He never rode horse back and for field sports he had no taste whatever.

When President Cleveland goes to the senshore he does not indulge in swimming, atthough some of his predecessors have been very tolerable swimmers. John Quincy Adams, next to Hanney-Prices are up to 50 to 60c Benjamin Franklin, was the greatest of awimmers among public men. He was a billiard player also, and when he came into the white house the billiard room in the basement, which had fallen into neglect und had not been used for several administrations, was renovated and a new table was put in-

All the earlier presidents were horseback riders. Horsebnek riding afforded an easier way of traveling than a stage coach, for the roads were almost unibuilt without much regard to the passengers' comfort. Washington was undoubtedly the best rider among the presidents, and he enjoyed the exercise greatly. He had little time to indulge the taste after he became general of the army and was too old for hard riding after he had retired from the presidency, but before that he was one of the most enthusiastic fox hunters in a fox-hunting country. His diary relates how he cut fox paths through the woods at Mount Vernon, how he 'catched" three foxes in one day, and how much interest he took in his pack of hounds. Some of these were imported.

The gentle Madison, on the other hand, was no sportsman. His ways were those of the student, and he lived the simple life of a country gentleman without engaging in any of the sports that interested his neighbors. Hin twenty-five miles away, was more versatile. He rode a great deal, and much of his riding was for pleasure.
