Whether it was accidentally loosed from its moorings, or whether it is the sole evidence of a tragedy covered by the onward-rushing waters of the mighty river, may never be known.

The Smith Tragedy.

E. Ross Smith, who shot his lady love and himself in Chicago, particulars of which are related on our first page, was formerly a resident of The Dalles, where he attended the Wasco Independent Academy for three years. He was intimately acquainted with many of our people and moved in the best circles of society. He was a nephew of Mrs. Sam Creighton of 3-Mile. The news of his tragic action has proven a shock to all his friends and acquaintances. Letters written to his friends in this city but a short time since gave no indication that he was contemplating anything out of the ordinary. It is believed by those who knew him best that he was temporarily insane at the time he committed the deed.

A Long Train.

The train which arrived from Portland at 2:30 Saturday morning was composed of fourteen cars, about half of which were Pullmans. There were two engines, the first of which stopped just at the east entrance of the trestle. It was a pretty sight with their twinkling lights, and another car length would have just filled the entire length of the trestle.

OUTLOOK AT THE LOCKS.

Work Will Be Commenced Monday at a New Quarry.

It is reported that work will actively commence at the locks on Monday and be prosecuted to a termination.

One of the Day brothers has just arrived at the Cascade Locks from Vancouver, having consummated a deal last Wednesday for the Monaghan quarry, which is six miles above the cascades on the Washington side of the river. The remaining rock from the upper quarry, which was in operation last season, will first be used. The stone from the Monaghan quarry is pronounced to be first-class. It is now so late that but little work will be done in the canal until August, when the river is at low water again. In the meantime the necessary rock will all be quarried and hauled to the vicinity of where it will be needed.

Yesterday the two locomotives were steamed up and were put to work hauling and placing materials about the yards, and the sheds are now being cleaned up and put in readiness for use. The outlook at present is promising that work will be prosecuted with vigor.

LOCATING THE ASYLUM.

The Interests of the Patients Alone Should be Served.

The asylum would be a very nice thing for any one of the numerous competitors; but it should not and, of course, will not be necessarily located in the place offering the largest bonus and making the strongest pull. It becomes a weighty matter when it is considered that the well-being of hundreds of people for many years are in the balance, afflicted with a curse beside which every ill takes second rank. If the hot water of Union will restore reason the more quickly to the unfortunate sufferers from mental aberration then Union should be selected; if the lower yearly temperature of Baker City is more conducive to establish reason upon her throne, by all means let Baker City have it; if Pendleton, Heppner or any of the contestants have anything of especial and unique value to offer as a health restorer let the claim be duly considered. While The Dalles would be pleased if awarded the choice of the commission for the asylum, it desires to gain it only if by so doing the interests and well-being of the patients are better served. The opinion of the asylum physicians, themselves, composed of Dr. Rowland and the two consulting physicians should be valuable in this connection. All other considerations can be fairly weighed by the intelligent commission; but it is within the province of this medical board to determine what point is the best for health, guided by their undoubted knowledge of what conditions are best to restore sanity and promote the general health.

Lieut. Taylor Guiltless.

A few days since THE CHRONICLE published the report that Lieut. Taylor was obstructing the work at the locks. The following letter, which we cheerfully publish, shows the report to be an error. Our source of information at the time seemed to be unquestionable, as will sometimes happen in the best regulated of newspapers:

CASCADE LOCKS, March 30th, 1893. ED. CHRONICLE:—My attention was called to an article in your issue of 25th inst. stating that our relations with the officer in charge at the locks were not harmonious. On this point you were misinformed, and we will esteem it a favor if, in your next issue, you will state, that in no case have we been denied the use of any portion of the government plant granted to us by the terms of our contract. Every opportunity to advance the work has been afforded us. And in our opinion Lieut. Taylor worthily fills the responsible position to which he has been assigned, and is entitled to, and should receive fair treatment from the press of Oregon within that portion thereof to be benefited by the completion of the Cascade Locks. Yours Truly, J. G. DAY.

Bunce Men at Work.

During the past few days the union depot has been infested with confidence men, as many as eight of them being seen around at one time. One of these "I-knew-your-uncle down the valley" men forced his acquaintance upon a well-dressed traveler yesterday morning, and while telling him a funny story, relieved him of his little roll, amounting to $26. This is the first successful operation that has come to the notice of the depot officials for some time. The officials can "spot" a confidence man every time, and they never use much ceremony in driving the slippery fellows from their stamping-ground. Yesterday morning four of them had been under surveillance for some time, but were lost track of only for a few moments, when they succeeded in "doing up" their victim.—Oregonian.

The funds are raised entirely by subscription, and so enthusiastic are the people that it is expected there will not be a dollar of debt when they are completed. The new telephone company is pushing things. It is composed of energetic young men, and plenty of capital back of them. It is expected that through communication will be had at an early day.

SOME ANCIENT DEAD.

Queer Manner of Burial Adopted by People Unknown to History.

In the John Day rivers region are to be seen some very peculiarly constructed burying places, evidently of a quite ancient origin, and, of whose construction it remains for future archeologists to determine. The writer of this, a number of years since, discovered one of these monuments of an age long past in the low Pine mountain, near the western part of Grant county, and about twelve miles north from old camp Watson. This mound, composed of the basaltic rock so abundant in that region, was of conical form, about twenty feet in diameter at the base, and had apparently originally been about ten feet in height. The top of this queer pile was covered to a depth of perhaps two feet with ashes, and bones—human bones—as many pieces were large enough to be readily distinguished; also many pieces of flint and bone arrow heads, spearheads, flint knives and other implements and ornaments. On removing the layer of flat stones constituting the top, another layer of ashes, bones, etc., was found. This was continued until the bottom of the pile was reached, when the skeletons of about twenty of these unknown people were disclosed to view. This lower and last layer was not burned like the rest, but were very fragile. Here was found some very good specimens of arrow heads, spearheads, pieces of pipes nicely carved, and numerous other relics of stone and bone.

The remains were of small as well as large persons, bones of small children being found. They had apparently been placed there systematically, as the feet were in every instance placed to the east, with the face toward the rising sun. I afterward discovered two more of these strange tombs near the banks of the John Day river, and also another one on Rock creek on the eastern side of the same river. These latter ones I did not investigate very closely, but they presented the same general appearance as the one described, and it was an effort to have to pass them with a casual examination, but I was then engaged in the pursuit of the oreodons, entelodons, rhinoceros, etc., then abounding in the magnificent fossil beds of that region. It would be of great interest to know just who these people were, and the objects which led them to adopt this strange mode of disposing of their dead. It is strange that, with the encouragement shown toward researches of this nature in the east, so very little is known of it here, where such splendid opportunity presents itself. Some one will say, "Why doesn't he do it himself?" I will tell you why: I have not the money. That great requisite which is required of us all in the acquirement of useful knowledge for ourself and others, I possess very little of.

A finer field for research, in a scientific way, by one with means, energy and taste, it would be hard to find than is presented by our beautiful state, with its generous wealth of all that goes to make glad the heart of the lover of the beauties, the wonders, and the mysteries of the works of a Divine Creator, here awaiting his pleasure to unfold.

Hard on Chinese Pheasants.

The cold weather and heavy snows of last winter were very hard on the Chinese pheasants, and in fact on all the feathered tribes. It was thought a great many Mongolian pheasants had perished from cold and hunger, but from what a Vancouver paper says it would seem that a great many had survived: "Chinese pheasants are very numerous on the bottoms in spite of the hard winter. A sportsman informed us that a cock could be heard crowing in nearly every brush pile or thicket last Sunday in his rambles, and disputes the theory that many of these birds perished during the winter."

Medal Contest.

The following programme will be presented at the court house tomorrow night. It is for the gold medal and will be of exceptional merit:

Ik Marvel's Reveries of a Bachelor.

Not many books by America authors will receive from book lovers so nearly unanimous a verdict of "delightful" as Ik Marvel's (Donald G. Mitchell) "Reveries of a Bachelor"; so the new edition of it, reduced in price from $1.25 to 20 cents (postage 5 cents extra) just now offered by John B. Alden, Publisher, is sure of an immense sale. It is a very pretty volume, large type and dainty cloth binding, notwithstanding its fabulously low price, which is accounted for by the expiration of copyright and the passing into Mr. Alden's hands from the higher priced publishers. Mr. Alden's Catalogue of Choice Books, 128 pages, issued monthly and sent for a 2 cent stamp is a veritable "liberty gold mine." Address, John B. Alden, Publisher, 57 Rose Street, New York.

Noon Train Late.

The 1 o'clock train, which is generally on time, did not arrive today, due to a slide near Bonneville—how extensive cannot be learned, but a wild rumor was to the effect that it was abandoned. This is impossible, for work will be hastened as rapidly as possible in clearing up the mass of rock and the train again started on its eastward way. Our "noon" train is a model of regularity, and we know that only the severest kind of pressure will prevent it from fulfilling its daily engagement. Its motto is "better five minutes early than five minutes late."

No Improvement.

The insane asylum at Salem now has among the patients a deaf mute. Her name is Miss Sophia Deekter. She is 18 years of age, and she came from The Dalles. She was born with what is known as a malformation of the base of the brain, which is the cause of her insanity. She was taken to Salem about five months ago and placed in the school with hopes of her recovering her mind, but at the end of that time she had not even learned to distinguish the difference between any of the letters of the alphabet.—Astoria Examiner.

Guiltily Charged.

The argument in the trial for manslaughter of Mrs. Dr. Tom Yann, was finished at 10 o'clock yesterday, and Judge Munly's charge consumed 15 minutes. At 11:45 the jury returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment, and recommended the accused woman to the court's mercy. She accepted the verdict stolidly. Mr. McGinn notified the court that he had secured some new evidence which he desired to present, and he was granted ten days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

Good Postmasters.

On page 22 of the Official Guide for March, 1893, we find that three post-offices in Wasco county have been kept in such manner as to secure the special commendation of the department at Washington. The three lucky, or rather say diligent ones, are Antelope, Cascade Locks and Wamic. We venture to say that there are but few people who have any idea of the care, diligence, painstaking work and constant attention required of fourth-class postmasters throughout these United States.

The Regulator.

And still the Regulator company is doing good for the people of Klickitat county. They are about to enter into an agreement with the stage line, R. B. Hood, whereby a through line will be made from Portland to Centerville and Goldendale on light freight expressage and passenger traffic. We have been informed that passenger rates will be $2.50 from Centerville to Portland via the stage and Regulator. If this combination materializes, hurrah for the Regulator!—Klickitat Leader.

A Gold Medal Contest.

Tuesday evening of next week a medal oratorical contest will be held in the court house. Excellent music has been arranged, which together with some other interesting things, will make a very fine programme. Encourage these earnest workers with your presence. Admission 25 cents.

SIX SPASMS A DAY.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind. GENTLEMEN: I never lost an opportunity to recommend Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine to any one afflicted with nervous complaints with the assurance that it will not disappoint them. When our boy was eighteen months old he was attacked with violent spasms. Sometimes he would have five or six spasms in a single day. We tried many physicians without benefit; finally our druggist recommended Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We tried a bottle, and he was benefited from the first dose. We used three bottles, and I am happy to say the child was ENTIRELY CURED. We used no other remedy, and his cure is complete. He is now three years old and perfectly healthy. You are at liberty to use my name in endorsing the PRAISE OF THIS WONDERFUL REMEDY. S. C. HEACOX, Agent Pacific Express Co. Hastings, Nebraska, April 6th, 1892.
