

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

DONE WITH SLOT MACHINES.

At the Congress street elevated station at evening during a rush a man, evidently a stranger, came along and halted in front of the machine which offers a stick of gum for one penny shoved into the slot. This man, says a Chicago paper, carried an overcoat, a large valise and an umbrella. He evidently figured out in his mind that it would be a good idea to take some gum home with him. So he took out a penny, but held it for a moment as if loath to part with it. He knew that the penny was good, it was backed by a good government, but he appeared to be doubtful as to the quality of the gum.

The throng of people jostled him and the train gong was sounded. Carefully he selected a slot, and still more carefully did he insert the coin into the small opening. It went about three-fourths of the way in and stuck. He grabbed hold of the machine and shook it. The penny remained stuck fast. He put down his luggage, his coat and umbrella, took out a new knife, opened a hawk blade and with it strove to recover his money.

The people ran against him, swore at him, almost knocked him down. He broke the blade of his knife, and just then a man hurrying to catch a train stumbled over the valise, got his foot hung in the armhole of the overcoat, plunged forward, kicked the valise open and smashed a bottle of horse liniment.

The man dropped his knife and ran after his valise, and when he gathered up the fragments of his baggage and his torn coat he returned to the slot machine to find that some one had stolen his knife. But he didn't swear. He simply said: "And they call this civilization."

DOG AND COYOTE.

The Hunted Wolf at Last Turns Upon the Hounds.

There were three of us in a wagon driving from Springdale, on the railroad, to Hunter's Hot Springs, says the Northwest Magazine. We had forded the slough that during the season of high water in the Yellowstone cut off the approaches to the bridge—the water filling the wagon box and taking the horses almost off their feet at times in the swirl of the current. One of the dogs from the hotel joined us on terra firma—a milk-faced yellow cur with no fighting qualities. He was trotting along on the road a few rods ahead of the horses when there came loping across the open country a big coyote, making straight for him. Away went the dog and after him the wolf. The dog made a stand and took a nip at the wolf; then the wolf ran and the dog pursued, but as soon as the dog had overtaken his enemy he changed his mind about attacking him and turned back. Now the wolf gained courage and took up the chase, running the yellow cur clear up to the porch of the hotel at the springs.

The party in the team got a good deal of fun out of the novel, turn-about hunt. Mendenhall, the landlord, whipped up the team and we bounced along at a tremendous pace, shouting: "go it wolf" and "go it dog." The landlord yelled encouragement to Stub, the dog, but Stub had no mind for a tussle with the sharp-toothed, long-nosed brute, and was happy to gain the shelter of the hotel. The coyote trotted off across the hills. "What things a fellow will see when he hasn't his gun with him," remarked one of the men in the wagon.

WELCOME THIEVES.

Those Who Are Able to Pay Well for What They Steal.

"What do you do with kleptomaniacs?" was the question recently put to the proprietor of a large shop. "We send them bills for what they take when we know them. If they are strangers, we act according to circumstances. A few days ago a lady was in the shop with her daughter—a beautiful little girl of twelve years. The girl was seen slipping a roll of costly ribbon into her satchel. We spoke to the mother, who became indignant. She opened the satchel to convince us that we were mistaken, when it was found to contain three lace handkerchiefs, two pairs of gloves, and the ribbon. All these articles had been appropriated."

"That was a plain case of stealing. What did you do?" "Well, we took the things back and said nothing. We can't afford to arrest wealthy people and injure our trade by making enemies among our rich customers."

"You were speaking of sending out bills for stolen goods; are they ever paid?" "Always where the person is a kleptomaniac. We never have any trouble in that way. I have known of shops which kept a regular list of kleptomaniacs. Whenever they lost anything they sent bills to all of them. As they all settled for the stolen goods, you can imagine that the business was a profitable one, can't you?"

Economy and Artifice.

The duchess of Buckingham, in her "Glimpses of Four Continents," tells an amusing Maori story belonging to the period when these natives were at war with England. All sorts of tricks went on, such as are not only fair but commendable in war. When the Maoris were in want of bullets they used to show a dummy in the bush; of course, it was immediately fired at. A man in the background pulled it down by a string. "Oh!" thought the British soldiers, "we're done for him." Up came the dummy again, cautiously; bang! bang! went the British rifles. Down fell the dummy, and this went on till some warlike man came out and cut the dummy's rope. No Maori would go up the tree to splice it, for that exposure meant certain death. The bullets were all taken out of a little earth bank which the Maoris had made behind the tree where the dummy appeared, and were used over again. It was a long time before this artifice was discovered.
