THE DALLES, OREGON

Clubbing List.

The CHRONICLE, which gives the news twice a week, has made arrangements to club with the following publications, and offers two papers one year for little more than the price of one:

Table with 3 columns: Publication Name, Regular Price, Our Price. Includes Chronicle and V. V. Tribune, Chronicle and Weekly Oregonian, Chronicle and Commercial Magazine.

THE COMING QUESTION.

The political conventions have met in nearly all the states, have formulated their platforms, and are ready to go before the people on the issues made. We have watched carefully the trend of opinion, yet neither in republican, democratic, nor populist platform, is the immigration question touched.

The fire has been kindled, and it cannot be stamped out. Inside of four years it will be the one issue on which the battle for political supremacy will be fought, and the party that first has the manliness to grasp the situation will be the party that will win.

The Oregonian occasionally reprints an editorial that first appeared in its columns Nov. 9th, 1892. As it predicted in that article that, "We shall now have a free trade policy," we suggest that it let up.

The advocates of free silver have some pretty strong argument in their favor. It seems that the production of gold is now greater than at any time in the history of the world.

This country is growing, and growing rapidly, and though we have now nearly a million tramps, a few years would soon absorb them and set them to work were the influx of foreigners ready to take the work as fast as it is made, cut off.

There was quite a lively debate in the conference this morning over a resolution, which was in substance as follows: "Resolved that the Columbia River Conference repudiate all affiliation with any political party that is not in favor of temperance."

IN DEEP WATER.

It strikes us that the Columbia Conference now in session here will have to get out a search warrant to find just where they are at. This morning a resolution was adopted in substance declaring that the conference repudiate all affiliation with all political parties that are not in favor of temperance.

We understand that certain parties were looking for the writer here last night for the purpose of putting a bead on him. As we peruse the scant columns of our local page we almost wish they would do it, provided there is something in it.

The mushroom secret societies are multiplying so fast that it is impossible to keep track of them. There are so many kinds of knights that they slip over into the day time, and nearly every man you meet wears from one to half a dozen badges showing that he is knight.

Both Bradstreet and Dun's commercial agencies report increased activity in all lines of business. Manufacturers are starting up all over the country; the bonded warehouses are full of imported goods; and a feeling of general relief seems to pervade the entire business world.

The Oregonian is advocating the proposition that Oregon make a display exhibit at the Tacoma affair. It is doing this because it is paid for doing it.

line with the movement known as the A. P. A. and tend to bring the churches as such, and religion, into politics. We believe this will not tend to purify politics and that it will insure to the injury of religion.

It seems definitely settled that congress will adjourn Tuesday, and that no more legislation will be possible at this session. The senate has barely a quorum, and it is expected enough senators will leave Washington tomorrow to destroy that. Congress is simply waiting the action or inaction of the president on the tariff bill.

The democrats of California have nominated their candidates for state offices, adopted a platform and are ready to meet all comers in the political battle this fall. What the result will be no man can foresee, for there are three parties in the field.

The carload of fruit shipped from this point to Chicago a few weeks ago did not yield the returns expected. The prices ranged from fifty to sixty cents, which will about pay the freight. The eastern market is flooded with fruit of this kind from California, and it seems settled that it will be of no value to us.

The queen has prorogued the English parliament, and the rogues can go home at the same time come do.

THE CHANGE WILL COME.

Smarting under the action of the senate on the tariff bill recently before it, Mr. Tucker introduced a resolution in the house, providing for amending the constitution so that United States senators should be elected by a direct vote of the people.

The system of assessments in Oregon is decidedly crude. We venture the assertion that thousands of dollars of taxes are lost each year by every county in the state. Wasco is no exception.

There is no man who can, under the existing conditions, make a fair and thorough assessment of this county. Some property is bound to escape; in fact does escape.

HANGING AT LAKEVIEW.

Lakeview had a hanging by a mob Monday evening two weeks ago. A man named Wm. Thompson had been arrested for pulling a gun on W. Z. Moss and was confined in jail.

The examination into the causes of the strike at Pullman brings to light the questionable methods of the Pullman company in dealing with its employees.

The Food Staples of the Future to be Made in Factories.

From an interview with Professor Berthelot, the French chemist, in Medicine's Magazine for September.

"Do you mean to predict that all our milk, eggs, meat and flour will in the future be made in factories?" "Why not, if it proves cheaper and better to make the same materials than to grow them?"

"Tea and coffee could now be made artificially," continued the professor, "if the necessity should arise, or the commercial opportunity, through the necessary supplementary mechanical inventions, had been reached."

"And what about tobacco?" "The essential principle of tobacco, as you know, is nicotine.

THE SERPENT'S GAZE.

Strange Muscular Power That Assails Them in Fascinating Their Victims.

The power of continuing motionless, with the lifted head projecting forward for an indefinite time, is one of the most wonderful of the serpent's muscular feats, and is one of the highest importance to the animal, both when fascinating its victim and when mimicking some inanimate object.

Ernest Gianville, a South African writer, thus describes his own experience in the Fortnightly Review. When a boy he frequently went out into the bush in quest of game, and on one of these solitary excursions he sat down to rest in the shade of a willow on the bank of a shallow stream.

"Presently, without apparent motion, so softly and silently was it done, the snake reared its head above the surface and held it there erect and still, with gleaming eyes fixed on me in question of what I was."

"The faint, it must be explained, is a powerful and malignant being that takes the form of a great serpent and lies at night in some deep, dark pool, and should a man incautiously approach and look down into the water he would be held there by the power of the great gleaming eyes, and finally drawn down against his will, powerless and speechless, to disappear forever in the black depths."

ANGLO-INDIAN WOMEN.

There Are More Sorts Than Mr. Kipling Has Introduced to Us.

The Anglo-Indian woman is a more varied type than ever Mr. Kipling's versatile pen has made her. According to the description of one sojourner in the land of the Hindoos, says the New York Recorder, the Mrs. Anandees are no more common than the women burning for a desire for knowledge and parading views on the education of the native woman.

The athletic young woman does not flourish to quite the same degree in India as in England. The climate is against it. But a modified form of the athletic girl in the "man's woman" is a prominent feature of society.

But the commonest type is the simulated simpleton. She cannot ride her own pony. She is afraid of him; he once shied and she fell off, but she thinks she might manage to mount that dear little Arab of Capt. Ward's if he would take her for a short and very quiet ride.

A Temple Made from a Single Stone.

Mayalipman, India, has seven of the most remarkable temples in the world, each of these unique pieces of worship having been fashioned from solid granite boulders.

A NARROW ESCAPE!

How it Happened.

The following remarkable event in a lady's life will interest the reader: "For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which increased during the day, and I had no relief, and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and bech myself from my stomach until I thought every minute would be my last."
