Sense of Smell in Dogs. It has often been proven that dogs are able to track their masters through crowded streets, where it would be impossible to attribute their accuracy to anything except the sense of smell graph wires. They expect to have it alone. Mr. Romanes, the naturalist, built to The Dalles in the next two once made some interesting experiments as to this wonderful power, as exhibited in his own dog. In these tests, the naturalist found that his dumb friend could easily follow in the tracks of his master, though he was far out of sight, and that too, after no less than eleven persons had followed, stepping exactly in the tracks made by Mr. Romanes, it being the deliberate intention to confuse the senses of the poor dog if possible. Further experi-ments proved that the animal tracked the boots instead of the man, for when Mr. Romanes put on new footgear the dog failed entirely.
