated to the indignity, the most humiliating that can be inflicted upon a Chinaman, of having his one cut off.

Brother F. W. Mays of the Pomeroy Independent wields a vigorous pencil. Here is the heading of the leading editorial in his issue of March 10th.

Governor Penroyer says he will not attend the Democratic state convention of his party. He did not attend it four years ago and will not now for the reason that he does not believe that public officials should interfere, even by their presence, with delegate conventions fresh from the body of the people.

This is a season of political activity and good men in all parties ought to use their best influence to save the country from the designs of selfseeking and unprincipled politicians.

The air is full of warnings to corrupt and tricky politicians and scarcely a day passes that does not add another illustration to the oft repeated truth that no party or faction can deceive all the people all the time.

The Salem Journal, as clean a paper as is published in the state, and one which never caters for a moment to the saloon influence, is justly severe, as we think, upon the two apostles of prohibition who are now lecturing in this city, because their bitter and often extravagant abuse of the republican party exposes them to them to the suspicion of being simply "John-the-Baptists of the democratic campaign orators who will be along a little later, and thus these pretended prohibitionists only expose their real mission and destroy the possibility of the thing they would ostensibly uphold."

The following, from the Lawrence county, Mo., Herald presents a woeful contrast to this land of sunshine and flowers on this blessed eve of Saint Patrick's day in the mornin'.

Fifty years ago, says the Astorian, the laborer worked more hours and harder for his pittance than the men of today dream of. He was poorer fed, poorer clad and poorer housed.

To those who profess to think that the duty on wool has diminished the price, the state of the cotton market may be commended for examination.

The Lane county Pomona Grange has passed a resolution urging the attorney general or other proper state officers to bring suit against the county court of some one of the counties which have refused to accept the findings of the state board of equalization, so as to compel the court to review its action and make the levy in conformity with the requirements of the state board.

A HISTORIC CASTLE.

Burg Hohenzollern, the Cradle of the reigning family of Germany.

In the broad valley shortly beyond this point rises a solitary peak crowned with the battlements of Burg Hohenzollern. For miles on every side it is the most striking feature of the country.

It has been twice in ruins, and twice built up again by the united efforts of all the family. The present castle was commenced in 1850, with a view not merely of preserving the cradle of the Prussian kings, but equally to represent in south Germany a military stronghold of some value.

He had climbed Mont Blanc's smooth, icy heights and stood upon the top; he'd traced the Nile clear to its source, with ne'er a thought to stop; he'd tramped across Sahara's wastes till he was like to drop; he'd fought on many a bloody field and heard the bullets pop; he'd cleaned out gangs of ruffians and never called a cop; he'd brought full many an elephant to mother earth, kerlop, and caused the savage tiger to enjoy its final hop; and his bravery had cost him many a scar.

But when he returned to Boston hero's honors for to share, he acted like a man whom it was no big job to scare; he'd run and hide behind the trees, and high would raise his hair; he'd tremble and he'd shake and blanch, in evident despair; his heart would beat, his eyes would bulge and he would cry, "Be-ware!"
