LOCAL BREVITIES.

Wednesday's Daily.

The weather prognostications for tomorrow are clearing and slightly cooler. The cold storage building is taking shape, and will soon be ready for the roof.

The cannery is now roofed in, and this morning the smoke was issuing from the big smokestack for the first time.

Two additional jurors were secured in the Savage case yesterday, so that up to noon today eight in all had been selected.

A special venire was issued last night and the sheriff went down to Mosier and Hood River this morning to select the fifteen men he was required to summon.

If three Hood River men are accepted as jurors in the Savage case it will nearly kill them if they have to agree, for such a thing was never heard of at their home.

There was quite a contingent from Hood River in the courthouse this afternoon. Among them we notice J. L. Langille, Will Langille, Geo. T. Prather, J. J. Luckey and J. Dimick.

Tom Ward has just returned from a goose hunting expedition; but says he prefers turkey tomorrow anyhow. Such geese as he saw were so poor that they flew high, and Tom couldn't find it in his heart to shoot them, because he was afraid of straining the gun.

Let all who possibly can attend the Thanksgiving service tomorrow at 11 o'clock in the Congregational church. Sermon by Rev. J. Whisler. A contribution will be taken, the same to be given to the King's Daughters and the Young Women's Christian Association for distribution among the poor of the city. All are cordially invited.

The incline on the portage road at the Cascade Locks is finished, and the road is completed to it. Freight will now be handled as rapidly as under the old system. It is to be hoped no further annoyance will be caused the company, and, indeed, it seems impossible that there should be any further trouble on the portage road, as it is now put clear away from the canal.

Friday's Daily.

License to wed was issued today to Orin Depee and Miss Elzira Rowland. Seattle outplayed Multnomah in the football game at Portland yesterday, and won by a score of 8 to 0.

A communication received this morning detailing the trip by the Knight to the Locks yesterday, was crowded out on account of its length.

Capt. A. S. Blowers is up from Hood River attending an adjourned meeting of the county court. Hereafter this court will meet about the last of each month to audit the accounts of the officers.

The city marshal and street commissioner were busily engaged this morning in building a woodshed by the side of the city recorder's office.

According to the Oregonian the faro dealers in Portland are putting their gambling tools in soak, and that boxes, cards and cases may be seen in the pawnshop windows.

Hereafter all county warrants will be issued payable to order, and the county treasurer will not stamp or list them until they are endorsed by the party to whom they are payable.

The city recorder had three individuals before him this morning who had taken in a trifle too much liquid celebration yesterday. The recorder got a good grip on his feeling, and fined them the customary amount.

The awarding of the prizes at Pease & Mays', that is to say the presentation of the beautiful bedroom set, and the making of some boy or girl exceedingly happy by becoming the owner of an elegant bicycle, will take place tomorrow evening.

The dance given by the Gesang Verein Wednesday night was well attended, the house being crowded. In fact the only feature about the affair that was not perfect was that the dancers were too numerous, the floor being over-crowded.

After prayer meeting at the M. E. church last evening the question, which was in substance "Shall women be admitted as delegates to the general conference?" was voted upon, and as far as the Methodists of The Dalles are concerned, they shall.

A special feature of the dances given by the Orchestra union, will be a prize for lady and another for gentleman. Conpons will be given each couple as they enter the ballroom and the last Saturday of each month the prizes will be awarded to the holder of the coupon drawn from the box.

The co-partnership heretofore existing between F. N. Jones and H. G. Jordan, under the firm name of Jones & Jordan, has been this day dissolved by mutual consent, F. N. Jones continuing the business and assuming any liabilities of the firm and collecting all amounts due.

Cards were received yesterday announcing the marriage of Cora Lavelle, daughter of Mr. H. H. Allen, and Samuel Starrow, Wednesday, Dec. 12, 1894, at North Yakima. Miss Allen has many friends in The Dalles, which was her former home, who wish her prosperity and happiness.

Yesterday the usual turkey shoot of the day took place on the beach near the depot. Mr. A. Y. Marsh put up the turkeys while the other fellow put up the money. The birds were placed in position as targets at a distance of 230 yards and are said to have brought in a net return of $19 each.

Saturday as Charlie Snipes was attempting to lasso a pony to ride from the Snipes place, about two miles below town, into the city, the horse kicked him twice in the abdomen, and as he attempted to get away crushed him against the barn, injuring him seriously, and hope of his recovery is slight.

Dandruff is an exudation from the pores of the skin that spreads and dries, forming scurf and causing the hair to fall out. Hall's Hair Renewer cures it.

Bret Harte's Early Days in California.

"And were you taking notes for future literary work at this period?"

"Not at all. I had not the least idea at this time that any portion of literary fame awaited me. I lived their life, unthinking. I took my pick and shovel, and asked where I might dig. They said, 'Anywhere,' and it was true that you could get 'color,' that is, a few grains of gold, from any of the surface earth with which you chose to fill your pan. In an ordinary day's work you get enough to live on, or, as it was called, 'grub wages.' I was not a success as a gold digger, and it was conceived that I would answer for a Wells Fargo messenger. A Wells Fargo messenger was a person who sat beside the driver on the box-seat of a stage-coach, in charge of the letters and 'treasure' which the Wells Fargo Express Company took from a mining camp to the nearest town or city. Stage robbers were plentiful. My predecessor in the position had been shot through the arm, and my successor was killed. I held the post for some months, and then gave it up to become the schoolmaster near Sonora—Sonora having by immigration attained the size and population which called for a school. For several years after this I wandered about California from city to camp, and camp to city, without any special purpose. I became an editor, and learned to set type, the ability to earn my own living as a printer being a source of great satisfaction to me, for, strange to say, I had no confidence until long after that period in literature as a means of livelihood. I have never in my life had an article refused publication, and yet I never had any of that confidence which, in the case of many others, does not seem to have been impaired by repeated refusals. Nearly all my life I have held some political or editorial post, upon which I relied for an income. This has, no doubt, affected my work, since it gave me more liberty to write as pleased myself, instead of endeavoring to write for a purpose, or in accordance with the views of somebody else."—Conversation with Bret Harte in McClure's Magazine for December.

A Curious Phenomenon.

Leipzig has a sensation just now in the person of Strazini, who has kept the medical profession in a state of excitement ever since he made his appearance there, says the New York Press. Strazini astonishes his audiences by first eating a soup which consists of sawdust, plentifully mixed with coal oil. The mess is set a-fire, and after the flames have been extinguished Strazini eats the peculiar mixture, larding it out with a spoon. He follows this up with biting piece after piece from the lamp chimney, crushing the glass between his teeth and swallowing it. He washes it down with a little water. For desert he munches pieces of hard coal, peat, washing soda, tallow candles, pieces of plaster cast and bricks, boots, clay pipes, and seems to enjoy the conglomeration. All this is eaten at one meal and in quick succession. A little water is the only beverage in which he indulges during that meal. Strazini asserts that he does not feel the slightest discomfort from this unusual diet and certainly looks it. When he has finished his dinner of ceramics, he pours down two cups of coal oil, throws his head back and holds a lighted match to his mouth. There is a deep, puffing sound, and a flame three feet long leaps from his mouth. After eating Strazini gives an exhibition of dancing, as wonderful as what has gone before. He does it with bare feet in a box filled with debris and shreds of champagne bottles, lamp shades, wine glasses, etc. Into this he dives with his feet, jumps about in all directions, and ends by burying his head in the broken glass. The strange part of it is that he comes out without a scratch. His attitude seems to be as impervious to such an onslaught as his stomach is to sawdust and brick and burning coal oil. Medical men from far and near have interviewed this curious phenomenon, but are unable to give an explanation of his wonderful performances.

Got Enough.

The three boys who ran away from their homes in Portland and were taken in charge by the city marshal yesterday, were no doubt much pleased last night when the father of one of them arrived. He took the whole lot back with him this morning. Marshal Blakeney gave the boys a good lesson; not treating them harshly, but making them understand they were not attending a picnic. The boys got mad when locked in the corridor of the city jail, and destroyed what provisions they had with them. In consequence they got nothing to eat until supper time, at which time their appetites were handy. One of them was heard to remark to the others yesterday that he "had all the tough life he wanted," and the others tearfully agreed with him. They will enjoy their Thanksgiving dinner at home tomorrow, and no doubt their respective mothers will be more than thankful to know that her boy is safe at home.

Congressman Ellis a Passenger.

Hon. W. R. Ellis of Heppner, one of Oregon's representatives in congress, passed through this morning on his way to Washington, D. C., to attend the short session of the Fifty-third congress.

Mr. Ellis, who is spoken of as being among the youngest and most handsome of the law-makers of the United States, looked every inch a congressman as he stepped off the train and talked affably during the few moments stop here with a La Grande friend. He had of course but little time to devote to a Chronicle representative who interviewed him, but informed the scribe that he thought the Nicaragua canal project would be the chief and most important subject that will be considered this session. He had several measures himself to propose, but did not have time to outline them. Mr. Ellis was not accompanied by his family.—La Grande Chronicle.

The K. of P.'s Visit the Locks.

A goodly number of Knights of Pythias went to the Cascade Locks yesterday afternoon in a special car, for the purpose of assisting in conferring the ranks and for a fraternal visit to Pythagoras lodge of that place. An inspection of the government works was made and then everybody went to dinner at the Glass restaurant owned and managed by Dr. Candianna. After dinner the visitors repaired with their hosts to the K. of P. hall where all three ranks were conferred. The boys arrived home about 4 o'clock this morning, highly pleased with their trip and enthusiastic in their praises of Pythagorean hospitality.

The trial of Savage, begun Wednesday afternoon, occupies the attention of the circuit court today, and has drawn quite a full house. This morning we noticed a number of ladies in the courthouse. As the trial progresses the interest will become greater, especially when the defense opens its case. The publication of the testimony in the preliminary examination gave pretty full information as to the case for the prosecution. However there will be some additional testimony. Walter Rowe was brought here Tuesday, and his testimony will be taken. The cross-examination of the witnesses is thorough and the case is dragging along slowly.

There was an amusing feature of the suit of Klamath county against Howe's bondsmen. Charlie Moore was one of the sureties, and consequently a defendant. As county judge, he had the suit instituted against himself, and was, therefore, plaintiff. He was, in fact, a client of counsel on both sides. When a verdict for the county was given, Judge Moore laughingly gave his hand to District Attorney Benson and said: "Well, we knocked 'em out," the judge himself being knocked out to the tune of several thousand dollars.

Much solicitude is felt for James Peters, the veteran roadmaster who now has charge of the track department for the entire Oregon Railway & Navigation system, who is reported ill at his home in Umatilla. Mr. Peters, commonly known as "Young Peters," is between 60 and 65 years of age, and is the oldest employe of the O. R. & N. His years have had no effect on his activity, unless it be that he has each year become more active, and devotes more time to his duties than when he was younger.

Through the work of the Lane county court in going over the assessment rolls and bringing to time those who neglected to properly report their possessions in the form of notes and mortgages, the taxable property in the county has been raised $52,682. Over 100 persons were summoned to appear before the court, and of this number the assessment of forty-six were raised. One man's assessment was raised $10,000, and on several a raise of from $1,000 to $2,000 was made.

We have been unable to chase down a rumor concerning some new improvements that are to be made, and some new industries to be started here in the near future. We did run them down far enough that one who pretends to know says the arrangements are not yet completed sufficiently to give them publicity, but that there is good foundation for the rumor. The proposed industries are an elevator, with 100-barrel mill, and a scoping mill, all to be built within the next few months.

The Oregonian today contains a half column article concerning the sale of the Regulator and Dalles City, to the O. R. & N. Co. There is absolutely nothing in the rumor, which is simply one of a hundred others started concerning the D. P. & A. N. Co's. boats. When this boat line is sold it will be time enough for the Portland papers to make a note of the fact. As it is these notices seem to be intended for no other purpose than to injure the business of the boats.

Every lie is the assassin of somebody's happiness.

Every successful man is an emergency man.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Carliouette, druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail, and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store, I sent for a bottle and began its use, and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Snipes & Kinerly's.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Runco & Swift's big spectacular Uncle Tom's Cabin Co., will show at the opera house Wednesday night, Dec. 5th. The company carries two sets of scenery, so that they can put their play on any stage. After leaving here they go to Portland to play a five days engagement in the Marquam. This alone should be a sufficient guarantee of the company's standing. The play is an old one, but none the less good.
