The only guaranteed remedy for the ailments of womanhood is the "Favorite Prescription." If it ever fails to benefit or cure, in making weak women strong or suffering women well, you have your money back.

It builds up, strengthens, regulates, and cures. For periodical pains, bearing-down sensations, ulceration, inflammation—everything that's known as a "female complaint," it's a remedy that's safe, certain, and proved.

Everything catarrhal in its nature, Catarrh itself, and all the troubles that come from Catarrh, are perfectly and permanently cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. No matter how bad your case or of how long standing, you can be cured.

PUZZLE FOR THE ANTIQUARIANS

Belles of a Race Who Lived on an Island Off the French Coast.

A lady whose home is in the south of France writes to Goldthwaite's Magazine of a visit she made recently to an island on the coast of Brittany. Those who have read the story of King Arthur and his knights will remember that they started out over the sea in pursuit of the dragon. In this, the Maritimes, is a little island which can be reached from the mainland only when the water is smooth. The sole inhabitant is a Breton shepherd, who lives in a little hut and spends his time in caring for his sheep. The party landed and were met by the kind-faced old man, who led them over the grassy slope where his flock was feeding, and showed them the way around a hill, on the east-side of which they found the entrance to a tunnel. This extended some distance, and its floor, sides and roof were made of immense flat pieces of stone, covered with hieroglyphs and figures "looking somewhat like wreaths and again like coiled serpents." At the end of this tunnel was a hall, also floored, roofed and walled with the same curious stones, and in the center was an altar and a stone upon which it is thought that human sacrifices have been offered. The strangest part of all is that no stones or rocks like those used in this tunnel can be found on the island, and at no place nearer than one hundred miles inland. Who brought them? How did they come? There is no record left—at least none has been found—to tell who these people were, or anything about them. They must have lived many centuries ago, but have vanished entirely, yet their work is as perfect apparently as when first built. It is thought that they may have been Druids, who came here when they left Great Britain; others, again, think that they were worshippers of the serpent god called Hoo. But it is conjecture. All we know is that the stones are there, strangely carved, skillfully put together, but of their builders there is no trace.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

TWO OF A KIND.

Times Were Hard, But They Continued to Meet Misfortune Philosophically.

"You—you don't want any coal carried up to-day?" he queried, as he put his head into a lawyer's office on Griswold street the other day, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Haven't money enough to buy a bucketful," was the doleful reply. "I see. Don't want any copying done in a fine Italian hand, I suppose?"

"Nothing to copy but bills from creditors."

"Just so. I have been there myself. Could I do any work at your house, such as shoveling off snow, for instance?"

"No. Couldn't pay you if you did."

"Exactly. We are all hard up this winter. Any bills to collect?"

"Not a one."

"Neither have I, and that's where we are fortunate. I'll wash those windows for a quarter."

"Couldn't think of it."

"Let 'em go until next summer, eh? or do it yourself and save the coin? I understand the situation. Got any pressing creditors?"

"About fifty."

"I might call upon the most persistent and obstinate of them and make excuses for you."

"No. It's no use."

"No chance to hawk on to a few thousands and skip?"

"Not a chance."

"Don't want a fire at your house to get the insurance?"

"My insurance has run out."

"Say, old man, this is a tough, cold world, ain't she?" laughed the tramp.

"You bet!"

"But we've got sand and will come out on top in the spring. If either of us earns a quarter to-day we'll whack up with the other, eh? Good-by—see you later."

A RARE INSTANCE.

One Policeman Who Was Capable of a Humane Act.

Policemen perform many unofficial acts which prove that the proverbial stony heart does not always beat under brass buttons. A pleasing instance is thus narrated by a writer in the Boston Saturday Gazette:

A poorly dressed and feeble old woman was coming down one of the side streets on the Back Bay, carefully balancing a basket on her head. Suddenly a treacherous bit of ice, or an inequality in the pavement, caused her to miss her footing, and in striving to regain it the basket was thrown to the ground and its contents, a quantity of small wares, flew in every direction.

Almost before she had time to realize the catastrophe, a policeman, who had been a spectator of the scene from the opposite corner, came hastening across the street, and with a word or two of exclamation began deftly to collect the scattered spoils, pieces of tape and thimbles.

Several of the spoils had rolled into the gutter and were rendered worthless by their contact with the mud, and my knight of the brass buttons noticed the racine glance cast upon them by their owner?

When the last of the articles had been restored to the basket and he had assisted her to raise it to her head, he took a piece of silver from his pocket, slipped it into her hand, and with a pleasant little nod in return for the voluminous blessings showered upon him, sauntered slowly back to his post.

This kindly act was certainly not done for effect, for the street was deserted at the time, and I was screened from view by the curtains of the window.

A PETRIFIED DUCHESS.

The Wonderful Statue Possessed by a Strassburg Artist.

The petrified woman recently found in one of the caves which were used as burial places when Strassburg (Germany) was plague-stricken in the year 1624 is now believed to be Duchess Adelheid, the aunt of Frederick Barbarossa. The petrification, which has the appearance of being a beautiful marble statue, is only perfect from the waist up. It was found in a rude wooden coffin, which had been deposited in the cave, among thousands of human skulls and other remains. When the workmen opened the coffin they found that it had been filled with quicklime or some other preparation, which strongly resembled common mortar. Curious to know who had been thus carefully put away among the heaps of dead they broke into the plaster encasement and found the wonderful petrified head and bust above alluded to. Contrary to the expectations of the sightseers, the features did not crumble away on exposure to the air, but remained clear cut, lifelike and unaltered. About the head were two braids of golden hair, and across the breast both hands had been carefully folded. The face is said to be one of great beauty, every feature exhibiting intelligence and culture. This wonderful petrification is now in the studio of Hasley Bauer, a well-known Strassburg artist.

Peppermint Farms.

There are two places in the United States where the cultivation of the peppermint plant is one of the leading industries. The older of these places is in Wayne county, New York, but for a quarter of a century the business has been a well-known one in St. Joseph county, Michigan. In the latter place a farm of about four hundred acres is planted with the mint each year and alternated with clover to keep up the strength of the soil. The cultivation of the crop requires more than ordinary care. From the time the mint appears above the ground it is constantly cultivated and hoed to keep it free from weeds, which are the bane of the peppermint grower's existence. Two or three crops are gathered from each planting. The first and second crops are the best, and twenty pounds of oil to the acre is considered a good yield. The third crop is very apt to be weedy, and the yield only about ten pounds to the acre.

HARMLESS COQUETTES.

The Magyar Women Are Beautiful and Peculiar.

A continental paper gives an interesting account of the Hungarian women, a translation appearing in Mr. Stead's magazine. The real type of the Magyar woman, who speaks the language of Petoft and Jokai, is to be found in the country districts, says a London paper. Here she is to be met, with her coral lips and large, speaking eyes looking so obstinate and smiling so alluringly.

The peculiar look in the eyes of the Magyar woman, her vivacity, her quick step, as well as her inclination for comfort, lead one to suppose that she has Turkish blood in her veins. She has a good heart, a kind disposition, is tender and true, with a passionate love or a passionate hatred for her husband; she is a good mother and a trust-worthy friend.

She has her weakness, like the rest of womankind. She has a great preference for elegant toilets, for gold and silver, diamonds and pearls. She is vain, though she knows her beauty does not need any artifices of the toilet, but her coquetry is harmless and unobtrusive. She will not have anyone in love with her but her husband. The women of Budapest, like the women of all large towns, like a perfect luxury of dress. They will not only conquer in the drawing-rooms but surprise the men and women in the streets.

Look up, and not down," if you're a suffering woman. Every one of the bodily troubles that come to women only has a guaranteed cure in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. That will bring you safe and certain help.

Its a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nerve, and it builds up and invigorates the entire female system. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

For nickeration, displacements, breaking-down sensations, periodical pains, and all "female complaints," "Favorite Prescription" is the only guaranteed remedy. If it even fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.
