CERTAINLY ORIGINAL.

Our contemporary, under its editorial, "Plain Situation," says:

It so, we fear that the govas most of the holders are presumably advocates of the single gold standard, and we fall to perceive the great amount of patriotism, as evidenced by their actions, that will move them to adont such a philanthropical policy. Does our contemporary advise the government to repudiate their payment, or to hire a lot of bank robbers and thieves to steal them, and then, when muce in the possession of the government, have them

We presume that, by a forced construction of the language quoted, our contemporary means to sell more bonds and purchase the treasury notes by the lows gold received for the bonds and then cancel the treasury notes thus purchased. To do this, however, we must resort to MINERS VS. THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The president's message has been ernment would be sailly disappointed, made public, and although it contains 20,000 words, the unbiased reader cannot discover in that fact any reason why the president should have shut bimself up for two weeks to create it. It is a resume of the past year's acts of the administration and therefore devoid of interest. That part of it which will attract the most attention is that concerning the proposed changes in the banking system. The president heartily indorses Secretary Carlisle's plan of changing this system so as to allow of more rapid expansion of the currency.

Concerning the tariff, which is still the one great question, he speaks as fol-

The bank robbery at Portland last week has some features about it that look exceedingly "fishy." The safe instead of being a burgiar proof time lock affair is said by the Sun to be a second hand box that half a gill of black powder would have blown open.
