Deans Dehorning Penett.

Farmers and stockraisers universally agree that dehorning cattle is a great advantage. The cattle become more docile vantage. The cattle become more docale and can be handled much easier, and are easier cared for than those with horns. All farmers and stockmen also agree than the proper thing to do is stop the growth of the horns on the calf thereby avoiding the troublesome and painful operation of using the saw. Dean's Deborning pencil has been thoroughly tested everywhere and thousands of farmers and stockmen can testify as to the advantage of using the same on young stock. It makes no sore and causes no pain. By one application the horn will drop off in a few days. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction if applied as directed. Best of references furnished.
