PROOF POSITIVE.

The great question that is agitating the minds of Portland's citizens just now is, "Were Mrs. Potter and Mr. Bellow in the Rev. Wallace's church when that gentleman made his attack upon them?" Of course it doesn't much matter whether they were or not, for they have not only managed to beat the Oregonian, but also the Telegram, out of some of the best advertising that was ever put up on the coast. Looked at from a business standpoint, one would almost believe Mr. Wallace was a party to the scheme. We do not mean to say that he was, for in fact we do not believe that way, but he can console himself with the reflection that his ill-advised attack will cause hundreds to visit the theater where the Bellow-Potter combination shows.

Mr. Wallace says both Mrs. Potter and Mr. Bellow were in his church when he denounced them. Mrs. Potter, Mr. Bellow, Mrs. Emery and others say they were not there. It is quite probable that the Rev. Wallace was mistaken, and indeed there is no reason why any of the parties should deny their presence in church on Sunday, if they were present. If they were, it is to be supposed that they will not repeat the offense in Mr. Wallace's church.

The plot of the play which so aroused Mr. Wallace's ire is of the stereotyped order, not worse than "Camille," not worse than "Frou Frou," both old-timers that are favorites of the matinee.

The really ludicrous part of the comedy is supplied by our contemporary, the Evening Telegram. That paper, profiting by its recent stage-robbing experience, insists on having the public understand that its information is correct, and we give below a specimen of its egot reasoning, from which it arrives at the conclusion that Mrs. Potter's statement that she was not there is true. The Telegram says:

Mrs. Emery can be relied upon, for she comes from a family not given to the fabrication of stories. She is the daughter of the late General George Sykes, who commanded the Twentieth United States Infantry, and during the civil war was in command of the Fifth army corps. He was a West Point classmate of General Sherman, and was with General Scott in the Seminole and Mexican wars. Many of this lady's relatives have been officers in the United States army since the organization of its government, and "army ladies" are proverbial for their high sense of honor and truthfulness.

We hazard the opinion that no so unique a bit of reasoning has been adduced to establish a person's veracity since the late Judge Deady decided in the Sarah-Althea-Hill-Sharon (and afterwards Terry matter, that little red-headed Bill Sharon had so much money he couldn't tell a lie. We doubt not but that Mrs. Emery is a truthful little lady, but whether that truthfulness is due to the fact that some of her relatives were in the army, or that her father was a classmate of General Sherman, is an open question.

WE DON'T NEED IT.

The third national irrigation congress meets at Denver September 1st. We are in receipt of a brief communication from the secretary of that congress showing the number of acres available for cultivation by irrigation. The arid lands are estimated at 885,312,000 acres or two-fifths of the entire area of the United States, of which he says 616,000,000 will produce crops if irrigated. We are a firm believer in irrigation, but just now the raising of crops by any system is an unprofitable business. If the Denver congress could manage to find or create a market for the agricultural products raised without irrigation it would fill a long felt want. The farmers are too numerous now, and the markets are over done. Until the demand catches up with the supply there is little use in agitating the irrigation matter. The best and biggest crops can be raised under that system; but wherefore raise them?

A glance at our front page will show that we have ceased taking the dispatches. We have done so for several reasons, the first of which is that the onlay does not yield returns in the shape of increased patronage. We did not really expect that it would, or that we should continue the service beyond the time when the cars were again running. The Dalles ought to be able to support a paper taking the dispatches but it will not. Many of our people have taken the Oregonian so long, that they consider it little short of sacrilege for any paper to print the news ahead of it, and could not possibly believe anything unless the Oregonian printed it first. As that paper with the full dispatches now arrives shortly after noon, although then twenty hours later than the brief dispatches we get, it is quite sufficient for The Dalles.

LET HER RIP.

The Eugene Guard says: A street fakir last evening held forth in a saloon of the city. He drank an immense quantity of water, punctured his face, arms and neck with large steel pins and sewed his mouth. When he took up a collection and only received 80 cents for his infliction he was just a little hot—and he had a right to be.

That was a peculiar situation. You see the fellow had his mouth sewed up, and although he wanted to swear mildly, he could do nothing but rip out an oath.

An exchange says the drift of opinion is that "populism is declining." We fail to see how anyone can arrive at that conclusion. The fact is that populism is increasing and that rapidly. How long this will continue, or whether it will continue long enough to place the party in power no man can tell. But there is no use deceiving ourselves about the pops. In two years they increased their vote in this state in a phenomenal manner, and stepped from third to second place. The recent strike is going to add thousands to the populist vote taking a majority of them from the democrats. Debs and his followers are disgusted with democracy, and have no promises held out to them by the republicans, hence they will drift into the populist camp.

It is a pleasure to read of the way criminal prosecutions are conducted in France. The trial of Santo for the murder of President Carnot was begun Thursday, and Friday at noon the case had gone to the jury. Fifteen minutes later a verdict of "guilty without extenuating circumstances" was returned and Santo was at once sentenced to have his head chopped off. A notice of appeal was given, but in France that appeal will be taken care of and decided within a week and without further parley Santo will be strapped on a board, pushed under the guillotine, and a moment later his head will be in the basket. There is no wasted sentiment about getting rid of such as he. Being recognized as a dangerous animal, he is put out of the way, as such.

The Oregon Weekly Democrat, published at Salem by E. H. Flag, gives notice in its issue of August 3d, that that will be the last copy of the paper, it suspending and with no intention of resuming. The editor (as most democratic editors do) quite cheerfully saying that to maintain the paper was using up his means, and that a democratic paper could not live in Marion county. If our democratic friends will keep up their wise course in Oregon, in another year or two it will be a close race between them and the prohibitionists for the honor of chasing the political procession.

Rene Bache, writing to Sunday's Oregonian, gives some account of the luxuries furnished the United States senators by an indulgent government. The list is a long and very interesting one, and among other good things supplied is twenty-three gallons of cologne a year. One would think that with this amount of perfume, the senate could be saved from becoming a stench in the nostrils of the country, but the unsavory smells coming from the recent sugar deal in the tariff bill would require that many barrels of cologne to counteract. It is a malodorous body.

The after-piece of Rev. Wallace attack on Mrs. Potter is to be played, coming in the shape of a suit for $50,000 damages for defamation of character, the lady fixing the damages at a rather high figure. Mrs. Potter, having received a benefit from the matter ought to let it drop, but then some people are never satisfied. If the defense will get a lot of newspaper men to testify, the lady will get nothing, for it will be shown that her character was not injured, and her business received a fine boost.

It begins to look as though an agreement would be reached between the senate and house on the tariff bill, and that agreement would be practically the senate bill, with some very slight modifications. President Cleveland said that this could not be done without "perfidy and dishonor," but the chances are that if congress can agree, he will put his signature to the bill, under the impression that "perfidy and dishonor" is the only thing the two houses can agree on.

This is a hard season of the year for the hungry if the advice of the medical fraternity is followed. One fact says eat little or no meat, for meat produces heat and disease. Another lot says eat little or no vegetables, for green vegetables produce cholera morbus. The only show seems to be to call every day Friday, and fill up on fish.

OF THE SAME OPINION STILL.

The tariff bill still hangs fire, and the opinions that it will, or will not pass are as varied as the process of reasoning by different individuals. We have maintained at all times that the bill would not pass, unless the senate should concede everything. We are still of that opinion. We know that the great majority do not agree with that idea, but we are of the same opinion still. The Telegram thinks the senate has the whip hand because the congressmen will have soon to go before the country for re-election, and in order to do so must pass some kind of an excuse for a tariff bill. We cannot agree with this opinion. These congressmen were elected upon a practically free trade platform. It looks to us as though their only chance for re-election is to go back to the people with clean hands. If the bill does not pass, they can say that they did what they agreed to, that they passed practically such a bill as had been promised, and that the senate prevented the bill becoming a law. What other course is left open to them? They would put a pitiful defence indeed were they to say, "the senate would not pass such a bill as the party wanted, and promised the people, and so we had to take their bill or none." We see no other course for the members of the house, than to stand on their bill. On the other hand the democratic senators from Louisiana and one or two others hold the balance of power. They are determined to protect sugar, and have formed a combination with one or two fellow senators who are interested in coal and iron, by which no bill can be passed without their consent.

The matter in dispute then is no longer the tariff bill, but involves the principle of majority rule. If five senators can not only dictate to the senate, but also to the house and the president, then our law-making system is wrong. The democracy may stand it, but we do not believe they will. Hence we are still of the opinion that the tariff bill will not pass.

THE OUTLOOK BETTER.

The financial situation is improving all over the country, money being much easier to get on good security, than it was a few months ago. Financial panics whereby the purse strings are drawn tight, are generally followed by periods of abundant money. Capital soon tires of lying idle, and capitalists weary of getting no returns. It is probable that money will be abundant and easy to get within the next few months. Oregon has fine crops, and these with the inflow of home-seekers should give us a season of prosperity. Whether the Wilson bill passes or not, times are bound to be better, because stocks are used up, and factories must again be started. There has not been a time in years that stocks of manufactured goods were so low, and this in nearly all lines. Wages may not be so high, in fact are quite likely to drop slightly in many occupations, but at least there will be employment. While wages will drop nominally they will still, as far as the purchasing power of a day's labor goes be as good as ever. Two dollars today will purchase about as much in all lines as $2.50 would a year ago. While all like to see good wages, this fact should be taken into consideration by the laborers.

The war between China and Japan gives promise of drawing other countries into it. England would take a hand unless she thought she could make more money by staying out, and Russia boldly asserts that she will not permit any nation to gain a foothold in Corea.

Dufur Delays.

The weather the past week was still, warm and sultry, but yesterday turned off somewhat cooler and such a breeze with a perfect storm of dust.

Harvesting is progressing under favorable conditions. The heads of grain they say are well filled and a heavy crop this year in Wasco county and the farmers are looking more cheerful.

Miss Kate Heiser has returned home to Dufur from Sinemaslo after being absent one year.

Mrs. W. H. H. Dufur will start Thursday for Portland on her way to visit her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Herrin made a brief visit to our burg last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnham Dufur passed through here on their way to the mountains for an outing.

We see Mr. A. Howie's familiar face among us again, how long he will remain we are unable to say.

Mr. D. Maloney and Mr. A. Stubling of The Dalles were out for a hunting and fishing expedition yesterday.

Mr. Frank Peabody has gone to Bake Oven to paint a house for Mr. Hinton.

A very sad accident occurred here Saturday. Mrs. Nolin, familiarly known as "Grandma Nolin," was driving home from the funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Green's infant child, when her horse by some means became frightened, jumping side ways threw her from the cart on her head, which resulted in fatal injuries. Grandma Nolin was an exemplary christian woman and will be sadly missed. She leaves a husband and four children to mourn her loss. They have the sympathy of the entire community. The funeral services take place from the M. E. church today at 2 o'clock.

War Vessel of Japan Rammed by a Chinese Ironclad.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The Chinese minister here has received an official dispatch stating that the Chinese ironclad Ting Yuan rammed and sunk a Japanese warship of the same name, July 27. The Ting Yuan is an armored steel battleship, the exact duplicate of the Chen Yunn, which, it was reported, had been sunk by the Japanese, but which, it turned out, escaped from the naval battle badly damaged.

Nothing Known in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Neither the Japanese nor the Chinese legation has received any news today respecting the progress of war between those countries. A big batch of mail reached the Japanese legation, but it contained nothing of importance not already made public. Nothing is known as to the date of the coming of the new minister to succeed Mr. Goro Tanano, who departed for Japan last week.

Kenneth Basmore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton, Druggists.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

QUEER HUMAN NATURE.

What is Food for One Man is Blanket Poison for Another.

Human nature continues to be as "queer" as it ever was. The mayor of Portland, Me., in an address at a recent Temperance meeting, says the New York Post, told of a young Englishman who came to that city seven years ago in order to escape the temptations of open saloons, which he could not resist and which threatened his ruin, and who has been sober ever since, and has risen from earning four dollars a week to a salary of twenty-five hundred dollars a year. On the other hand, we have been told by a clergyman in another Maine city of a young man who was being ruined there by the temptations of the "social clubs," which took the place of saloons as drinking places, and who came to New York for salvation, which he found there, because the open rumshop had no charms for him. In the manner many of the most thoughtful and conservative citizens of Des Moines, Ia., have signed the petition for the introduction of saloons in that city under the new liquor law, because they believe that the change will diminish the terrible amount of drunkenness among our young men which has prevailed under the prohibitory law and the club-system. These instances show how differently the same influences affect different persons and how impossible it is to find any system which is perfect.

Deifying a Chinese Woman.

It is possible for any Chinaman, or even any Chinese woman, to become a deity by paying for the honor. A few years ago a rich and devout Chinese lady died in Szechoo. Her friends thought that an apotheosis was no more than her due, and communicated with the priests, who interviewed the gods on the subject, and discovered that the god of the left little toenail had to wife. The old lady was accordingly married to his godship, and is now enrolled as the "goddess of the left little toenail." The honor cost the old lady's estate over five thousand dollars.

The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the motor force of the human mind, is a specialty marked as a branch of science, as it concerns the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and is conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body. This electrical force is the vital force of the body, and it is the source of all the energy that we possess.

Physicians generally fail to recognize the importance of the nerve force in the human body. The nerve force is the source of all the energy that we possess, and it is the source of all the life that we have. It is the nerve force that controls the organs of the body, and it is the nerve force that gives us the power to think and to act. The nerve force is the source of all the energy that we possess, and it is the source of all the life that we have.
