

HELP IS WANTED

by the women who are ailing and suffering, or weak and exhausted. And, to every such woman, help is guaranteed by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For young girls just entering womanhood; women at the critical "change of life"; women approaching confinement; nursing mothers; and every woman who is "run-down" or overworked, it is a medicine that builds up, strengthens, and regulates, no matter what the condition of the system.

It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and bracing nerve, and the only guaranteed remedy for "female complaints" and weaknesses. In bearing-down sensations, periodical pains, ulceration, inflammation, and every kindred ailment, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

Dr. Sage's Remedy promises to cure your Catarrh—permanently.

While coon hunting, John Rider, of Dutchtown, Mo., lost an eye in a very peculiar way. He was going up a tree in search of a coon, when an owl flew down and tore out his eyeball with its claw.

Kenneth Rasmussen had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton, druggists.

Evangelical charity hospitals annually relieve 145,000 sick. The annual expense of raising an orphan in France is $50.

My boy was taken with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is inclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primor, Campbell Co., Tenn. For sale by Blakely & Houghton drug-gist.

Miss HARBET MONROE, who wrote the "World's Fair Ode," is delivering a course of lectures on the English poets, at the Newberry library, Chicago.

"I know an old soldier who had chronic diarrhoea of long standing to have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Edward Shmupik, a prominent druggist of Minneapolis, Minn. "I have sold the remedy in this city for seven years and consider it superior to any other medicine now on the market for bowel complaints." 25 and 50 cent bottles of this remedy for sale by Blakely & Houghton drug-gists.

A quaint custom, which has been practiced for centuries, still prevails in Holborn, England. The time of night is hourly shouted by the watchman, somewhat in this style: "Past one o'clock, and a cold, wet morning."

A QUEER COMBINATION.

The Breakfast of a Rounder After a Night Out.

An Illustration of Lucernin Origin Yet Familiar to All Visitors—Opinions of Physicians on the Try-ing Mixture.

"Take six men of the world—gentlemen, I mean, of an all round social experience, who have been unfortunate enough to stay too long with their liquor once in awhile—and probably five of them will tell you what is meant by the term "drunkard's breakfast," says the New York Herald.

For the enlightenment of the sixth member it may be explained that a "drunkard's breakfast," so called in many small clubs and restaurants, consists of a salt mackerel, boiled, not broiled; a dish of milk toast, and a pot of strong, hot tea. This is a repast which is supposed to be peculiarly adapted to the stomach of a man who permitted himself to be tempted to look too promiscuously upon the wine the night before.

My wife's absence from home compelled me to take my meals at the restaurants recently. For my first breakfast I went to one of the fine hotels in the immediate neighborhood. The restaurant was chilly, and that, added to a severe cold in my head, must have given a watery appearance to my eyes and a nervous tremor to my hand as I took a seat and picked up a bill of fare. An obsequious waiter stood at hand to receive my order. I ran over the list of meats a second time, pausing, mentally, midway 'twixt a steak and a chop. The waiter, noting my indecision, but utterly mistaking the spirit behind it all, stepped to my side and with perfect politeness said: "Eef I may be permit, I recom-mend ze salt mackerel, wis ze meek toast and ze tea—ver nice. It ee-z breakfast populair wis gentlemen after ze excitement of ze long night."

The fellow had actually recommended a drunkard's breakfast for my condition, although as a matter of fact I hadn't taken a drink in a year and a half!

Next morning I went into another restaurant near by—not exactly a first-class place, but an extraordinarily good second-class one—where the business is enormous, the cooking excellent and the service generally satisfactory. My eyes were bloodshot and watery still, the result of a neuralgic attack. The waiter, a devious, hand-some German-American, handed me the bill of fare, eyed me suspiciously, but not rudely, for an instant and then remarked in an undertone: "How would a nice salt mackerel, boiled, a plate of milk toast and a pot of tea suit you this morning? That is what many of our patrons order for breakfast after they have been out late. Much better than cocktails, I assure you."

There was no impertinence in the man's voice or manner. He didn't dream of being intrusive. He merely thought he was doing me a friendly service in suggesting a regular bracing "drunkard's breakfast."

The same suggestion will be offered in many first-class restaurants to any man whose appearance or manner in any way excites the suspicion that he drank too much the night before. The hint is always offered politely and quietly, and only after the waiter has convinced himself that his purpose in making the suggestion will not be misunderstood.

And thus, in some mysterious way, it has come to be believed among restaurant waiters that for a man who has had a long drinking bout the correct breakfast should consist of salt mackerel, milk toast and tea! It is an extraordinary combination, surely, and why it is peculiarly adapted to the condition of a man recovering from a spree is as mysterious as the identity of the genius who first proposed it.

A popular physician who was spoken to with reference to this sad said: "Yes, I know what a 'drunkard's breakfast' is, but why any man suffering from over-indulgence in drink should eat such a meal is more than I can tell. Salt mackerel is harsh, acrid, hot and irritating to an already congested stomach. I can think of no article of food more likely to increase the digestive disorders due to drink than salt mackerel."

Another physician of long practice and wide observation said: "It would be interesting to know how and with whom the 'drunkard's breakfast' originated. It is a ridiculous idea. None but a normal stomach in healthy condition can digest a salt mackerel without discomfort, or at least unpleasant reminders of its presence. It is a fish that I am very fond of, but if I eat of it even after drinking moderately it causes an attack of indigestion. My only theory of its supposed popularity as a breakfast dish for one who has taken a drop too much is this: Its saltiness excites thirst for great quantities of cold water, which is, in my opinion, of real benefit to a stomach fevered with alcoholic irritation. It enables him to drink water copiously until the stomach is cleaned and cooled, and the alcohol in his tissues becomes so diluted that it is the more easily eliminated from his system. As for its elementary value in such cases, I can't see that it has any. The milk toast would be all right, but salt mackerel and tea—what an insult and crime it is to force them upon a stomach already smarting and burning under the abuse of alcohol!"

Nevertheless the "drunkard's breakfast" is an institution and a fixture. If you don't believe it just go into an up-town restaurant some morning when you do not feel on particularly good terms with yourself and allow the waiter to infer from your manner that you were somewhat off the coast the night before. If that waiter is up to date and estimates you as one of kindly spirit, he will discreetly suggest a breakfast consisting of salt mackerel, milk toast and tea.

Very Strange. The Somerville Journal has a story of little Dorothy, six years old, who, like other children, is a born egotist. She went out for a horse car ride with her aunt. She had her new purse with her and was very desirous to pay her own fare, but her aunt said no. "You are my guest," she explained to Dorothy, "so I must pay your fare, but you may take the ten cents and hand it to the conductor, if you like." So Dorothy took the dime and when the conductor came along she handed it to him in the most dignified manner. He gave her a quick look, and estimating that she was under the five-year limit, he rang in only one fare, and handed back a five-cent piece, which Dorothy took without a word. "Wasn't it strange," she asked after she got home, "the conductor took my fare, but he didn't charge Aunt Alice any fare at all?"

M. PAGESSE, founder of the famous brasserie in Paris, died some weeks ago, leaving a large fortune, amassed through the success of the beer halls. He bequeathed over $200,000 to be divided among twelve old customers of his first establishment, whose potatoes started him on the highway to prosperity.

Elevators for the Queen. Since Queen Victoria met with an accident at Windsor castle eleven or twelve years ago, when one of her knees was injured, she has found it very troublesome and sometimes painful either to ascend or descend a staircase. This difficulty has lately increased so much that an elevator has just been placed in the private apartments of Windsor castle for her majesty's use, and another is to be fitted up at Osborne. The queen has a greater number of steps to ascend at Osborne than at any other of the palaces, as her own apartments are in the pavilion near the top of the house. Elevators are also being made for Buckingham palace and Balmoral, which will be ready for use in the spring. There was one in Buckingham palace for some years, which was made for the duke of Albany, although after his death it was removed.

An Old Song. When giants lived in ancient times, Sing high, my boy, sing ho! In good old England, or foreign climes, Sing high, my boy, sing ho! They carried things with a high old hand, Not strong, nor weak, could before them stand, And they sailed where they pleased throughout the land. Sing high, my boy, sing ho!

But the giants didn't have things their own way when Jack-the-giant-killer arrived on the scene. You remember the story. Recollect, too, that every age has its giant-killer. We have our giants in the form of all sorts of dread diseases, supposed to be incurable. Our Jack is in the form of Dr. Pierce, who has proven the expression "incurable diseases" to be a fallacy. Can you imagine more potent weapons to assist a woman in killing the giant-disease, than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription? It's the only guaranteed remedy for all functional disturbances, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of womanhood. In female complaints of every kind, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. It's simply a question of the company you prefer—the giant or Jack?
