The high crime which was discovered in this city yesterday by the finding of the body of an infant deserves the sincerest condemnation. If the baby was the child of shame, which is more than probable, it did not deserve death at the hands of its mother.

On political and economic questions Col. Robert G. Ingersoll is a keen observer. He was recently asked whether he thought the new congress and the president would redeem the pledges made in the Chicago platform.

Now that the Duke de Veragua has assumed the role of beggar, Americans will finally be disillusioned in their senseless adulation of the descendant of the illustrious Chris. There is nothing that falls upon the taste of our people sooner than solicitation of funds.

The Eugene Register presents a very good argument why the pardoning power should be done away with by governors. The governor bears the testimony of one side, always the side of the criminal.

The Canyon City News tells of a fourth of July celebration in that town along in the '90s, when John C. Luce arose to read the Declaration of Independence.

Perhaps the most significant thing, as showing the financial condition of the country, is the way in which the bankers and business men with one voice rejoice over the early calling of congress.

A sheep-herder writer to the Antelope Herald anticipates that wool will fall to 10 cents a pound, and that wages will fall correspondingly. He reasons that if wages are once lowered, they will never rise again.

Emperor William is delighted at winning the long contest over the army bill, and placing the German Empire on such a war footing as will command peace.

The religious and family weekly, of which H. W. Beecher was once editor, and whose editor-in-chief is now Mr. Beecher's successor, the Rev. Lyman Abbott, has changed its title from The Christian Union to The Outlook.

South Carolina is now virtually a prohibition state, and liquor can only be bought from the state government under stringent regulations.

At Mecca the cholera is raging, the death rate reaching 1,000 per day, and yet the pilgrimage to the shrine of the prophet, made annually by devout Mohammedans, is not checked.

Reports of bountiful crops are general all over this section of country. This is cheering intelligence in these days of general stringency.

It is quite probable that at last a specific has been discovered for consumption. The Anlick treatment of the disease in its incipient stages seems to be universally successful.

The Salem Democrat says "Ohio can elect a democrat for governor if the right man is nominated." Not on a free wool basis.

It is reported that 318 silver mines in Colorado are closed. The owners want free coinage, under the delusion that it would add to the price of silver.

Gold and silver will fight the greatest battle in all their coinage existence when the extra session of congress settles down to work, and only the most optimistic of the silver men gather much confidence out of the conditions as they now appear.

A large sum will doubtless be received in Chicago tomorrow for the families of the burned firemen. The entire gate receipts and a per cent of most of the theaters will realize a good many thousands of dollars.

The gold reserve is gradually getting back to its full amount of $100,000,000 as the result of the slight improvement in the financial situation.

Hon. Thomas B. Reed is coming to Washington with the air of a Thomas cat who is about to swallow a canary bird.

It is difficult to determine whether Mr. Cleveland suffers more from ill health or the rumor fiend.

Salem Has Overreached Herself.

The Roseburg Review, in speaking of Judge Burnett's decision in regard to the location of the Soldier's Home says: "The injunction against the location of the Soldier's Home at Roseburg has been made perpetual."

THE CHRONICLE believes that Salem has overreached herself this time, and that she has awakened a revengent antagonism that will not stop short of depriving her of every institution within her clutches.

Hat or Collar?

A correspondent to the Hillsboro Independent sends this analysis of the situation: 1892. Grandfather's big hat. Wheat $1 per bushel.

1893. Grover's big collar. Wheat 60 cents per bushel. Wool 20 cents per pound.

They pulled her feet and pointed her head, and bit her on the neck till 'twas smarting and red.

No wonder its praise so loudly they speak; the gown better at once, and was well in a week.

The torturing pains and distressing nervousness which accompany, at times, certain forms of female weakness, yield like magic to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Married at the bride's parents on June 20th, Mr. Wade Sherman to Miss Etta Chamberlain. Many good wishes to the happy couple.

Tuesday morning came out bright and clear but cool, almost too cool for comfort, but with all, every one that could come out to help swell the throng and to give encouragement and cheer to the first celebration at Mitchell.

Died on West Branch, Mr. Wilson, father of Fred Wilson of the firm of Oaks & Wilson of this place. Mr. Wilson has been suffering from paralysis for some weeks, and from the first no hope of his recovery was entertained on account of his age and severity of the case.

The celebration at this place proved to be a decided success. Monday a few races were run which were of little consequence. A very noticeable feature of the occasion was the almost entire absence of intoxicants, and the general good behavior of the company.

On the morning of the 10th, Ben Chipman died at the Central Hotel. Mr. Chipman had been ailing for some months, but no one thought his case serious since he was able to be about and do a few chores.

The programme of the day was simple but deserves mention. Several songs were sung by a choir of twelve or fifteen, which were nicely done. The best Mitchell has ever known. The only fault with the singing was there should have been more.

The prolonged illness of Justice Blatchford made his death not unexpected, and there is consequently little gossip over his successor. The names of both Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle are mentioned, but it can be stated with considerable assurance that the place will not be offered to either.

Mitchell, Or., July 11th.

Justice Blatchford.

The prolonged illness of Justice Blatchford made his death not unexpected, and there is consequently little gossip over his successor.

Justice Blatchford had been at the bar or on the bench for over fifty years, and brought to the supreme court a rich experience which gave him distinction as a member of that tribunal.

Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied with a wonderful diarrhoea. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us, was taken in the same way.
