Monday's Daily.
Mrs. Gordon slipped and fell on the walk leading from her house to the woodshed, this afternoon, breaking both bones of her right arm near the wrist.
The three or four inches of snow that fell here last Friday, soon disappeared under the influence of the chinook winds during the first part of the week. At the Oregon Lumber company's mill the snow is three feet deep in the woods where the loggers are at work.—Hood River Glacier.
The United States grand jury failed to find a bill against Gibson, Savage or Klein for robbing the postoffice here. There was no testimony except that of Klein, and that unsupported would not be sufficient to convict. Besides the testimony coming from a person already convicted of a crime had but little weight.
Superintendent Downing yesterday took Frank Klein from Salem to Portland to testify before the grand jury in the U. S. circuit court. Klein had been subjected to prison rules, but was taken to Portland in citizen's clothes. In conversing with a Telegram reporter, Mr. Downing said that Klein would be placed in the stove foundry works.
Saturday Peter J. Omeg filed his complaint in the circuit court against Emma J. Omeg, his wife, from whom whom he seeks a divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment, by which his life is made burdensome. They were married at Vermillion, Dakota, Jan. 20, 1889, and besides two children of age have three minors, the oldest 18, the youngest 13 years.
Tuesday's Daily.
Weather indications as predicted by the weather bureau at Portland are for tomorrow, fair, cooler.
Marriage licenses were issued today to Jacob Lanz and Clara B. Knox and A. C. Carlisle and Emma E. Lay.
There are 191 publications in Oregon of which 55 are republican, 41 independent, 35 democratic and 42 miscellaneous.
The United States grand jury reported 28 true bills Monday, 31 of them against the fish-trap men for obstructing navigation.
Smith Brothers will give a dance on Christmas Eve at Wingate hall. This dance will take the place of their regular class for gentlemen.

Teachers' Institute.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.
A densely packed room, perfect order, and the closest attention, evidenced a most commendable advancement in educational interest on the part of our citizens.
"Compositions" was presented by P. P. Underwood in an address partly written and partly oral.
The piano duet was well rendered, and the rapt attention of the large audience showed their appreciation.
Mr. Gailey's facial representation of how Mr. Brown received news of his mother-in-law's sickness and final death was most laughable.
Master James Huntington elicited hearty applause by his faithful portrayal of "The Small Boy's woes."
The discussion of the school book question was opened by three leaders, C. L. Gilbert, A. Frazier and Cassie Cheese. While some commended the present series of text books, most teachers condemned one or more of the books now in use, the brunt of the attack falling upon Bill's Grammar; though Monteth's Geography, Barnes' Language Lessons, Fish's Arithmetic and Watson's Speller received some heavy blows. By request some of the rival agents present occupied the floor for a time, each presenting the claims of his house in a very gentlemanly and pleasing manner. The discussion was cut short by the fast falling night.
During the afternoon Miss Hall gave an excellent illustration of Kindergarten work. The eager and successful work of the class of little ones was a high tribute to the merit of her methods of instruction.
EVENING SESSION.
Within a few minutes after the door was thrown open, the opera house was filled to overflowing.
The opening song was a repetition of one given by the double quartet at the court house, Wednesday evening, repeated by special request.
The address of Supt. E. E. McElroy on "Some Legal Relations of the Teacher," was full of instruction on the relation of teachers to pupils, to parents, to school boards and to the school system. The address should be published for the benefit of the many who did not have the opportunity of hearing it.
The cantata by forty children was a treat, richly enjoyed by the vast audience. Too much cannot be said in praise of those teachers who must have patiently devoted many weary hours in preparing the children for this and the other exercises, with which the school children have so successfully entertained the institute from time to time. The recitations have been of a high order. The parents of the speakers certainly owe as much as a vote of thanks to their teachers. We thank them most heartily.
SATURDAY MORNING.
The critic's report clearly showed that teachers are not always standards of either correct pronunciation or the right use of words.
The essay on "Physical Training in Schools," by Miss Welch, was a strong and well arranged argument in favor of a uniform system of gymnastic exercises, which should be compulsory. The discussion of the subject led to a close consideration of recesses. The prevailing sentiment was that we need more physical training in connection with mental development, and that properly managed recesses are needed.

H. L. Howe read a very pleasing essay on "Music in Public Schools."
Miss Louise Rintoul's essay on "Spelling—How Much and How Taught," was full of useful hints and suggestions.
One of the best composed, most helpful essays of the institute was that of Miss Francis E. Rowe on "Preparation for Teaching."
The lecture of Prof. Frazier was well and thoroughly arranged; but lack of time prevented its full development and any discussion by others.
At the Opera House.
The opera house last night was literally jammed full of people bent on hearing the entertainment given by the school children. Many were turned away, unable to gain admittance, and among them THE CHRONICLE reporter, who, being lazy, got there, but a trifle late. In consequence he failed to materialize at a point where the stage could be seen until after the lecture, and not until Miss Russell had half completed her recitation. We know not how many good things we missed, but we are glad indeed we did not miss that recitation, as it was very fine. This was followed by the cantata, a prettily costumed piece, which pleased the audience highly. Lack of space today prevents extended mention which will be made later. The curtain fell after Charley Heppner, representing the last of the nations as a Chinaman, had concluded to reject Miss Columbia's invitation if there were any "Japs" or "Blisshmen" present.
WHEREAS, We feel that all of us have derived much benefit from the exercises in connection with the several valuable papers read during our session; therefore be it
Resolved, That we tender our thanks to the citizens and pupils of The Dalles who have contributed to the success of our meetings;
Resolved, That the county press be thanked for the publication given to our programs and proceedings;
Resolved, That it is the desire of this institute that our county superintendent and all our teachers who may attend the Oregon state teachers' association at the next session, earnestly invite the state association to meet at Hood River, in this county, during the summer of 1895.

Mrs. Sandrock and little daughter Lena, left last night for Blackwater, Mo., to visit her sister, who is dangerously ill.
D. C. Herrin arrived home from Sherman county last night. He reports business good, roads bad, the musical gathering a success, farmers busy, a little snow and a rough cold trip home.
Captain McNulty has resigned his position on the Regulator. His many friends regret this action on his part, for he has been so long on the river that it does not seem right that a boat should run without him.
Mr. W. F. Brock, editor of the Garden City Gazette of Walla Walla, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Brock is one of the brightest young men in the field of Washington journalism. He was a visitor at the literary society last evening and delivered a very pleasing address.
MARRIED.
By W. C. Curtis, pastor of the Congregational church, at the residence of C. F. Lay, in this city, Tuesday, Dec. 18th, Alfred C. Carlisle, of St. Louis, Mo., and Miss Emma E. Lay, of The Dalles.
The happy couple left for Portland this afternoon, and from there will go to St. Louis.

Cayuses in the South.

Messrs. Jacobs and Allen, two Crook county horsemen, recently shipped a few carloads of horses to South Carolina. Owing to a dispute about freight money the railroad company sold the horses for the bill, while the owners brought suit against them for damages. The sheriff sold the horses, but the men in charge of them refused to deliver them, and then the seizure commenced. The Oregon cayuses were on their mettle and disposed to show the people of the south what they were capable of. The Charleston News describes the scene as follows:
Most people are familiar with the amusing incidents of "old hoss sales," as they are called. Greenville has just had a novel experience in a "young hoss" sale. Sheriff Gilreath sold on last Thursday at auction 176 wild horses, from an Oregon stock farm, which had been attached for freight by a railroad company. The ranchmen in charge of the droves refused to deliver the goods. The sheriff undertook to deliver them himself. The News reporter says: "The horses plunged, reared, kicked, fell down and got up, tangled themselves in all kinds of queer ways, and jerked the arms of the people who endeavored to hold them almost out of their sockets. By hard work, lasting the whole afternoon, 13 were 'cut out,' haltered and delivered. Most of them disappeared on various roads leading out of the city with a whoop and a cloud of dust, and with from two to six citizens trailing along behind them at high rates of speed. It was the most fun there has been here in years."
True to Name.
The "Jolly Chums" gave a very creditable performance here Saturday night, to a good house. Some of the songs were good, and "catchy," but the third act was rather rocky. The local gags were clever though Jim Crate may not think so. At Portland the troop were to show last night at the Orpheum, but as "A Turkish Bath" had the theater for that night, the manager put on both plays, the "Turkish Bath" coming first. When the curtain raised on the "Jolly Chums" those jolly individuals were found to be true to name, and both were jolly drunk. In consequence the curtain was rung down in the second act, and the "Jolly Chums" went on to Olympia where they will play tonight.
