

NEWS NOTES.

Gov. Boies will again be a candidate for gubernatorial honors in Iowa.

The total paid attendance at the fair the past week aggregated $1,000,000.

Preparations have begun for the departure from Gray Gables of the president and his family next week for Washington.

Chautauqua county's (N. Y.) grape crop will be nearly doubled this year, reaching the enormous quantity of 4,000 carloads.

Meredith Stanley, of Cincinnati, who has made 47 jumps from the Ohio river bridge, will shoot the Niagara falls in an eight-foot barrel.

Mayor Harrison has a plan to relieve the great stringency existing in currency. It is to issue city warrants for circulation as money in Chicago.

Alerson B. Ostraver, a custom house officer, has been arrested for underweighing a cargo of cheese, chestnuts and macaroni on an Italian merchant ship.

A terrible accident occurred Saturday on the Harlem river railroad, New Jersey, which cost four lives and possibly more. It was the result of a head-end collision.

Miss Emma Vaders, the actress who has been playing the leading female roles with Thomas W. Keene, is violently insane, and has been taken to an asylum in Philadelphia.

The Negroni Coffarelli palace in Rome, Italy, was burned. Among the numerous occupants of the building were the pope's auditor and the Portuguese consul and his family.

The city of Birmingham, Ala., voted to issue paper scrip or paper promising to pay bearer. These will be in denominations of 25 cents up, and at least $5,000 will be issued.

Governor Thornton has issued a proclamation calling a convention at Albuquerque, September 20th, to consider New Mexico's admission as a state, and to memorialize congress thereon.

By the boiler of a threshing machine engine exploding on Butler's ranch, seven miles from Napa, Calif., Fireman John Lansberger, an Austrian, 32 years of age, was instantly killed. He was a widower and leaves one child.

The plans for the administration building of the mid-winter fair have been submitted and will be opened to senators and state officials seated from obtaining seats in the state. The decision is generally conceded to be wise.

The last democratic howl is over the tariff on the workingman's dinner buckets. They had better shed the tears over the lack of food to put them.

The free coinage delusion has met its fate in Montana, according to the Mantle of Montana not entitled to a seat, took place in the senate. The majority consisted of 22 democrats, 11 republicans and 2 populists, and the minority of 11 democrats, and 19 republicans.

Word has been received by Director-General Davis that the famous Mormon tabernacle choir of over 300 voices will arrive at the fair early next week. During its visit the choir will give several concerts, and the sacred songs of the Mormon church will be sung.

Serious trouble began at Broadway market, East Buffalo, between 300 Poles and market men. Poles without work robbed the provision stands. When the owners of the stands tried to protect their property, a riot resulted. The police arrested 10 of the ringleaders.

Many members of the New York clearing house committee were interviewed, and all spoke very hopefully of the situation and said there was great improvement. The premium on currency was fast disappearing, and cash, they said, was being paid out more freely by the banks.

J. J. Woodrow, aged 75, an old settler and prominent farmer, and his daughter, were instantly killed Saturday while crossing the Burlington railroad tracks near Glenwood, Iowa. Their carriage was struck by a train, wrecking the vehicle. Both bodies were horribly mangled and the team killed.

Anarchists and policemen's locusts came in violent contact again in New York City. A meeting was in progress and the usual speeches were being made, until finally one of the speakers, working himself into a frenzy, shouted: "The police dare not come in here. If they show themselves in here, the scene at Wallhalla will be repeated." Police-men promptly accepted the dare and cleared the hall in two minutes.

J. H. Blount, United States minister to the Hawaiian islands, will run for governor of Georgia. He will be the administration candidate. The statement having been confidentially made that Cleveland could not carry the state in the light of recent events, the gage of battle has been accepted, and in voting for Blount's nomination, voters will express confidence in Cleveland. The contest promises to be both lurid and sensational.

WASHINGTON LETTER

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23, 1893.

The debate in the house has worn out its welcome. Even the proletariat that sits in the galleries is becoming tired. The toes of the mad mob's million feet fronted to the capitol a few days ago; the tracks now point in another direction. There is little to attract the spectator. There is no picturesqueness to be found anywhere, nor any violence, nor anything that ordinarily attracts the public. From the spectacular point of view the extra session of the Fifty-third congress is a distinct failure. Grave results depend upon its action, but the calcium lights and stage illusions are wanting.

The unconditional repeal men have been very active. They have done work while other people have talked. A recording committee has been appointed and also a proselyting committee. The duty of the one is to keep a score of available votes; the duty of the other is to make as many converts as possible. Both are laboring hard. From the unconditional repeal standpoint it is a very active canvass.

Here at the national capital come indications of a better feeling throughout the country. The banks are in improved shape, and the atmosphere around Controller Eckles' office in the treasury has perceptibly cleared. Every indication of a let-up in the existing stringency, small or great, is an encouraging factor in the situation. It may be but a glimpse of the coming dawn, but the morning twilight always bespeaks broad daylight ahead. It affords assurance that the recuperative energies of the American people may yet obtain mastery of the evil conditions with which they are beset; that the wonderful resources of the country are ultimately bound to count in the reversal of trade balances; that the conservative and courageous action of our great financial institutions is coping successfully with the emergency.

In the natural order of things the process of recovery will be slow, but a patient possessing the vitality of the United States cannot always remain bed-ridden. The disease will run its course, and the sick man will get well. Nothing but some stupendous and incredible blunder on the part of congress can throw him into a relapse. The country looks to congress for no such blunder, but rather for restoratives and stimulants that shall hasten convalescence. Congress is already at work upon measures supplemental to the silver question, that will aid in bracing up our distempered finances by augmenting the volume of currency, enabling the unimpeded transportation of crops, and inducing the vast amount of money now idly hoarded to venture forth from its vaults and hiding places in quest of investments. Relief is certain to come from some source. If congress fails to furnish it the people themselves will devise it. This is too rich and strong a country to be permanently trampled under foot by misfortune. There are evidences of returning stability even in the absence of legislation. Congress, however, will, in its own leisurely time, come to the rescue. It will sooner or later give its lungs a rest and allow its practical business sense an opportunity to vindicate itself.

The Maharajah of Kapurthala, his premier, and private secretary, with tinted wasp nets on their heads, occupied the diplomatic gallery of the house last Saturday, to the manifest wonder of the rest of the people. Although Col. Ike Hill did the honors with a flaming geranium on his coat, the visiting royalty failed to see the whole show. Czar Beed was not in action, nor the silver-tongued and silver-haired Breckinridge, the two most-pointed-out men; nor did they have an opportunity to see Joe Canon in action, with his sleeves rolled up, nor Judge Bland denouncing the robbers of Wall street. When told some of the things he had missed, Jat Jat Jh Singh announced his desire to come again.

The financial issue has broken the V-shaped combination that has so long obtained in the senate. Vance, Vest and Voorhees are not agreed.

This is to certify that I have used Kraus's Headache Capsules periodically for over one year, and have very much pleasure in stating that they have always proved beneficial and have relieved me in from ten to fifteen minutes. I have been a sufferer from headache for many years, and have never found anything to do me as much good as Kraus's Headache Capsules. Yours truly, LOTT BISHOP, 2518 S. Poplar St., Wichita, Kan.

Mr. Thomas Batte, editor of the Graphic, Texarkana, Arkansas, has found what he believes to be the best remedy in existence for the flux. His experience is well worth remembering. He says: "Last summer I had a very severe attack of flux. I tried almost every known remedy, none giving relief. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me. I purchased a bottle and received almost immediate relief. I continued to use the medicine and was entirely cured. I take pleasure in recommending this remedy to any person suffering with such a disease, as in my opinion it is the best medicine in existence." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists.

THE GIRL OF STRICT IDEAS.

She Generally Develops Into a Censorious and Scandal-Monger.

The extremely well-behaved young girl who has never been tempted and who cannot understand how another could commit a folly is certain to become the most censorious of old women, says Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in the New York Press. If she does not develop into a cruel, malicious-tongued scandal-monger it will be a wonder. Nothing is so easy as the descent from uncharitableness to malice. As a young girl she prides herself upon her love of morality and good behavior; all her friends speak of her as "such a strict girl" in her teens. No one would think of appealing to her for sympathy or advice in an hour of temptation, but she is respected for her high ideas if feared for her severity. As an old woman she is simply held in abhorrence, and her name becomes a neighborhood synonym for cruel judgment. Criticism of our frail fellow beings is a vice which takes possession of us like a stimulant or a drug, once we encourage it. It may begin in our high moral standard and our hatred of sin, but once it becomes a habit we indulge in it for the pleasure it gives us. It is a bad habit in the young; in the old it is intolerable; for nothing renders old age interesting or lovable save sympathy for the young and charity for the erring. It is strange that we all do not grow charitable as we grow old; as we learn more and more of our frailties and more and more of the temptations and illusions of life we ought to become more and more tender and pitying. One can be sympathetic without encouraging vice and wrong doing or cloaking sin.

The face of William Muldoon, as pictured in current lithographs, has a family likeness to that of the famous Greek pugilist represented in a plaster cast of much interest at the Metropolitan museum of art. Nose, lips and brow are strikingly alike in the Greek and American professors of the manly art.

What Your Great Grandmother Did.

She hatched the fax and curdled the wool, and spun the linen, and spun the tow, and made the clothes for her husband and ten children. She made butter and cheese, she dipped tallow candles, to light the house at night, and she cooked all the food for her household by an open fire place and a brick oven. Yes; and when she was forty years of age, she was already an old lady whose best days were over. Her shoulders were bent and her joints enlarged by hard work, and she wore spectacles and a cap. Her great granddaughter, with all the modern conveniences for comfort, refinement and luxury, may be as charming and attractive at forty-five as at twenty. Especially is this true if she preserves her health by the use of Dr. Perry's Favorite Prescription, which wards off all female ailments and irregularities, cures them if they already exist, keeps the life current healthful and vigorous, and enables the woman of middle age to retain the freshness of girlhood upon brow and cheek, the light of youth in her eyes, and its elasticity in her step.

Go to your drug store, pay a dollar, get a bottle and try it—try a second, a third if necessary. Before the third one's been taken you'll know that there's a remedy to help you. Then you'll keep on and a cure'll come. But if you shouldn't feel the help, should be disappointed in the result—you'll find a guarantee printed on the bottle wrapper that'll get your money back for you. Can you ask more?
