President M. E. Ingalls of the Chesapeake and Ohio and Big Four railroads has set a bow of promise against the dark cloud of railroad labor troubles. In his annual report to the stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, just issued, he advocates a co-operative plan of profit sharing with the employees, and considers this the best method of meeting the growing difficulties of the labor problem. It is said that this would be a unique move for a railroad company to take, as no large company has ever tried the co-operative system. The board of directors agrees with President Ingalls in the efficacy of the proposed departure, and the president has recommended that the stockholders appoint a committee to consider the plan and take such action as will legalize anything the directors may do on that line. There are vast possibilities in Mr. Ingalls' suggestion of the plan of profit-sharing can hardly be called an experiment, as it is a feature in several large and successful manufacturing and mercantile concerns of this country. To make railroad employees, in part, their own employers; to make them personally and aggressively interested in the well-being of the road and give them that sense of part ownership incidental to profit-sharing, might do a great deal toward advancing the millennium of capital and labor. It is a most interesting suggestion, and comes with a special emphasis at this time of trouble and unrest.

The New York Post has begun to speculate upon the number of ways in which Mr. Cleveland can be elected without New York. There are several, each more unlikely of realization than its predecessor. But while the tendency to impossible combination is to madness near allied, there is just a glimmer of sanity in the recognition of the fact that New York is for Benjamin Harrison, by a hopeless majority.

After five months in the west Mr. Jay Gould has arrived in New York and is reported to be "as brown as a western cowboy." Is that an augury of the color to which the lambs will be done, or are we to expect that his operations will make the atmosphere of Wall street blue?

The Oregon democratic papers are lamenting the failure of negotiations for a fusion with the people's party to beat the Harrison electors in this state in November, but it is believed, nevertheless, that they still hope to work some scheme extensive enough to mix up the electoral vote of Oregon.

Prof. Garner, the man who thinks monkey chatter is real talk, is lecturing before learned bodies in Great Britain in support of his theory. His journey to central Africa, where he will enter into communication with the various ape families, will not be much longer delayed.

The mother of the Rev. Robert Fulton Cray of Poughkeepsie is the only surviving child of Robert Fulton, the inventor of the steamboat. It would not seem inappropriate, to a man up a tree, for some one of the new ocean flyers to be named after Fulton.

Mr. Depew is always fortunate enough to be abroad when his railroad is involved in labor troubles. After H. Walter Webb has weathered the storm Chanoxy comes home smiling and as popular as ever.

Belva Lockwood maintains a deeper silence than any of the other presidential candidates, and it is feared that her maid has used up that letter of acceptance for curl papers instead of sending it to its destination.

That New Jersey minister who struck for higher salary has not as yet set fire to the church nor has he been hanging around the church property with his pockets full of rocks to fight off the scab minister who takes his place.

The Commercial Advertiser says: "In the country districts of the state of New York the democrats have always been in a small minority. But their confederate tariff plank is fast making that minority smaller still."

Mrs. Potter Palmer is to drive the last nail in the woman's building at the worlds fair with a Nebraska-made hammer. It is understood that two nails will be used and that she will aim at the wrong one.

In 1888, under Mr. Cleveland, the balance of trade against the United States was $23,683,448. In 1892, under Mr. Harrison and McKinley law, the balance in our favor is $202,944,342.

ARE ALL STRIKES FAILURES?

The defeat at Homestead, the disaster at Coal Creek, and the collapse of the strike at Buffalo provoke the inquiry: Are all strikes failures? Do great strikers ever succeed? Workmen have gone out from all sorts of employment, confident, defiant, and loyal to each other, only to fail. Other workmen have been found to take their places upon the terms which the strikers refused to accept. Therefore many assert that strikes, not having accomplished the specific purpose which they set out to accomplish, should have "failure" written up against them.

But this is a very narrow view to take of the subject. Every strike has left its lesson and its impression, some superficial and others deep, upon labor conditions. Strikes have served to mark the limits of oppression by employers and the autocratic demands of employees. They have demonstrated repeatedly to managers of corporations that there is a line in wage slavery beyond which they cannot go. At the same time innumerable failures have taught striking employees that there are demands which cannot be enforced, no matter how strongly they are urged by strikes, boycotts, and the intimidation of non-union men. Organized labor has a library full of experience acquired in striking for more than the labor market would yield to it. Corporate monopolies have lost millions in acquiring the knowledge of just how far they can go in reducing wages or imposing restrictive conditions.

While strikes have perhaps failed as strikes, it cannot be assumed that they have failed as lessons. No statistics can be obtained, nor can any estimate be made as to the number of strikes which have been prevented by the spectacle of strike failures. Dissatisfied employees will learn from Homestead and Buffalo to moderate in their demands and prudent in the methods employed to enforce them. Employers will likewise learn wisdom from these same experiences. The world in general learns that an honorable, fair and effective method of settling labor difficulties must be found.

The members of the La Conner party arrived home the other day, says the Puget sound Mail, after a twelve days' expedition to the snow-crowned peak of Mount Baker. On the morning of the 6th the party left for Mount Baker. After traveling through an almost impenetrable jungle for four miles they struck a river and traveled a few miles more and camped for the night at the snow line of Mount Baker. While the boys were busy preparing supper a herd of wild goats ran close to the camp, and all hands fired, but none were killed. After breakfast on the morning of the 7th the party started for the summit of Mount Baker traveling over snow, ranging from four to 200 feet deep, reaching the crater, within 500 feet of the summit, about noon. One member of the party went within 150 feet of the summit, and said he could easily have made it were it not for a crack in the snow. They found an acre of ground full of little holes, through which fumes of sulphur escaped. They pried into one with a stick and it soon began to burn and the lava flowed down the hill in rivulets. It was pure sulphur. Then began the descent, which was accomplished in the short space of time of one hour and a half. Mr. Gray says he had always deemed it impossible to go to the top of Mount Baker, but is now satisfied that it can be done and without much difficulty.

The Philadelphia Ledger suggests that inasmuch as this is the centenary year of the canal system of New York, the celebration of the event should be made the opportunity of beginning a monument to Governor De Witt Clinton, to whom more than to any other individual, the state is indebted for the existence of the Erie canal, and whose distinguished public services have not been commemorated, as have the deeds of many less deserving men, by an appropriate monument of stone or bronze, but the celebration is to take a less sentimental and more practical form. The union for the improvement of the canals of the state of New York proposes to celebrate the centennial by holding a big canal convention this fall, at which not only will the past usefulness of the canals be celebrated, but steps will be taken to insure their further improvement, so as to maintain their capacity or continued service to the commerce of the state, for the friends of the canals believe that the present is a critical period in their history.

The work of surveying the Colville reservation will be begun in about two weeks, or as soon as final instructions from the treasury department are received. The Colville Republican says: "It is thought that only the base lines will be run this year, and possibly the Indian land will be laid off also."

Herr Natchaper, of the Vienna corn exchange, thinks Europe only hope for successful competition with the wheat growers of America, lies in the digging of a network of canals in Central Europe. Thus does the advantages of water transportation crop out over the civilized world.

THE CHOLERA IN NEW YORK.

Hamburg dispatches report the present cholera epidemic the worst that has ever visited that city, and every hour the situation becomes worse. People are dying off like sheep and the plague is spreading. Bitter imprecations are heaped upon the authorities for their pigheadedness in letting the victims lie unburied to scatter contagion among all, while they hunted for papers to show the age, occupation, etc., of the dead person. A reign of terror prevails, and every person who can possibly do so is fleeing from the city. In many parts of the city groceries, bakeries and butcher shops have been closed by the police, the owners and their salesmen having been stricken down while attending to business.

The imminent and immediate dangers to the port of New York, from arrivals from Hamburg has increased the past two days by arrivals from Germany notably, and the directed passengers have been landed on Hoffman island. While there is cause for alarm it is said the quarantine regulations in the United States are so perfect that our health officers have great confidence in their power to prevent the spread of the disease. Time alone will tell. With the utmost precaution cholera may cross the continent to this coast, even to this city. With our daily railway traffic such a thing is more liable to occur than in 1850, when it last visited this coast in its worst form, when thousands of emigrants were buried in lonely graves along the trail, victims of a disease of which little was then known beyond its deadly character. Some of these graves are not far from us, a number being in the Blue mountains and on the sandy wastes along the Columbia river, while more are to be found on the high plateaus about Fort Hall, Idaho. Cholera is a filth disease, partaking in this of the nature of the various forms of typhoid, scarlet and kindred fevers, and is attended with some of the same premonitory symptoms, hence that cleanliness which is akin to godliness, should be elaborated upon with profit to the human family.

Current Topics.

The close season for game expires tomorrow, but the Hood River Glacier thinks this does not matter much, as most of the pheasants and other desirable birds have been killed off. Similar reports come from all sections west of the Cascade mountains. If no efforts are made to enforce the law it should be repealed, since, while it falls to protect the game, it turns it over to the mercies of the lawless and prevents the law-abiding from getting a taste of its delicate flavor.

While prospecting along Salmon river, Eli Mason, of Garfield, discovered a beautiful crystal cave. From the ceiling and on all sides the rocks are covered by a white formation, probably largely composed of lime, the result of centuries of the drippings of mineral water. From the ceiling hang fantastically shaped stalactites, but their counterparts, the stalagmites, are missing because the floor of the cave is covered with water.

Vancouver's harbor is to be improved. The $33,000 appropriated by congress for that purpose is to be devoted to the construction of a dam across Columbia slough at the head of Hayden's island. The government engineer department has already advertised for bids for its construction.

Snow mountain, Harney county, is now thought by miners to contain the vast deposit of gold and silver so much talked of and sought after this summer. Charles Norton has made two assays of rock found there, one averaging $990 and the other over $800 per ton.

A Beau of 1829.

When grandpa went a-wooing, He wore a satin vest, A trail of running roses Embroidered on the breast. The pattern of his trousers, His linen, white and fine, Were all the latest fashion In eighteen twenty-nine.

Grandpa was a fine-looking young fellow then, so the old ladies say, and he is a fine-looking old gentleman now. For the past score of years he has been a firm believer in the merits of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. "It renewed my youth," he frequently says. It is the only blood purifier and liver invigorator guaranteed to benefit or cure, or money promptly refunded. It cures liver disease, dyspepsia, scrofulous sores, skin eruptions, and all diseases of the blood. For lingering coughs and consumption (which is lung-scrofula in its early stages) it is an unparalleled remedy.

Saved His Child's Life.

A. N. Dillferbough, York, Neb., says: "The other day I came home and found my little boy down with cholera morbus, my wife scared, not knowing what to do. I went straightway and got a 25 cent bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and gave it according to directions. You never saw such a change in a child. His limbs and body were cold. I rubbed his limbs and body with my hands, and after I had given him the second dose he went to sleep, and, as my wife says, 'from a death-bed he was up playing in three hours.' It saved me a doctor bill of about three dollars, and what is better, it saved my child. I can recommend it with a clear conscience." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

OREGON'S SHOWING AT CHICAGO NEXT YEAR

Remains in doubt, but there is no question about the PORTLAND INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION—which opens September 21st and closes October 22d, being the best Exposition ever held on the Pacific Coast. So far as Oregon is concerned it will be the forerunner of the Exposition at Chicago in 1893. The principal attractions are the magnificent American Band of Providence, R. I. An art collection valued at $350,000, and embracing some of the greatest pictures owned in the United States. Immense Horticultural and Agricultural exhibits, the result of the combined efforts of almost every county in the state. A mineral exhibit exceeding all former years. A Stock Department showing tremendous progress. To these are added a larger number of exhibits than ever before; including a magnificent electrical display under the combined Thomson-Houston and Edison Companies. All manufactures in full operation. Government models of Battle Ships. The wonderful Hall of Mystery. The marvelous "Little World," the product of a mechanical genius; all interspersed by novelties incident to the popular special days. Everything new and nothing dead. Greatly reduced rates on all transportation lines.

THE DALLES CHRONICLE. Daily and Weekly Editions.

THE CHRONICLE was established for the express purpose of faithfully representing The Dalles and the surrounding country, and the satisfying effect of its mission is everywhere apparent. It now leads all other publications in Wasco, Sherman, Gilliam, a large part of Crook, Morrow and Grant counties, as well as Klickitat and other regions north of The Dalles, hence it is the best medium for advertisers in the Inland Empire. The DAILY CHRONICLE is published every evening in the week (Sundays excepted) at $6.00 per annum. The WEEKLY CHRONICLE on Fridays of each week at $1.50 per annum. For advertising rates, subscriptions, etc., address THE CHRONICLE PUBLISHING CO., The Dalles, Oregon.
