THE QUARANTINE LAW.

Hints from the Surgeon General of the Marine Hospital Service.

Dr. Walter Wyman, the supervising surgeon general of the Marine hospital service, is the man who is charged with perfecting the details of the national quarantine law with respect to its execution. Rules and regulations have been adopted and transmitted to the various quarantine stations and ports of entry, as well as to foreign ports. Dr. Wyman, in response to an invitation from a Boston Herald correspondent, gives the following interesting summary of his plans and the scope of the Marine hospital service as a bureau:

"The law of February 15, 1893, establishes a new departure in the manner of quarantine," said Dr. Wyman, "by providing quarantine detention of vessels, immigrants, personal effects or cargo at infected foreign ports. Of course, there is no direct United States statute which can be enforced in a foreign port, but the government may say to vessels on the other side that unless certain precautions are taken they cannot enter at a United States port. That they shall be fined five thousand dollars if they do not have a bill of health signed by the consul or by the medical officer specially detailed by the president for that purpose, before sailing for America.

"Medical officers are detailed for this purpose only at ports which are considered dangerous. The quarantine regulations for foreign ports provide first for inspection. This inspection is preliminary to the signing of the bill of health. An inspection is required also of all vessels carrying passengers sailing from European, Asiatic, African, South American, Central American, Mexican and West Indian ports. Freight vessels, unless from infected ports, will not require inspection, though the consul or officer must be satisfied that everything is in a sanitary condition. On the North American coast and inland waters vessels are exempt from inspection so long as a port is free from contagious infection. An infected port, to be within the meaning of the law, is a port where a contagious or infectious disease has been communicated to one or more persons through the medium of an infected person, infected baggage or otherwise. A port is not infected where one or a small number of cases has been imported, but where the disease has not been communicated to others.

"Passengers are divided into two classes, cabin and steerage. The term immigrant we do not recognize. If a vessel sails from an infected port each cabin passenger must produce evidence as to his exact place of abode during the four days just preceding embarkation, and if he or his baggage has been exposed to contagion he shall be detained at the pleasure of the medical officer in charge.

"Steerage passengers from any infected port must be detained five days under medical observation in specially designated barracks or houses during their stay, subject to the usual sanitary precautions of bathing, fumigation, etc. If cholera should break out no steerage passenger will be allowed to embark until seven days or longer after the conclusion of the last case."

AN ANCIENT HOUSE.

It Is Supposed to Be the Oldest Residence in the United States.

In Santa Fe, N. M., stands what is supposed to be the oldest house in the United States. Built before 1540, of adobe and fragments of stone, it stands to-day in more habitable condition than many of New York city's structures which are crammed with human life.

YE ANCIENT HOUSE.

Close to this building stands the old church of San Miguel, erected first in the sixteenth century, but destroyed during the Pueblo revolution of 1680, and rebuilt in 1710. Tradition relates that the house we illustrate was occupied by the Spanish explorer Francisco Vasques de Coronado, sometime between 1540 and 1542. The remains of many interesting buildings erected by the Spanish conquerors exist in this ancient town. Of these, the adobe palace, situated on the plaza opposite the beautiful grove of cottonwoods, has been used as the executive mansion since the first governor and captain general, Juan de Otermon, occupied it in 1680.

"THIS parrot I can recommend. He has only one fault; he makes a terrible row if he does not get his dinner promptly." Widow—"I shall take him. He will remind me of my late husband."—Fliegende Blatter.

OVER THE RAPIDS.

The Baker, Huntress and Wharf Boat Embarks for Portland.

The D. S. Baker left this morning on her down-river trip, having in tow the Huntress and the wharf-boat. Her entrance into the current was the signal for the various whistles of the city to blow a parting salute, which they did for the space of nearly a half hour. It was announced that she would go over the falls next Sunday, but the sources of information are so capricious that it cannot be accurately stated. The impression now is that if the wind is favorable it will shoot through the rapids tonight. The stage of the river at this time is most favorable. The Baker will be captained by Michell Morritson, a well known half-breed, who is one of the best-posted men in this section on the river and its tributaries, and who served the Union Pacific in the capacity of steamer captain years ago.

By many the trip is considered perilous, but those who have seen the steamers shooting the rapids of the St. Lawrence river, pronounce the Columbia rapids to be tame in comparison. These latter have been the subject of many a painting, where the mammoth steamer glides down the steep pitches with remarkable velocity, perhaps a fifth the length of the boat being entirely clear of the water. The return trip is made through the Lachiene canal and locks, the down-trip being made on the river to save time.

To Stretch Hemp.

Wm. Gallin is the name of a man sentenced to stretch hemp on the 24th of next month. Jointly indicted with Nina Shaw for the murder of Nina's husband, A. W. Shaw, he has been tried, convicted and sentenced to death on that day at Canyon City, Grant county.

The editor knew Gallin a few years ago in Grant county. He is a large, surly man, with a face in which brutal passions seem to be running a joint of their own.

The woman in the case we saw several times. In her maiden days she was known as Nina Harper, and the hatching of trouble in her neighborhood occupied all the spare time she could snatch from the duties of feeding and sleeping. Nina was a very cold blue sunbeam on the hearts of the buccaroos of Long creek valley, and the quenching of her in prison gloom will cause not a tear of regret. She conspired with Gallin to kill her husband, and pretty soon Gallin was flying around with the news that Shaw lay in the barn kicked to death by a vicious horse. At the trial he tried to place the murder on Mrs. Shaw's shoulders, but failed. The animal seemed brave until all hope had fled, but blubbered like a child when sentenced to death. He was perfectly willing to kill Shaw, but didn't want to be killed himself.—Klamath Star.

A Butte Creek Grizzly.

George Farlow, who is in town this week from the ranch of Farlow Bros. on upper Butte creek, tells us of some fun the ranchers in that neighborhood are having with bears this spring and summer. A big grizzly whose tracks in the snow measured twelve inches in diameter has been living on fresh beef while waiting for the berries to ripen. He has killed at least five head of cattle in that neighborhood—three of them three-year-old steers and one a big cow with a bell on her. He was almost as nearly domesticated as the panthers that made their home in Ashland during the spring. Messrs. George and Perry Farlow, W. H. Bradshaw, Hank Wright and others have spent a good part of several weeks trying to capture this grizzly, but could not do it. They set a big steel trap which the grizzly would walk all around, knocking down and dragging about the logs which had been piled around it. The trap was sprung by him four different times, but failed to catch him, though it caught a big brown bear, which the men killed. Dogs would trail the grizzly but couldn't bring him to a stand, and from the direction of his last trail followed, he seemed to be making for the Dead Indian country. He is a monster and is one of the very few grizzlies left to roam the section of Cascade and Siskiyou mountains which thirty years ago was a favorite resort of this largest and fiercest of the numerous varieties of bears in America.—Ashland Tidings.

The Passenger Rate War.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 25.—The transcontinental rate war, begun by the Great Northern a week ago, promises to be the bitterest in the history of railways in the West. It is learned from General Passenger Agent Kerr that the Canadian Pacific is going to enter the districts with a rate so soon as the "Soo" extension is finished. The connection with the Canadian Pacific will be made at Estevan, 14 miles north of the Canadian line. Upon the completion, the Canadian Pacific train will run to St. Paul, and thence to the main line at Sault Ste. Marie. It is rumored again tonight that the Great Northern will make a rate of $20 from St. Paul to the Northwest.

Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Davis Meet.

WEST POINT, June 24.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis arrived here this afternoon and was taken to Cranston's hotel, where she was assigned to rooms nearly opposite those occupied by Mrs. U. S. Grant. Immediately upon learning of Mrs. Davis' presence in the hotel, Mrs. Grant left her room and stepping out into the hall, met Mrs. Davis as the latter was leaving the elevator. Mrs. Grant grasped her hand and said with much feeling: "I am very glad to see you." The two ladies then went into Mrs. Davis' apartments and had a long talk.

United Workmen Elect Officers.

TORONTO, June 24.—The supreme lodge of the Ancient Order United Workmen selected San Francisco as the place to hold the next convention. The following officers were elected:

Supreme master workman, Dr. D. F. Shields, Hannibal, Mo.; supreme foreman, Lewis Troy, Chicago; supreme recorder, M. W. Sackett, Mealville, Pa.; supreme receiver, J. J. Acker, Albany, N. Y.; supreme overseer, Joseph Riggs, Kansas; supreme guide, John Milne, Essex, Ontario; supreme watchman, B. J. Geiner, Detroit; supreme medical examiner, William C. Richardson, St. Louis.

Cost of a Billiard Ball.

The cost of a billiard ball is curiously estimated by a Cairo author. In the judgment of honest American travelers the tusks of dazzling whiteness are answerable for the following: 100 deaths that must be counted as murder or manslaughter; 30 deaths incurred during the journey from the interior to the coast; 10 "deaths by law," and 10 accidents during the elephant hunt. "Add to this 15 thefts, any amount of cheating, drunkenness and acts of brutality and cruelty." A medium-sized, faultless tusk yields two or occasionally three billiard balls, and every ball means, it is stated, at least one murder or one great crime.

Tea Culture in Florida.

Mrs. Sumner, of Florida, raises her own tea, and treats her guests to cups of the home-grown article, which is pronounced much superior to the tea of commerce. It is said that the finest varieties will not stand a sea voyage, and never get further than Russia, while Mrs. Sumner's plants furnish it for her cutting at a fraction of the price set for the eastern product, $15 a pound. So rapid is the growth of the bushes here that they are cut every four years, while in China this is done only once in seven years.

Driven to Desperation.

It is said that in a western theater recently a man suddenly rose in his seat and complained to the audience that, on account of the thing worn on the head of the woman in front of him, he was unable to witness the performance. And, as the story goes, the man's daring was rewarded. The woman rose in all her majesty, looked at the man with an expression that seemed to say: "Oh! I wish I were Corbett," and swept out of the house in great anger.

CHILDLESS HOME.

Smith and his wife have every luxury that money can buy, but there is one thing lacking to their happiness. Both are fond of children, but no little voices prattle, no little feet patter in their beautiful home. "I would give ten years of my life if I could have one healthy, living, child of my own," Smith often says to himself. No woman can be the mother of healthy offspring unless she herself is in good health. If she suffers from female weakness, general debility, bearing-down pains and functional derangements, her physical condition is such that she cannot hope to have healthy children. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sovereign and guaranteed remedy for all these ailments.

Worn-out, "run-down," feeble women, need Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It builds them up. It's a powerful, restorative tonic, or strength-giver—free from alcohol and injurious drugs. The entire system is renewed and invigorated. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, gives refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength.

It's the only guaranteed medicine for women, sold by druggists.
