

SOMETHING UNUSUAL a medicine, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. And, because of that, there's something unusual the way of selling it. Where every other medicine of its kind promises, this is guaranteed. only promises, this is quaranteed. Boston Transcript. The system here is as well-nigh perfect as it is possible you have your money back.

It's the only guaranteed remedy for every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood. Dyspepsia, Biliousness, the most stub-born Skin, Scalp and Scrofulous affections, even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its earliest stages, all are cured by it.

It purifies and enriches the blood, rouses every organ into healthful action, and restores strength and vigor. In building up both flesh and strength of pale, puny, Scrofulous children, or to invigorate and brace up the system after "Grippe," pneumonia, fevers, and other prostrating acute diseases, nothing can equal the "Discovery."

THE PREVENTION CURE.

Preserving the Health of Schoolboys by Dally Attention to Their Condition.

"A Beadmaster's Wife." in an uncommonly sensible letter to a London paper, describes a plan whereby the health of schoolboys or young col-legians can be more thoroughly taken care of than is usual. In normal school practice all boys "reported sick" are excused from football and other sports. but the question is, to what extent must a schoolboy feel ailing before he reports himself sick? It is the very pluck that one admires in boys that generally works the mischief, and they often will templain until the delay has more or less seriously aggravated

Though so unready to report himself "sick," a boy will usually admit that he "does not feel very gay" if the question is put to him directly, and it is this fact that has given rise to a system which has been found to answer excellently well. each dormitory is appointed to report each night upon the condition of the boys in his dormitory. He writes on a slip of paper: "All well in such and such dormitory," and adds the date, or: "All well except so and so, who complains of this or that malaise." These slips are placed nightly on the desk of the lady manageress.

Suppose that a boy complains of headache or sore throat, he is at once summoned, the slight ailment is inquired into, a simple remedy ordered. and in nine cases out of ten nothing more is heard of the matter. If, however, it seems to be a case of chill, the boy is kept warm in the sick room for

"I am convinced," says the "Headmaster's Wife," "that being kept warm for a day or two often wards off a serious illness, and in this opinion I am supported by one of the most eminent of London physicians. A plan something analogous to this might be earried on in nearly all educational institutions. The 'preventive' takes only a day or two, the 'cure' may take weeks, and that means a serious loss of valuable work and possibly precarious health for years to come.

A BAD PLACE FOR WIDOWS. In India They Are Treated as If They Were Outcasts.

The practice of treating widows as quasi-criminats, outcasts or slaves is among Hindus of high antiquity. It is probably a substitute for a still older custom once universal among the con-quering tribes of the Asiatic world, slaying the wives of chleftains on the burial places of their lords.

As manners grew milder and men less desperate, and new religious ideas were born, that practice was abolished and widows were permitted to live. but only as persons whose right to survive must be regarded as imperfect. Their position became that of household slaves, or, rather, family outcasts, entitled to no honor, bound to servile offices, dressed in the meanest clothes, fed with the cheapest food and regarded by friends as persons who ought to consider themselves incurably degraded. Had not the very gods themselves, or the fates, pronounced them deserving of heavy suffering?

Of course, natural laws are not wholly suspended even by supersti-tion, and thousands of widows protested by personal affection, or their own abilities, or by their wealth-for widowhood does not cancel rights of property-lead decently happy and contented lives. The majority, however, suffer under the ban typified by the shaving of their heads, that is, they are regarded till death as fallen from all title to respect, and are treated with a habitual indignity which, even when they are exempt from actual oppression, makes the position of unoffending women no better than that of slaves or convicts.

So severe is their lot that it excites pity even among those who believe that it is sanctioned by religion, and it. would probably have been ameliorated long since but that it fits in with one of the principal Hindu arrangementsthat of early marriage.

STREET CARS IN ENGLAND

Some Interesting Facts Concerning Their Management.

Overgrowding Is Probibited by Law and Charges Are Regulated by the Distance Traveled An Admirable Time Systam.

This upplies to both inside and out. I do not know the reason of the concession, but this is certain, that under this admirably arranged order of things the expensive vide, preassured that it will not only be without inconveniences and annoyances but with ease and pleasure. If a conductor was to permit a second person to stand either inside or out he would be instantly relieved by one of the inspectors on the route who at intervals board the ears to check the way bill, which shows the number of passengers carried during the journey. The instellity which one asignally experiences to American ities of drivers declining to take notice of would-be passengers waiting on the dilewalk is practically unknown here. for the men know full well that two implaints of this character would cost them their situations.

To every passenger is given a ticket from a package numbered consecutivewhich must be shown when called for by the conductor, though this very proper provision is rarely exercised, for the young conductor, who is invariably By local applications, as they cannot a bright fellow, seldom makes a mistake as to who has paid and who has not. In this way any possibility of accident in that direction is avoided. The schedule of time for starting and arriving at certain points en route is admirably nine cases out of ten are maintained, and the experienced travtime a car will arrive at a certain spot, though the place may be two or three miles from the depot. There is a very important advantage which the masenger has here which the directors of companies in America do not vonehenfe. In Boston, for instance, every passenger pays five cents if he rides for live blocks; here you can go a couple of miles for a penny (two cents). If the average Englishman had to pay out five cents for a mile's ride he most certainly would walk. The principle the less the distance the smaller the cost encourages riding and keeps the cars well

Making a running noose lariat, one of the men climbed an adjoining tree, and, with a long pole, head. But the panther was too wary, knocking aside the pole every time with his paws. Suddenly the man saw another chance, and quickly slipped the noose over the broken leg and drew it tight. Then he climbed down the tree, and both men began to pull, and presently down the panther came. There was a mass of punther, dog, men and clubs, and, when it dissolved, the men and the dog were pretty badly scratched, but the panther was dead.

A "Baked Banana."

That familiar expression in the fruit trade, a "baked banana," does not refer to a banana that has been baked in a culinary sense. But any wholesale dealer in the fruit will tell you that it s a banana that has been too hastly ripened in a garret, the result being that, while it is nice to look at, it is squashy inside. Bananas are picked green in order that they may not decay during the voyage northward, and are ripened in dry, upper rooms, in which stoves raise the temperature to a more than tropical ardor. It is a barana that remains too long in one of these rooms, or gets too near a stove that is, in trade terms, a "baked
