

TO STOP THE PROGRESS of Consumption, you will find but one guaranteed remedy—Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. In advanced cases, it brings comfort and relief; if you haven't delayed too long, it will certainly cure. It doesn't claim too much. It won't make new lungs—nothing can; but it will make diseased ones sound and healthy, when everything else has failed.

The scrofulous affection of the lungs that's caused Consumption, like every other form of Scrofula, and every blood-taint and disorder, yields to the "Discovery." It is the most effective blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder known to medical science. In all Bronchial, Throat and Lung Affections, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

A perfect and permanent cure for your Catarrh—or $500 in cash. This is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

A misunderstanding: "Yes, I was at the church. The bride walked in on the arm of her father." "What! I didn't know that she was an acrobat.—Texas Sittings.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton, druggists.

Youngun—Newlywed was telling me that his wife writes him two or three times a week. All for love, of course. Olhand—Humph! I'll bet its mostly for money.—Buffalo Courier.

Deafness Cannot be Cured By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

"I know an old soldier who had chronic diarrhoea of long standing to have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Edward Shumplik, a prominent druggist of Minneapolis, Minn. "I have sold the remedy in this city for seven years and consider it superior to any other medicine now on the market for bowel complaint." 25 and 50 cent bottles of this remedy for sale by Blakely & Houghton druggists.

My boy was taken with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is inclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primory, Campbell Co., Tenn. WILD HOGS IN ARIZONA.

Large Droves of Degenerate Descendants of Tame Porkers.

The Thrilling Experience of an Over-Cautious Hunter Who Went Out to Bag a Tender Young Sucker—A Bad Old Bear.

The wildest of wild hogs live both above and below Yuma, on the Colorado river, says the San Francisco Chronicle. While the steamer was lying at Castle Dome landing a few days since, loading with ore, a fine band of them on the opposite shore came down to the river to feed on the banks, where the grass and weeds were green, and to get a drink of water. They paid no attention to the boat or to the Indians at work. After loafing around for awhile an old bear came out of the brush, and, on spying us, gave a "swish," and away they all went. Hardly a day passes that the Indians and cattlemen do not run upon them. These bands seem to be more timid than ugly. When the late Thomas Blythe was trying to settle a colony at Lerdo, forty-five miles below Yuma on the Colorado, he set down a large number of very fine full-blooded Berkshire and Poland-China pigs, and turned them loose on the banks of the river near Lerdo, where they lived on the roots, grass, weeds, tules and mesquite beans; bred, multiplied, kept fat and filled the low and tule lands with a large number of fine porkers. Never seeing a human being, except now and then a lone Indian, they soon became wild, and wilder still, and scattered until the low lands and woods were full of them. Notwithstanding that the coyotes slaughtered the little ones in great numbers, they have increased until it is estimated that at the present time there are more than ten thousand of them roaming up and down the Colorado and Hardie rivers, from their mouths up as high as tide runs, or from sixty-five to seventy miles this side of the gulf.

They go wherever they please; nothing stops them in their course. When the Colorado is at its flood they will cross it from shore to shore, even near the Hardie, where it is four miles wide when at its highest gauge. Their range gives them the finest of feed—wild, sweet potatoes, tules, stray fish, clams, dead turtles and seaweed along the river bank at low tide. They are unmolested, except now and then by a hunter who finds his way down the river. Most of the hunters give the wild swine a wide berth, except now and then as they happen to spy a nice little roaster on the bank and within easy rifle shot.

A few years ago a man and his family were living a few miles below the colony on the bank of the Colorado. He had a pair of very fine, large stag-hounds, which the owner claimed could run down and kill any wild hog in that region. One day he took dogs and rifle and went for a nice little one, just right for the oven. He had not gone far before he found a large band of hogs, and turned his dogs loose on them. No sooner had they started when out of the tules near by jumped an enormous bear, a monster, who, with mouth wide open, paying no attention to the dogs, made for the hunter. The latter drew up his rifle and fired, but on came the bear, the dogs sipping him at every jump. The hunter fired a second shot, but on came the bear. The hunter turned and ran for a mesquite tree a few yards distant, the hog close to his heels. He dropped his gun and jumped for life, grasping a limb of the tree just as the hog grabbed his pants and tore one-half of them from him, but he was safe, just out of reach. The dogs all this while ran grabbing the hog by the hind legs, to which the bear paid no attention. The mad bear seized the bark of the tree in his great tusks and tore it into shreds. Finally he turned upon the dogs, instantly killed one and wounded the other so that it died soon after. He then turned his attention to the tree where sat the hunter. He guarded him until it was dark. Twice did the man get down and try to get his rifle, but his foe was on guard and drove him back up the tree. During the night the bear left. Daylight came and so did help. The men had hardly reached the river and got in their boat when down came the old hog after them in vain pursuit.

Napoleon as a Nimrod. An anecdote of the first Napoleon is told in a story, forming part of the recollections of the two uncles of the writer, described as "favorites" of Napoleon III., runs as follows: Once, hunting with the emperor, they were consoled by him for their bad shooting, with the assurance that the first Napoleon was even a worse shot than they. It seems that whenever a stag was brought to bay, it was usual to leave the animal to be killed by Napoleon. On one occasion Napoleon could not be found, and the master of the hounds did the business. Suddenly Napoleon arrived, and the stag was hurriedly propped up on his legs with tree boughs. The gun was handed to him and he fired at the stag, which, of course, fell to the ground, while a piteous whine from a hound showed that something different from a dead stag was hit. Napoleon was completely deceived, and observed: "After all, I am not so bad a shot as they try to make out."

More Frills Than Comfort. "If they make my home much more attractive and comfortable," said Mr. Glimmerton, "I shall have to leave it altogether. They have taken there lately to making sofa and chair cushions of lovely materials, and very soft and comfortable, which they scatter around on the chairs and sofas, but it seems that these are for visitors only and to look at; they are not for members of the family. If I forget and sit down on one of them I hear Mrs. Glimmerton or Miss Glimmerton say: 'Oh, don't do that!' and then they come and pat it and smooth it and fix it over again, but I know that its invitation is not for me."

CLOSE OF THE CRIMEAN WAR.

Date of the Treaty of Peace and How Brave Deeds Were Recorded.

The formerly ratified treaty of peace was brought to London by William Stuart, first attaché to the British embassy at Paris, on April 28, 1856. Sunday May 4, was observed as a day of general thanksgiving to almighty God for the preservation of peace; and on Monday the 5th, it was formally proclaimed in London, with the usual solemnities. Addresses to the crown, approving of the peace, were carried in both houses of parliament on the evening of that day; and on the 5th both houses cordially voted "thanks to the army, navy and marines employed in the operations of the late war." The feelings entertained toward the men who fought and bled in the Crimea by the queen, the government and the people of England are also placed on record in an excellent dispatch of Lord Panmure's, which will be perpetuated as long as the language exists.

"Since the period," said the noble secretary of war, "when the army first quitted the shores of England, there has been no vicissitude of war which it has not been called upon to encounter. It was assailed by cholera shortly after its arrival in Turkey. Then was proved that moral as well as physical courage pervaded its ranks. Led to the field, it triumphed in engagements in which heavy odds were on the enemy's side. It carried on, under difficulties almost incredible, a siege of unprecedented duration, in the course of which the trying duties of the trenches, privations from straitened supplies, and the fearful diminution of its numbers from disease neither shook its courage nor impaired its discipline. Notwithstanding that many a gallant comrade fell in their ranks, and they were called to mourn the gallant commander who led them from England, and who chose in the field his noble career as a soldier, her majesty's troops never flinched from their duties, nor disappointed the sanguine hopes of their country."
