

A Defaulting Cashier.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23.—"Harry A. Gardner, the defaulting cashier of the Second national bank of Altoona, is en route for China or Japan, and he has the sum of $100,000 in bank notes of large and small denominations. So spoke Samuel B. Griffith, as assistant district attorney, when asked today regarding the truth of the rumor that Gardner had been in this city Tuesday. "Gardner was in Portland a few days ago," said Mr. Griffith, and he has likely left the country by this time. A week ago last Monday Gardner learned that Bank Examiner Miller was going to investigate his accounts. Gardner at once began preparations for flight, and left that afternoon, taking every dollar of the bank's money he could carry."

A Dastardly Crime.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 23.—An attempt was made early this morning to burn down the Atchison hotel at Berkeley and destroy the occupants. One of the lodgers was aroused about 4 o'clock by a smell of smoke. Rushing out he found the whole hall entrance in flames. The flames were soon extinguished. In the meantime, fire was discovered on the porch at the side and in front of the hotel, and this was also put out. Under the front steps was found a can of coal oil. The same fluid had been poured on the porches and in the upper and lower halls and then set on fire. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the crime.

Leaped From a Lofly Tower.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 23.—Colonel J. M. Winstead, president of the Piedmont and People's Savings bank of Greensboro, N. C., this morning removed his shoes and jumped from one of the towers of the city hall here, a distance of 170 feet. He was terribly mangled, his left leg being caught in a projection and torn from the socket. No cause is known. Speaker Crisp, who spent some time with the president today in discussion of the tariff situation, told the members he thought the session would last until Tuesday.

Miners Have Stopped Work.

How Cloves Grow.

The small evergreen tree from which cloves are taken was originally a native of the Spice Islands, but it is now cultivated in warm climates in all parts of the world. The clove of commerce is the unopened flower of the tree. They are quite small, but grow in large clusters among the branches. After gathering the buds are smoked by a wood fire and dried in the sun. Both the taste and smell of the cloves depend on the quantity of oil they contain. Sometimes the oil is separated from the cloves before they are sold, and the odor and taste are in consequence much weakened. If you desire to know something of the form of the bud in the natural state soak a few cloves for a short time in hot water. The petals of the flower will soften and readily unroll.

Hill and the Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Senator Hill expects to be an attorney in the first case brought to test the constitutionality of the income tax.

A HOLE THROUGH THE EARTH.

Where Would a Ball Dropped Into It Come to a Stop?

"W. J. M." residing at Richmond, Mo., sends the following peculiar query to the editor of the St. Louis Republic, and asks for an answer to it:

"If it were possible to drill a hole of a foot or more in diameter entirely through the earth and then to start a ball weighing one hundred pounds or more to falling through the same at what point would it stop?"

Answer: Weight, in the sense that "W. J. M." refers to it, is the measure of attraction of gravitation; or, in other words, it is the measure of force with which a body is attracted by the earth. This attractive force decreases both ways from the surface of the earth, both outward into space or downward toward the globe's supposed molten center. In partial explanation of this assertion I will say that any given size bulk of iron, or any other mineral or material whatever, will weigh less on the top of a high mountain than it will at sea level. In order to be exact in this matter I will say that a mass of one thousand pounds weight will lose exactly two pounds between tidewater and the top of a mountain four miles high. This, it is plain to be seen, is because the force of the earth's attraction is much less on the mountain top than it is at the sea level.

Therefore, if a ball be started on the journey outlined in the query sent in by our Richmond friend, its weight would decrease to a certain extent with every yard of its flight (or fall), until, finally, upon reaching the center of the earth, it would have no appreciable weight, the attraction at that point acting equally in every direction. This being true, it is plain that the phenomenon of what we know as "weight" would be entirely wanting, and the ball would be held in suspension as though immovably transfixed by numerous magnetic or invisible points.

MARRIAGE FOR YOUNG MEN.

Usually the Only Thing That Will Make a Man Save Money.

This is a true story, and one that will apply to many other young men besides this particular one. It is a great pity that this is true, says the Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette, but so it is.

A prosperous business man who employs quite a number of clerks said recently that he had been led to the conclusion that the young man who saved and invested his earnings is an exception to the rule. He was surprised to find this to be true. The facts came out when he began reducing his working force as business fell off. The first to be dropped were those who had no family depending upon them. Then it was that they would confess they hadn't saved a dollar, and had no means whatever upon which to live.

This same man also observed that the married men nearly all had saved something, notwithstanding their salaries were no larger, and in some cases less, than those drawn by single men.

By quizzing these young bachelors he found that riotous living was the principal cause of their poverty. Some of them gambled on the quiet, and others just naturally let it go right and left as long as there was any to go.

From this he concluded that marriage is a very good thing for a young man, provided he marries a sensible, practical sort of a woman. Hereafter he proposes to give married men the preference because, in so doing, he will be helping those who are willing to help themselves.

BUILDING A HOUSE IN BERMUDA

The Walls and the Roof Made Out of White Coral Rock.

Any man who chooses, says an article on Bermuda in the Review of Reviews, may scrape the thin coating of earth off from his proposed building site and proceed to lay up the walls of his habitation with the blocks sawed out in the process of excavating his cellar.

Thus when the cellar is dug the house may be ready for roofing, and if enough roofing material has not already been accumulated in the course of the excavation, it can easily be had by digging the cellar a trifle deeper, for the roofs in Bermuda are invariably made out of thin slabs of this same white coral rock. It has the advantage of being so soft that one may cut it with an ordinary handsaw ten hours a day for six months or a year without refiling the saw. It may be sawed into slabs two or three inches thick and eighteen inches or two feet square without particular danger of breaking the slabs. It looks somewhat like a very soft, chalky variety of marble.

Though so workable when first quarried it hardens upon exposure. Moisture permeates it easily, however, and it is desirable that a building should be covered with a thin coating of Portland cement or a mixture of common plaster with cement. This coating is then treated with a heavy whitewash made of lime burned from the same ever-ready coral rock. The roofs and chimneys, as well as the walls, are kept constantly whitewashed and are absolutely as white as the driven snow.

Coals of Fire.

Roger, the celebrated French tenor, on one occasion was engaged for the sum of fifteen hundred francs to sing at the house of a rich financier. Roger sang his first song magnificently, but no one paid him the slightest attention and the guests talked their loudest. Presently the host thought the time had come for another song, and sent for Roger. He could not be found, and that evening was seen no more. Next day a note came from him, accompanied by the sum of two thousand francs. The note ran thus: "I have the honor to return the fifteen hundred francs which I received for singing at your party, and I beg leave to add five hundred francs more for having so greatly disturbed the conversation of your guests."

Mrs. J. H. HOBSNYDER, 152 Pacific Ave., Santa Cruz, Cal., writes:

"When a girl at school, in Reading, Ohio, I had a severe attack of brain fever. On my recovery, I found myself perfectly bald, and, for a long time, I feared I should be permanently so. Friends urged me to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, on doing so, my hair Began to Grow, and I now have as fine a head of hair as one could wish for, being changed, however, from blonde to dark brown."

"After a fit of sickness, my hair came out in combfalls. I used two bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor and now my hair is over a yard long and very full and heavy. I have recommended this preparation to others with like good effect."—Mrs. Sidney Carr, 140 Regina st., Harrisburg, Pa.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years and always obtained satisfactory results. I know it is the best preparation for the hair that is made."—C. T. Arnett, Mammoth Spring, Ark.

She Exposed the Prince.

The crown prince of Denmark visited a female seminary in Copenhagen the other day to hear the girls recite. One little girl near him became confused and forgot her lesson, whereupon he took her on his lap, and she thenceforth answered every question correctly. Subsequently, when praised for her knowledge, she replied: "Why, the crown prince whispered all the answers to me."
