Boston business men have almost organized a company, which will soon conduct one of the largest stock yards and slaughter houses in the world. It will be at Fort Worth, Tex., on the Trinity River, about two miles from the city proper. The prime mover in the operation is G. W. Simpson, one of the originators of the Omaha Stock yards, who for years past has been identified in the cattle and stock-raising industry. The concern will employ 400 men, and will handle 1,000 cattle and 2,000 hogs a day, and the stock yards will accomodate over 3,000,000 cattle a year and a proportionate number of sheep and hogs. A gentleman conversant with the deal said: 'Mr. Simpson finds that cattle can be obtained in Texas that will answer the purpose just as well, if not better, than those of Kansas and other Northern states, and thinks the business can be carried on as advantageously as in Omaha and other places. Range cattle can be obtained there three months in the year more than they can up North on account of the chmate. They expect to supply not only the Northern markets, but the Southern as well, and, in fact, the field is unlimited."
