THE DALLES, OREGON

LOCAL BRIEVITIES.

Tuesday's Daily.
Oh, what's the use o' grievein'?
We're jes' in love with life.
For the blossom's on the melon
An' the edge is on the knife.

The Astorian is advertised for sale.
The electric light plant will be started up at the Cascades at once.

Mr. C. B. Page, of Astoria, has been appointed collector of customs for that district.

The first load of new wheat of the season was brought in to the roller mills last evening by Mr. I. J. Powell of Sherman county.

There are nearly 80,000 bushels of old wheat on hand in Salem which the mills will begin using when the new crop comes to market.

A report is to the effect that another Swede was drowned at the Cascades Sunday, of the same name as the first, John Carlson, and drowned while bathing. Crandall & Burget have filled the order for another coffin.

In spite of the stringency of the times the female codfish in New England waters, so it is reported, manages to lay 45,000,000 eggs in a single season. We do not know what mathematical genius made the count but he must have had a hard 'se to hoe.

H. Glenn is removing the engine and machinery which have been in the North Dalles shoe factory, and will be brought across the river and taken in charge by him. The equipments are complete for a manufactory of this kind, and comprise every accessory.

We are in receipt of a catalogue of the lakeview state graded school. The legislature at its last session appropriated out of the general fund $5,000 for the establishment of a branch normal school in Lake county. This institution has issued its curriculum of studies and promises a fine opportunity to those who avail themselves of acquiring a higher education.

It is reported that Tom Maloney made a raid on a number of tramps in an unused ice house in town, and then the tramps made a raid on Tom, one of them shooting a pistol off in close proximity to his nose, promising that the next shot would be more effective unless he "got out." The report further states that Tom got.

Anderson, the Portland fester, has four more days to serve. He is getting wobbly on his legs, like a newly-born calf, but it is generally believed that he will pull through. Then, according to Mrs. Williams' belief, he will have the devil starved out of him, and will be one of the elect.

A letter just received by a leading citizen, formerly from Germany, from friends in that country, states that the empire is suffering from a drouth the severest ever known. Many farmers cannot get their seed back, and thousands will make no attempt to harvest. The hay crop is almost a total failure, and the letter states that 1,000 pounds of hay sold there for 48 marks, or at the rate of $22.40 per ton.

Rosalie Rustler: The man now-a-days who does not have a solution for the financial problem is a back number. A conversation between two hobos was recently overheard. The financial question was the subject. One was a silverite and the other a goldbug. The argument was sensible on both sides and the way they would "gain points" on each other was a caution. The goldbugite shortly after struck a citizen for a quarter, and did not seem particularly averse to taking silver.

It is said that a strange pest is playing havoc among the apples this year in Illinois. The frost of the spring killed the larger portion, and the remainder grew to about one-third their natural size, that which they would attain if ripe, and then fall off. A microscopic examination shows that a minute worm is at work on the stem; that these are eaten through, or so nearly that the stem can't bear the weight, and the fruit falls. The insect that does the mischief is yet unknown, but a number of samples of apples have been sent to Washington, and it is hoped the department of agriculture may afford some relief.

Wednesday's Daily.
The scene of the present hard times
We see in various ways,
For even the weeks of the months
Are running with shorter days.

Harvest operations are now in full blast. A full average yield is reported from most sections.

Mr. I. J. Powell, who brought in the first load of wheat, is from Boyd, Wasco county, instead of from Sherman county, as erroneously stated yesterday.

In the beauty show at Chicago there are handsome women of all nationalities. The Celestial female who represents the Orient is a Chinese woman whose former home was Portland.

Hon. W. R. Ellis writes to Col. Sinton stating that if there are any parties who want public documents or farmers who will try seeds, he will make a special effort to obtain them if they will state what they want.

A lawn social will be given by the Juvenile Temple on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the academy grounds for the purpose of raising funds to secure an appropriate banner for the Temple. Ice cream and cake will be served, for which 10 cents will be charged. Everyone is invited.

A full discussion of the financial situation is called for tonight by the Portland chamber of commerce. It was decided to urge all members of the chamber, and ask all residents of the city who had business with the banks, to attend the meeting, the main object of which is to secure the opening of the suspended banks.

A petition will be presented to the city council asking that the ten feet of the street which is fenced on Court, between Ninth and Tenth, be thrown open for the convenience of travelers and a sidewalk laid. This strip was originally fenced to protect the growing young poplar trees. They have now increased to large-sized trees and such protection is not needed.

A citizen while excavating this morning for a basement, dug up a bottle of old rye whisky, which had been cached no one knows how long. It is thought to have been concealed by an Indian before the city was laid off into a townsite, as the lot before the fire is one of the oldest in use in the city. As each year adds about 20 per cent. to the value of liquor, this quart of whisky is probably worth about $25. We may get this wrong about the price, but "we don't care if we do."

Thursday's Daily.
The boy stood on the burning deck
But he did not seem to care,
For he'd saved up money enough
And had taken in the fair.

Heading is well under way as far out as Tygh Ridge.

Judge Bradshaw moved into his handsome residence today.

Two married men want situations for man and wife on farm. Address Roy C. Atwood, care Columbia hotel.

The Haynes boys have hauled their steam thresher into Dufur, where they are repairing it and giving it a generous coat of paint.

Ferris, the street sprinkler, has done a good thing in distributing lime by the hydrant where he fills the water wagon, next to the city hall.

Railroad stocks are still tumbling, and the end is not yet, judging from the numerous daily reports of cuts in expenditures on all hands.

Acting General Manager Kendrick was appointed general manager of the Northern Pacific road today by the receivers of the road at St. Paul.

This is truly the dull season. A great share of our people are out rusticiating in the mountains and at the seaside, and the chief occupation of those who remain is that of Micawber.

Will C. Dawson of Mill creek has the best fruit evaporator in the state. Fruit men come great distances to see it. Mr. Dawson intends to be able to dry over two tons of fruit per day next year.

This has been the warmest August since 1884, when it was just the same as this month so far—70.4. The hottest August recorded are '75, when it was 79.5, and '77, with an average of 78.5.

Arthur Underhill cut twenty-eight acres of wheat with a ten-foot hedge header on Edward Mahn's place last Tuesday. The grain was hauled with two wagons, James and Gus Underhill being the drivers.

Mayor Rinehart and council have already done much valuable work in compelling various property owners to connect with sewers. Let the good work go on. A year hence there will be only praise for these gentlemen.

The Perrydale Patriot must be a lion monthly. It says: "The rate for local advertising is ten cents per line the first insertion and five cents for each subsequent insertion. This makes twenty cents per line per month."

In the absence of Mr. Balfe Johnson, for a month, the situation of telegrapher at the Unatilla house is being filled by Mr. Lewis. This gentleman is most affable and courteous and it would be a pleasure to THE CHRONICLE to announce his permanent residence among our people.

A pretty well authenticated report is that the Union Pacific will make some tremendous cuts in their steamer service by the first of the coming month, withdrawing all of their boats from the Lower Columbia but the Oregon and State, discontinuing the routes between Portland and Astoria and Portland and the Cascades.

The labors of the city council are persistent on the matter of sidewalks, and a special meeting is likely to be held soon in this connection. Few have been built since the last regular meeting, but many lot-owners have been notified. There have, however, been some new walks laid in the last several days.

Eighty hop-pickers are wanted at once at North Yakima, about 100 miles from The Dalles. Apply to James Blakeney for particulars. Here is a good chance for a large number of idle men in this vicinity. The work is especially valuable for those needing work at this time, as it can be done by women and children, as well as men. Hence whole families can secure remunerative work by applying at once.

DISTRICT FAIR.

An Institution Deserving of the Heartiest Co-operation.

We are in receipt of a package of copies of the premium list for the fifth annual exhibition of the Eastern Oregon District Agricultural Society, embracing the counties of Wasco, Sherman, Gilliam, Crook, Morrow and Umatilla, to be held at The Dalles, Wasco county, on the 10th of October next, continuing five days. The pamphlet contains 70 pages and is full of interest. The work is published by the state printer, Frank C. Baker, and reflects credit on that branch of the state department. Fifteen hundred dollars are to be given away by the state for agricultural, home and stock exhibits. We are pleased to hear that more interest is being made manifest by our people in this very important matter. A fair is by no means to be considered in the same category as a show. They are the most ancient and honorable of institutions, fostered by all forms of government, monarchical, republican or otherwise. While catering to pleasure, justly earned by the toiling husbandman at the end of harvest, and while all manner of manly sports and humorous diversions are encouraged, a fair is no less a duty on the part of all citizens of a country who claim a spirit of loyalty. It is here meant to stimulate a friendly rivalry which will be healthful to production, to reward the most successful toilers in all industries, and to interest the women of the land, as well as the men, by offering suitable prizes and exhibiting their handiwork. A fair has been, and always will be as important an accessory to national life as any of its buildings or public institutions. Hence there should be a full attendance at our next district fair, and any object of merit, whether grown or manufactured, should find place in the exhibition building.

SEVILLE TALKS.

A Variety of Subjects Handled, More Especially the District Fair.

ENDERSBY, Or., Aug. 13, 1893.

Our national banks here have not closed yet and silver is at par with gold; wheat and cabbage are both legal tenders for all commodities and calico wear. There has been no combine or trust on onions and potatoes and not likely to be this year. Notwithstanding the great calamity that has befallen the nation on account of the silver bill, it has not affected the growth of wheat, at least in this favored part of the country, as crops here are better on an average than they have been for years.

The header is abroad in the land and with a new threshing machine purchased by Messrs. Enderby, Smith and Flig we are in it to stay regardless of Cleveland's message to congress and the fight among the women managers of the world's fair.

J. C. Wingfield's dam broke loose with a tremendous roar. The waters went rushing down the valley, but unlike the Johnstown disaster did no other damage than perhaps scaring a few fish to death and leaving them high and dry on the banks.

Speaking of the world's fair and its managers puts us in mind of our own district fair to be held at The Dalles in October and as we have not seen anything yet in regard to the special premium list this year, as that is a matter started outside of the fair management, we suggest that THE CHRONICLE, who is foremost among the people, start the ball a-rolling, talk it up or get it up, and also write it up so that the people will all know it in time. They will, we are satisfied, not only compete for the premiums but give it their hearty support. As Wasco county has been blessed with a good crop this year in both grain, vegetables and fruit we would expect to see a fine display. Last year being the first special list and not being advertised in time, few of the people knew anything of it till after the fair closed. We would like to suggest a plan by which those special premiums could be taken and distributed so that those competing would know what their premium was and also their special, by passing the special list around and let the giver state to what premium his special goes and only one special to every first premium awarded. The Dalles people gave very liberally in specials last year and have no doubt but that they will do the same this year. It could also extend to the ladies who always take an active part in the fair, as small specials in that department would help very much, as there is a great deal of handiwork that is tedious and the premiums small. We will not also forget to state that this list can also extend to the farmer and stock raiser, as he too can help along the special list, if not in money or fancy articles in produce, which would be acceptable to some and equivalent to cash. I think that we could find a few that would be glad of the opportunity. We read in the good book that it is more blessed to give than receive. We know that the receiving is pretty good, so let's try the giving. As there are very few of our people gone to the world's fair let's try one at home. We have no doubt it will be a success. Having every confidence in THE CHRONICLE in putting it before the people, we remain yours,

SEVILLE.

Caught a Horse Thief.

Chester Cole stole a horse, saddle, bridle and spurs from Ben Pratt Sunday night. Pratt was at the Farther place, near Kingsley. He started out immediately in pursuit and overhauled and arrested the thief at Cedar Swamp, bringing his prisoner into town today. He was arraigned before Justice Schutz this morning, pled guilty, and was bound over. Cole's mother lives in Cowlitz county, Wash., and his father is in Nevada.

The horse thief is a young man who has been working for Mr. Farther. After stealing the horse he rode off, intending to take the Barlow route over the mountains, but got off on the side road leading to Cedar Swamp. Mr. Pratt had no difficulty in following the trail. Both were unarmed and he soon came up to his victim. Cole rode into some fallen timber and finding it impossible to proceed further on horseback, jumped off, Pratt pursuing him with a club. He reached him and got him under complete submission, with the result as above stated.

A Split in the Flock.

The queer faith of Mrs. Williams at Portland furnishes an inexhaustible mine for the newspapers of that town. The Dispatch of yesterday has the following:

There has been a split in the Mrs. Williams flock. The demand made by the prophets in the new faith, that all shall fast forty days, has been objected to in most emphatic terms by a part of the flock, and about thirty members, led by a local-singing member of the Y. M. C. A., have bolted from her congregation. They have set up a religion of their own and their leader claims he is nearer Christ than Mrs. Williams is. This causes the prophets to wax wrathful, and she is desirous of an opportunity to seize upon the backsliding members and cast the new devils out of them. She proposes to wage war upon them, and judging from reports in circulation it is reasonable to suppose that the split in the flock will cause some nasty denunciations from both sides before the week is out. The leaders of both factions are competent to entertain the crowd when it comes to stiff tongue-lashing and the use of emphatic adjectives more forcible than polite. The late secession of members is regarded as the beginning of the end of the new faith and it is generally hoped so.

More News.

Harvest is in full blast. Headers can be seen in all directions cutting down the golden grain, and with a prospect for a goodly quantity of grain. The farmers appear very cheerful, except when a thought passes their minds that if prices continue so low, all their hard work is for naught as far as they are concerned. What a shame that the farmer must pay as dear as ever for what he buys, and sell his produce for just enough to pay for harvesting, and he must haul it to market, in order to get a chance to give it away. Well we hope for better times and toil away.

Mr. Sutton of Dayton, delivered a lecture on prohibition Saturday evening, which was very good. There was a good audience for this time of the year. Sunday evening Elder Morrison preached a temperance sermon to a fair sized congregation. Mr. Adams, a U. B. minister, preceded him with a few remarks on the same subject. Robert Ginn was quite seriously injured Friday evening in attempting to reach a bon fire that had been kindled for the purpose of testing the alacrity of the fire company. He fell and became unconscious, and remained in this condition half an hour. Dr. Beers of Wasco was summoned, in the absence of Dr. Smith, and he soon recovered. News is very scarce so I must close.

Moro, Or., Aug. 15th, 1893.

Advertising Oregon.

People who are fortunate enough to obtain peaches from the "Peachblow Paradise Orchards" of Max Pracht this year will be fully apprised of the celestial character of the fruit, no matter in how distant a clime it may be unpacked and eaten. Mr. Pracht has just had nearly 100,000 peach wrappers printed, each bearing in blue ink on white paper his orchard trademark, designed by himself. It advertises the climate of Southern Oregon, the city of Ashland and the orchard business of Mr. Pracht, and there will be no danger of retail dealers in Oregon, Washington, Montana or elsewhere selling his peaches as "California fruit." Neither will there be any likelihood of any scrubby peaches being shipped in those wrappers.

Mr. Pracht's method of paying the strictest attention to the details of selection, packing and marketing proves its value from the fact that he is able to ask and receive for his peaches 25 per cent above the market price. The farmers of the state should have their attention called to this fact, and much good to Oregon would undoubtedly result if his example were to be generally followed. One of the most striking instances of the injustice he seeks to correct by advertising is the fact that Rogue river apples, pronounced by connoisseurs the finest by long odds on the coast, are shipped to eastern markets branded "California fruit."—Oregonian.

The Bingham Springs.

A party composed of Supt. A. J. Borie, Mr. R. Gemmel, Mrs. Dr. Gemmel, Dr. Vincent and wife, Conductor H. Fowler, Misses Ida Waffle and Edie Frazer of Pendleton, Supt. N. J. O'Brien, Misses Bessie and Frances O'Brien of Walla Walla, Misses Minnie and Rose Michell of this city, spent Saturday and Sunday at Bingham hot springs, about thirty miles from Pendleton, in the Blue mountains. The party were more than delighted with the beauty of the location, and the accommodations were beyond anything they had anticipated. Dr. Bingham has spared no expense in fitting up the grounds, and the hotel is superintended by Mr. and Mrs. Perkins of Pendleton. In the immediate vicinity is a good sized hotel and a large sanitarium, which at present are well filled, besides several cottages. An amusement hall has recently been built, on one side of which is a bowling alley, so that guests may either exercise their muscles or, as was the case Saturday evening, "dance the happy hours away." The principal place of resort is the swimming pool, which is about 80x60 feet large, situated at the foot of a large mountain and surrounded by trees. The pool is supplied with warm mineral water by two large pipes, making bathing comfortable at any hour of the day. Bath houses are also near at hand.

The grounds are covered with an immense growth of trees, and a clear, cool stream runs through them, and besides there are two large springs—one of hot mineral water and the other ice cold. It is indeed an ideal summer resort in every sense of the word.

At the Cascades.

The strike of the stone cutters is still on at the Cascade Locks, but the delay is not necessarily harmful for the prosecution of work. There is enough stone cut to more than half complete the locks, and fifteen to twenty cars are being hauled in daily. As soon as the water gets below the bulkhead, which it is expected to do within ten days, pumping will commence, to exhaust the water out of the canal. The pump has already been placed. A large force of men will then be set to work laying rock for the walls.

I. N. Day, wife and child and J. F. Keaneby arrived Monday from San Francisco.

Camp Meeting at Enderby.

8-MILE, Or., Aug. 15th, 1893.

The Irma.

Capt. Coe came in last night with the launch Irma, it being her first appearance at The Dalles. She is a trim little craft, 36 feet long, 7 feet beam and propelled with a 4½ horse power engine. This afternoon she steamed up the river to what is known as Terminal bay, being the highest navigable point this side of the dalles. Misses Kate and Mollie accompanied Mr. Coe on the trip.

Sounds the Death Knell.

Sentinel.
The hand of fate points steadily in the direction of the utter annihilation of The Dalles baseball club when it next meets the Goldendale boys on The Dalles diamond. Last Tuesday night our club unanimously elected Martin Z. Donnell, one of the best boys The Dalles ever flung to the human breeze, to be its high chief factoten and business manager. That settles it. Soon
The muffled drum's and roll shall beat
The Dalles' boys' last tattoo,
No more on baseball grounds shall meet
That brave and fallen tow.
