WASHINGTON LETTER.

How the Hawaiian Matter is Viewed at the Capitol--Notes.

From our Regular Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Nov. 17, 1893.

This has been quite as unpleasant a week in administration circles as was that which followed the condemnation of the democratic party and its methods at the polls. Public opinion has made itself heard by every member of this administration, which is the first and will doubtless be the last to attempt to drag partisan politics into the foreign policy of the United States.

It is no wonder that Mr. Cleveland and his cabinet are awaiting with trepidation the news from Hawaii that will tell of the strangling of a republic and the setting up of a monarchy by their willing tool, Minister Willis. The manner in which the dastardly deed was done, if it be yet done, means much for the future of Grover Cleveland. It may mean simply an unbleachable blotch upon his name as an American and a president, or it may mean his impeachment upon high constitutional grounds and disgraceful exit from public life.

Ever since the elections the administration has been trying to placate those democratic senators and representatives who have openly protested against the unjust treatment of pensioners which has been such a conspicuous feature of Hoke Smith's management of the pension bureau. Not only have the pension officials shown an alacrity in restoring the names of suspended pensioners at the request of democratic congressmen, but, in the case of two Indiana men who had been suspended and whose restoration to the roll had been demanded by Senator Voorhees, they not only restored their names to the roll but also increased their pensions.

It is now stated with much positiveness that the free traders among the democratic members of the house ways and means committee have triumphed and that the new tariff bill is to be made about as radical as it can well be made, but the statement has not caused much uneasiness for the very simple reason that the more radical the bill is made the less probability there is of its becoming a law.

If Mr. Cleveland continues to increase the number of prominent members of his party with whom he holds no personal intercourse at the same rate that he has done since last March he will soon be at "outs" with every prominent democrat in public life. It might have been supposed that the course taken by Senator Mills upon the silver question would have made him stand particularly well with Mr. Cleveland, but apparently it did not, as Mr. Cleveland not only refused to grant the only favor that Senator Mills had asked of him, but he did it in such a manner as to insult the Texas senator, who will probably bide his time for getting even, just as Vice President Stevenson, Senator Vest and others are doing.

Mr. Cleveland paid a mysterious visit to New York this week, which created quite a commotion in Washington for a few hours, because of a report that he had gone there to have a dangerous operation performed upon himself. Your correspondent has it from a trustworthy source that his real object was to consult with certain Wall street bankers upon financial matters.

AGRICULTURAL FIGURES.

Iowa raised 220,000,000 bushels of corn last year.

The Indian corn crop of 1892 was 1,628,464,000 bushels; the wheat crop 519,490,000.

In India there are 139 cotton mills, with 3,400,000 spindles and 25,000 looms, employing 110,000 persons. There are also eight new mills now in course of construction.

The canning industry is making great headway in Georgia, and, in view of the probability of a fine crop this season, that state is likely to be one of the most profitable fields for fruit growers in the country.

The largest grain fleet that ever left Chicago at the opening of navigation was composed of one hundred and fifty steam and sailing vessels, which left that city for the lower lake ports April 15, with 11,000,000 bushels of grain.

LITERARY NOVELTIES.

"KING SOLOMON'S MINES" has been translated into German, and one publisher catalogues it as "Old Testament Literature."

In the seventeenth century a pamphlet was published entitled "The Spiritual Mustard Pot, to Make the Soul Sneeze with Devotion; Salvation's Vantage Ground, or a Louping Sand for Heavy Believers."

It is said that when Benjamin Franklin proposed to start a newspaper his mother tried to dissuade him from it because she said there were already two papers in America and there was no room for another.

PUTTENHAM, in his "Arte of English Poetic," erected two pillars of poetry in honor of Queen Elizabeth. Each pillar consists of a base of lines in eight syllables, shafts of four-syllable lines, and a crown in the same meter at the base.

Rose Elizabeth Cleveland. Very little has been heard of Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, the first mistress of the white house under the Cleveland administration, who was an interested spectator of the inauguration eight years ago. Since her retirement from the white house she has spent years that have been very happy ones to her. Two of them she divided up between the north and the south, giving the winters to Florida in her own cozy home. There she met with friends who were greatly attracted toward her and she toward them. They were persons of means, and she has been traveling in Europe with them the last two years. Last summer, while Col. and Mrs. Lamont were driving in Switzerland, they saw a woman walking alone a little in advance of them. To their great astonishment it turned out to be Miss Cleveland, and the meeting was a happy surprise on both sides.
