OFFICIAL PAPER OF WASCO COUNTY.

Entered at the Postoffice at The Dalles, Oregon, as second-class matter. SUBSCRIPTION RATES. BY MAIL (POSTAGE PREPAID) IN ADVANCE. eekly, 1 year..... 6 months.

A newspaper genius in New York has written a letter in which he undertakes to state the wealth of the most noted men of the country. It is generally easy to overestimate the fortunes of wealthy men, but in this case other inaccuracies occur. The list now going the rounds is misleading as to some men well known in Washington. The second name on the list is that of Levi P. Morton, Vice-President of the United States. His fortune is stated at $5,000,000. Mr. Morton is worth twenty millions. Further on ex-Secretary Whitney is put down as having $5,000,000. Mr. Whitneys income is over a million a year, and while it would probably be hard for him to tell just how much he is worth, his property and that of his brother-inlaw, Oliver Payne, being very much mixed together, yet it would obviously be ridiculous to put down Mr. Whitney said to be $100,000. A single piece of derpenalty of prosecution. real estate in Chicago owned by him is worth much more than that. Judge Fuller is worth more than $500,000, 28 everybody knows, who knows anything about him.

It is now explained that a truce has tween Mr. Cleveland and Tammany, unthis will strike that large majority of and overwhelmingly in favor of the recognition of Tammany as an enemy whose destruction was imperatively required; it was a requirement admitting jubilant over their advertising scheme tage-seekers, to force them into the camof no delay or qualification. There has in Washington yesterday. President paign of the populists. Whenever a new leader appears in the official social circles of the capital her pedigree is called up for discussion. Mrs. Foster, wife of the new secretary of state, now succeeds to the social precedence in the cabinet circle enjoyed in late years by Mrs. Blaine. The ancestral line of Mrs. Foster represents some of the best men of our colonial, revolutionary, and national history, and she is by they came from and where they went to her natural qualities and by reason of is a mystery. A similar scene was wither experience in diplomatic circles nessed in New Orleans, seven years ago. abroad and at home, well adapted to grace the position she now occupies.

Emmons Blaine appears to have been in many respects a remarkable man. He had many of those traits which distinguish his illustrious father. Instead of employing them in the direction of politics he chose to apply them to the more practical uses of a business career. and the wisdom of this was illustrated in the rapid rise the young man made within the last five years. It is believed that he would have become a great influence in the profession of railway management; of this he gave every promise.

The valley of the Columbia north of Marcus is even a greater surprise to the visitor who traverses that section for the first time than the Colville country. The prospect from the railroad is so slightly indicative of the marvelous richness and diversity of its resources that the traveler feels a good deal as Stanley must have done when he penetrated the interior of Africa and found there the expansive plains and endless forests, which he describes so graphically in the narrative of his last journey.

At last the cause of the partial failure of crops in some portions of the Palouse has been discovered. Editor Mays of treatise on "Darkest England," it is Pomeroy gives the reason as follows: said. "The planets are too close together for good crops this year. They come too take place to suit vegetation." Farmers will feel relieved at being able by this discovery to acquit themselves of careless and insufficient cultivation.

MORE MICROBES THAN DUST.

It seems that an enthusiastic and vigorous use of that humble implement, the broom, is not always conducive to the best sanitary conditions. It may even be made an insidious foe of health A foreign correspondent of the New York Herald quotes M. Manfredi, a savant of Naples, as saying that in the dust of that city he has found 700,000,-000 microbes per gramme." More microbes than dust, apparently. It is the broom, of course, that stirs up the Address all communication to "THE CHRON-ICLE," The Dalles, Oregon. thickly settled microbes and sends them flying in the air to work mischief in the lungs and throats of Neapolitans. "The broom," continues M. Manfredi, "should therefore disappear from the means of keeping highways in order, and to water alone should be confided the care of removing the dust which covers the streets." Until some one takes a census of the dust piles of our sister city, Portland-on-Wallamet, it is impossible to say whether or not denizens of the Oregon metropolis are any better off than the Italians. But it would be a pretty good idea to wet the streets before brooming them; or, at least, to have a a sprinkling cart preceed those ponderous wagons with rotary brushes which lumber through the business districts at night, sending up into the air whirling eddies of desiccated filth.

This dispatch states that over five-hundred representative democrats were assembled in convention at Harrington, for the purpose of denouncing the recent fusion with the peoples party, and to place a straight-out democratic ticket in the field. Chairman Simpson, in his opening address, stated that the recent democratic convention, by fusion with the peoples party, had deprived the true democrats of the privilege of a state democratic ticket, and had bartered away the political birthright of the old party to the populists, in opposition to the will of a respectable minority. > CHICAGO, July 21 .- Dispatches from Ottawa say that the notorious smuggler and bandit Bochard stands a very fair chance of falling into the clutches of the customs authorities. A portion of his contraband cargo has been captured, and a cordon of swift cruisers is closing in upon his retreat. Capt. Gordon, of the royal navy, who has had charge of the recent movements of the cruisers, received a dispatch last evening from the Gulf, which mast put him in a very good humor. It was from Commander Wakem, of the cruiser La Canadienne, and was sent from Mingan on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It stated that the cruiser had been successful in capturing the schooner Willie, of Quebec, Captain Bruin, with a large quantity of contraband goods on board. These the skipper acknowledged he had received from the notorious Bochard after he had escaped from Constance in his schooner, which turns out to be the Busy Bee, of Quebec. Commander Wakem received further information from the crew of the captured schooner. which will greatly assist the authorities in chasing Bochard into close quarters. The Constance is due to arrive at cruisers, the La Canadienne, Constance Anxious to find out if the skin was affected Dr. Buckland scraped away the hair from it with his finger nail.

Then he threw the rat away and started bomeward. He had not walked 100 vards before, all of a sudden, he felt as if somebody had come behind him and struck him a severe blow on the head and neck. At the same time he experienced a most acute pain and sense of oppression about the chest. He knew instantly that he was poisoned, and so lost no time in seeking an apothecary shop, where he was dosed with brandy and ammonia. He came very near dying. Undoubtedly a small quantity of venom had made its way into his sys-tem through a little cut beneath his nail, where it had been separated slightly from the flesh in the process of cleaning the nail with a penknife a little time before. - Washington Post.
