

The Weekly Chronicle.

THE DALLES, OREGON

Clubbing List.

The CHRONICLE, which gives the news twice a week, has made arrangements to club with the following publications...

Table with 2 columns: Name of publication, Price. Includes The Chronicle, Oregonian, Examiner, and New York World.

LOCAL BRIEVITIES.

Hogs are arriving quite freely, but the price is just a little off from last quotations, averaging from $3.75 to $4.

There was a decided change in the atmosphere this morning, although it was a bright clear day. The thermometer took a tumble of several degrees.

The arrest of Broadbent at Hood River last night before last caused intense excitement, and for a while it was feared the law would be administered then and there.

Congressman Ellis is in Portland, but expects to start for Washington next Monday evening. He will be a passenger on tonight's train bound for his home at Heppner before departing for the east.

The case of the State against Dan Maloney went to the jury last night, which after being out three-quarters of an hour brought in a verdict of guilty. He will probably receive his sentence tomorrow.

Work was commenced on the foundation of the cold storage building, corner of First and Laughlin streets, this morning. The building will be 72 by 42 feet, with double walls, flooring and ceiling.

The flower show at Mrs. C. L. Phillips' last night was quite well attended, but not so well as it deserved to be. The program was of unusual merit, and the exhibit of chrysanthemums extraordinarily good.

An exchange says: This is a peculiar world. One is struggling for justice and another is fleeing from it. One man is trying to build a house, and another is trying to sell his for less than cost to get rid of it.

Klein and Savage were arraigned this morning and were given until tomorrow morning to plead.

The big smoke stack for the cannery has been raised and is being straightened up and fastened in place today.

One drunk and disorderly is "saying nothing and saying wood" this morning. He has a contract to cut $5 worth.

The grand jury this morning returned a true bill against Savage and Klein and "not a true bill" against Ralph Gibbons.

There is one thing the Portland Sun is to be commended for and that is that it has none of those infernal coupon offers in it.

The Winans Bros. are evidently putting in their fish wheels to stay, and the amount of lumber they are using is simply immense.

Mrs. Jayne came up from Portland last night to take care of her husband. Mr. Jayne is much better and will be able to attend to his duties in court by tomorrow or next day.

The testimony in the courtroom today went largely on a certain crap game. It is to be regretted that the same testimony was not loud enough to be heard in the grand jury room.

Mr. Dell C. Wilder of 10-Mile, has now recovered from his lame foot caused by a sprain, and receives a check from the Fidelity Mutual Aid Association, through their agent Chas. S. F. Baker, for $28.56 to pay for his trouble.

The second party given by the Union Dancing Club took place last night, and was quite as enjoyable as the first. A number of new members have been added, and the hall is now just comfortably filled for dancing.

The case of the State against O'Brien was up for trial this afternoon with the following jury: F. Kemp, J. R. Woodcock, W. T. McClure, J. W. Zumwalt, C. E. Hill, W. J. Harriman, M. Doyle, B. Warren, Rob Snodgrass, John Bonn, T. E. Wickens, J. A. Wilson.

The case of the State against Broadbent, which was sent up from Hood River, has been before the grand jury today, Broadbent's wife coming up from Hood River to testify this afternoon. It is probable a bill will be returned to-night or tomorrow morning in his case.

There seems to be an epidemic of horse stealing in this state. With horses worth $9 a dozen, one would think the chances of going to the penitentiary for 75 cents worth of "hoss," would deter even the worst thief from taking them, but it don't.

Mr. G. J. Farley returned from Hood River last night, where he had been attending the funeral of his step-father, Mr. Wm. Lyons. The funeral took place yesterday in the K. of P. cemetery, a beautiful spot about a mile south of the town.

District Attorney Jayne has been ill for several days. Yesterday he was unable to attend to his duties but today shows some improvement. His deputy, Mr. Phelps, in consequence has more in his hands than he can attend to, as the grand jury is still in session.

License to marry was issued today to Wm. H. McAtee and Miss Sarah J. Woodcock.

Jesse La Motte and husband today sold to Geo. W. Rowland the s 1/2 of sec 6 t 1 n of r 13 e; $1.

The alarm of fire last evening was caused by a burning flue at the Umatilla House. No damage was done.

Col. Sinnott and E. Sigman of Dufur, have been drawn on the United States grand jury which meets in Portland Dec. 4th.

Mr. Charles Berger of Hood River showed us a fine chunk of granite obtained from the mountain west of Hood River valley. As that country is covered with basalt to an unknown depth, it is quite probable that there has been an upheaval some time that brought the Syenite up from beneath the foundations of the mountain range.

Tuesday Messrs. Isaac Joles and Wm. Young went up to Sherman county as THE CHRONICLE stated at the time, with the intention of bringing home a wagon load of geese. They arrived home yesterday with sixty of the big birds.

The cannery is rapidly approaching completion, but we have heard nothing recently of the scouring mill. We hope this will not be allowed to drop, but that it will be pushed energetically so that next spring's clip may be handled here. It is estimated that the scouring mill at Pendleton saved this year $27,000 in freight, and besides it kept the money for scouring the wool in Oregon where the wool was grown.

Following is the list of letters remaining in the postoffice at The Dalles un-called for Nov. 24, 1894.

- List of names and addresses: Antrin, Hattie; Chase, B W; Fitzgerald, G W; Hults, E; Gilliam, Mary; Kneekley, Antone; La Velle, C L; Moore, W A; Robertson, J P; Rannels, J T; Smith, Ed; Tibbetts, J E; Watt, A; Wells, A S; Ahasel, Richard M; Dunham, Harvey; Healy, Mary; Julien, J G; Kenney, John; Larvarnie, Frank; Matlin, Louis; Noble, J E; Rosh, Jos; Snide, Robt; Smith, C E; Thompson, W C; Walters, Jim; Wilson, Oliver; Williams, P C; J. A. Crossen, P. M.

The Black Sheep.

At the wool scouring mill the last lot of wool has been scoured comprising tags, the poorest quality made from the fleece. The cleaning of 10,000 pounds of black wool is the finishing work of the season. It will take a week or two to sort it, as every particle of white wool has to be segregated from the lot, and the fleece of a spotted black sheep requires careful sorting.

Real Estate Transactions.

Deeds were filed yesterday afternoon and today as follows: T J Driver, sheriff, to Robert Livingstone, the s 1/2 sec 14, sec 1 and s 1/2 of sec 2, tp 1 n, r 12 e; $506.50. Larkin Lamb to M Dietsenmully right of way deed. United States to C B Neil, patent to s 1/2 ne 1/4 and lots 1 and 2 sec 5, tp 8 s, r 15 e. State of Oregon to M F Loy, se 1/4, nw 1/4, sec 14, tp 2 n, r 10 e; $50. M F Loy to E L Smith, fraction of above; $100.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our regular correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1894.

"If Secretary Carlisle remains in Cleveland's cabinet," said a democrat of national reputation to a personal friend, "he will deserve to lose every friend he has, and what is more he will lose them. He has been humiliated several times before, but never quite so publicly as in this bond issue. At the very time when Carlisle was assuring, not only the newspaper men but his closest friends, that no immediate bond issue was contemplated, one of his assistants was in New York, under Mr. Cleveland's personal orders, perfecting arrangements with bankers of that city to issue bonds. I remember many instances of the intentional humiliation of members of the cabinet by presidents, who for one or another reason wished to get rid of them without asking for their resignations, but this is the only time I ever heard of the news of a contemplated bond issue being given out by New York bankers before it was known to the secretary of the treasury, and I doubt if such a thing ever happened before. Of course I can understand that this is a peculiarly bad time for Carlisle to leave the cabinet, but if he doesn't do so as soon as he finishes his annual report to congress he will take a big drop in my estimation." This gentleman expresses the situation so well, as it is known in Washington, that it is needless for me to add to it further than that Mr. Cleveland says Mr. Carlisle and himself are in accord.

Republicans see nothing wrong in another bond issue so far as that act of itself is concerned, and if certain democrats and populists in congress attempt to embarrass the administration on account of it, as they now threaten to do, they will get little assistance from republicans. It is the bad policy of the administration and the democratic congress, which has made bond issues necessary to protect the credit of the government, that republicans object to and will continue to object to, until it is in their power to change it.

Considerable amusement has been caused here by a reference to the value of the cuckoo as a weather prophet, made by Prof. Hazen, chief of the weather bureau, in a lecture on "Long range and popular weather forecasts." Prof. Hazen said of the cuckoo: "The bird has a singularly mournful note, and its voice is an invariable sign of a coming storm. I heard one singing in front of the white house last summer." Prof. Hazen is a scientist, not a politician, yet the aptness of his remarks indicates that he also knows something about recent political happenings, although he would probably say, if questioned, that he knew nothing about the political cuckoo.

Senator Peffer very kindly concedes that the republicans will elect the next president and says that the new national party which, in his mind, is to be made up of populists and the dissatisfied democrats and republicans does not expect to elect a president until 1900. And he actually seems to feel hurt because nobody pays any attention to him. The general impression among shrewd observers is that by 1900 most of our people will have forgotten that a populist party ever existed.

Senator Gorman is said to be the father of a scheme by which the democrats hope to certainly save one of the senators from North Carolina and possibly both of them. The scheme is quite Gormanesque. It provides that the governor of North Carolina—a democrat—shall call an immediate extra session of the present legislature, which is overwhelmingly democratic, and that a senator shall be elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Vance, who seat is now occupied by Senator Jarvis, who was appointed by the governor to fill the vacancy until the meeting of the legislature. Although that would be an extraordinary proceeding it would probably be allowed to stand if the democrats are willing to saddle the expense of an extra session of the legislature, which legally expires Dec. 31, 1894, on the tax-payers of the state in order to keep a democrat in the senate until March 3, 1897. But the proposition to have that extra session elect a successor to Senator Ransom, whose term expires March 3, 1895, will be regarded as revolutionary and will be resisted in the courts. The election of Ransom's successor belongs legally to the legislature just elected, the official life of which begins Jan. 1, 1895.

Having made a conspicuous failure in his tariff policy, Mr. Cleveland will, according to those who claim to have been given an inkling of his intentions, in his annual message to congress, attempt to inaugurate a brand new financial policy, with a special view to pleasing the inflationists who control the democratic party of the south and alienating them from the free coinage of silver which he thinks they advocate for no other reason than that they want more money and cheaper money. Mr. Cleveland's occupation—office-holding—has not given him the experience that is absolutely necessary to a successful financier, but his egotism makes him, in his own mind at least, equal to any task.

Grain sacks for sale at the Wasco warehouse.

Their First Night in Wasco County.

Mr. D. J. Cooper, who came in from his farm on 10-Mile this morning, gives us the particulars of an accident that happened at his place last night between 7 and 8 o'clock.

At that time a man and his family with his household goods loaded into two wagons, and on their way from Nebraska to Hood River, drove up to a point in the road near Mr. Cooper's place. The man stopped the teams while he went down to the barn where Mr. Cooper happened to be with a lantern, to see if he could get feed for his teams. Being told he could have anything he wanted, he went back and drove the forward team down to the barn. The road makes a short turn there, and as the second team, driven by a boy of 13 or 14 years, did not follow immediately, the boy missed the road and drove or tried to drive across the point of the hill going straight towards the light. As a result the wagon upset, and the boy, his mother and five or six children, who formed a part of the load went rolling down the hill. The bed-came off the running-gears and the horses started to run away but were caught near the barn. Mr. Cooper hurried to the scene of the wreck as fast as possible and found that the wagon bed had rolled down the bank into and across the road and some distance below it. The children were screaming but Mr. Cooper commenced pulling them out from among a badly mixed assortment of bedding, trunks, boxes, grain, and the hundreds of things that go to make up the movable plunder of an emigrant's riches. When a census was taken and all were found to be recovered from the wreck a comparison of notes showed that no one was hurt. When Mr. Cooper left this morning the wagon had been put together and loaded, and nothing was broken. The party will probably reach Hood River tomorrow.

No Contract to Flush the Locks.

When the contract for building the locks and constructing the canal at the Cascades was let to J. G. and I. N. Day the people of the Inland Empire congratulated themselves that the work would be completed just as fast as money could do it. It seems that those congratulations were premature. The people understood, whether they were given to understand so or not by their representatives in congress, that the contract called for the completion of the work at a stated price. Such was not the case. The government agrees to pay the contractors so much per yard for the removal of gravel and rock, so much per yard for what stone and cement is put in the walls and so much per pound for the iron and steel. There is as we have been long since reliably informed, no agreement upon the part of the contractors to complete the work, either within a given time, as the people have been led to suppose, or at all. Why the contract was let in that way, we do not pretend to know, but it is quite probable that when the work becomes unprofitable either through the bother from water, or any other cause the contractors will throw up their contracts and turn the business back to the government.

We regret that this is so, but that it is so we have from parties who ought to know. A little light on this subject would be very acceptable to all the people of Eastern Oregon.

A Lively Town.

The dispatches from Independence yesterday give an account of a lively time there as follows:

Justice Irvine's courtroom was the scene of an exciting event this afternoon. A trial was in progress, in which Ben Hayden and his sons had caused to be placed under arrest two Jordan boys, for assault with a dangerous weapon, they having a quarrel, it seems, drawn a pistol. The testimony on both sides was decidedly sensational, and the courtroom was crowded. During the course of the trial Clel Hayden came in, and, walking up to one of the Jordan boys, drew out a pistol. Some one threw up his arm and the bullet went through the stovepipe and lodged in the wall. Ben Hayden then jumped on the boy, and with the help of officers, attempted to overpower Clel. About this time Bill Hayden came on the scene, with a pistol in his hand. In the meantime the crowd had rushed out of the building, and the door not being large enough, they also went through the large glass front. Bill Hayden was backed by an officer and several bystanders, and after a struggle, the pistol was taken away and he and Clel were taken to the county jail. In attempting to put them in, Tom Lowry known as "Stuttering Tom," interfered, and Marshal Williams knocked him down, and then locked him up. A large crowd witnessed the whole affair, and the frantic efforts of those in the courtroom to escape was the subject of much jest.

A New Savings Bank.

We wish to draw your attention to the subject of savings banks.

Here in The Dalles has been established a savings bank, on the mutual order. The security is undoubted as it is in your own house, and the dividends paid are much larger than in the older institutions. We think you thoroughly believe in savings banks as institutions;

We are Still In It, and You Know It.

We are selling more goods than ever, for the simple reason that

Our PRICES are RIGHT.

We pay more for Produce than any other dealer in The Dalles.

Consult Your Interests, and Trade with

JOLES, COLLINS & CO.

Telephone No. 20. THE RELIABLE FIRM.

but then you know there are savings banks and savings banks, and their soundness and returns to investors differ very materially. We do not care to discuss the question of their stability; we merely want to draw your attention to the interest you receive on your deposits with them.

A savings bank of undoubted security and strength will allow you 5 per cent interest, payable at the end of the year. On $5 this amounts to 30 cents or 90 cents for three years.

Now bring $3 and deposit in this Mutual Savings Bank, and what are the results? Your interest for three and a half years, amounting to $1.05, is at once paid to you, and your capital is handed back.

This reads like a fairy story, and you may be disposed to doubt it, but it is true. Investigate and then Deposit. Suppose your idle capital is only $3, and you commence with that investment. What are the results? At this bank the receiving teller hands you back 55 cents as the interest for three and a half years, and also the principal.

Show us an institution offering greater returns where the security is undoubted.

Court Notes.

The case of the State against O'Brien, who was charged with stealing a watch, was tried yesterday afternoon, and after an hour or more considering the matter, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. The state was represented by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Phelps, and the defense was very ably conducted by Ned Gates.

Otis Savage this morning entered a plea of not guilty. The district attorney gave notice that Klein would not be tried at this term of court, which caused a short battle of words between Mr. Snow, who is assisting in the prosecution, and Messrs. Bennett and H. S. Wilson, who are defending Savage. The case of Savage was not ready for trial, and defendant's attorneys were given until the coming in of court tomorrow morning to present a motion for continuance, with the grounds therefor. A demurrer to the indictment was overruled.

In the case of Chas. F. V. Berger against the Oregon Lumber Co. a motion for a new trial was filed.

An Idle Rumor.

A rumor was flying around last night to the effect that the grand jury had returned "not a true bill" against Gibbons and Savage. A dozen different stories were told as to how the information had become public, as the grand jury had not reported on the case nor have they done so yet. Until they do it would be just as well to refrain from comment upon their actions. The rumor demonstrates one thing and that is that a good single-handed prevaricator can stir up whole lots of talk and argument, and set a whole community by the ears, without any of them taking the trouble to examine into the correctness of the rumors. A grand juryman remarked that as the jurors were sworn to secrecy, he could not venture any information as to what the jury had done, but called attention to the fact that as far as the public knew in the case named, it had done nothing.

Court Notes.

Halliday vs. Day, motion to strike out sustained; motion to make more definite overruled.

Buchler vs. O'Neill, application for removal to Crook county denied.

Farrell vs. Denton, for trial Monday. State vs. O'Brien, on trial.

The czar is dead and buried; but Tom Reed of Maine still lives.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Wednesday

Hon. Zera Snow of Portland is in the city.

Mr. R. B. Hood arrived home from Portland last night.

Mr. D. S. Crapper of Hood River, who has been in Sherman county for the past three weeks, passed through on his way home today.

The many friends of Mrs. B. F. Laughlin, who has been dangerously ill for the past few days, will be pleased to know that she is improving.

Mr. J. A. Soesbe, justice of the peace of Hood River precinct, and C. A. Bell, the hotel keeper, of that enterprising city came up on the afternoon local.

Friday

Mr. Chas. Hilton is again home from his ranch near Fossil.

Mr. Wm. Harder, representing the Great Northern Railway, is in the city.

Mr. W. A. Davis of Mosier was in the city today, and called at THE CHRONICLE office.

Mrs. Ira F. Powers was a passenger on last night's east-bound train, on her way to join her husband at La Grande, where he has gone into business.

Mr. F. M. Bixby came over from Goldendale last night bringing a portion of the pump belonging to the city water-works for repairs. He tells us the city is short on water, or will be by the time the pump is running again. He left this morning for home as soon as the repairs were finished.

MARRIED.

At the Umatilla House, this city, Nov. 23, 1894, Mr. Robert J. Ginn of Moro, Sherman county, and Miss Caroline B. Coleman of Wasco county, by Rev. J. Whisler.

In this city, Tuesday evening, Nov. 20th, Justice L. S. Davis performing the ceremony, Mr. John Ryan to Mrs. Sarah E. Stanton.

PORTLAND EXPOSITION.

Opens December 1, 1894, and Closes January 15, 1895.

During this time the Dalles, Portland & Astoria Navigation Company will sell tickets from The Dalles to Portland and return, including two meals on the steamer Dalles City at $2.50. Tickets limited to ten days from date of sale. Regulator will leave at 7 a. m. and the Dalles City will arrive at Portland at 5:30 p. m. Quick transfers at the locks. W. C. ALLAWAY, Gen. Agent. nov22-tf

The Contract to Complete.

Since publishing the statement yesterday that the contract concerning the Cascade locks did not provide for their completion, we have received information that forces us to believe that our first informant was wrong, and that the contract does provide for the completion of the work, and that ten per cent of the money earned by the contractors is retained by the government until the work is completed. We had our information from what we considered, and what ought to be reliable authority, not yesterday, but months ago. This rumor has been going the rounds for some time, and while we had doubts as to its correctness, we gave it space yesterday for the purpose of arriving at the truth, knowing that if it was not true it would meet speedy refutation.

Scrufula is one of the most fatal among the scourges which afflict mankind. Chronic sores, cancerous humors, emaciation, and consumption, are the result of scrufula. Ayers Sarsaparilla eradicates this poison, and restores, to the blood, the elements of life and health.

Higgles—What are those Chicago people shouting "A sail! a sail!" for? Higgles—Probably Miss de Million and the prince have come to terms after all.—The Matchmaker.

"Why," demanded Winona, the beautiful, "do you come home at this time of night and in such a condition?" Hiawatha fell into the wood-box and went to sleep, but made no reply. "Sioux faults," muttered the dusky bride, and added significantly: "Sioux Falls."—The Student.
