ANOTHER CULTUS BOARD.

The case of the State of Oregon against Dr. Deitrich was called in Justice Davis, court Monday afternoon and after examination into the matter the defendant was dismissed.

CANNOT BE DRIVEN.

The drain of gold from the treasury goes on handsomely, and already the $22,000,000 gold received for bonds sold this month, $12,000,000 have gone back into the possession of those who loaned it to the government.

HE BUMPED HIS HEAD.

Fardon Davies, commenting on the killing of Bowen by Lavigne, in a prize fight at New Orleans Saturday, says: "Had Referee Duffy stopped the fight between Lavigne and Bowen there would have been great dissatisfaction."

tempt of Geo. P. Joseph, an attorney, and John A. Carr, a broker to "fix" the jury in the Bunco Kelley case. These gentlemen were arrested Saturday on indictments found by the grand jury the same day.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The school book question continues to be discussed at length. Some of the attacks upon the present system of books are really amusing, and make at least interesting reading.

LARGER THAN THEY SEEM.

The Portland Sun is usually fair and gentlemanly in its treatment of the press of the state. Yet it allowed one of its correspondents yesterday to use two-thirds of a column, on which it set its seal of approval by providing it with a "care" head, and which contained absolutely nothing in the way of news or argument.

WHERE IS MOSES?

If, as the free-silver advocates assert, Oregon is really in favor of free silver, then it is easily admitted that Senator Dolph should not be re-elected. But is Oregon in favor of free silver? If so, what kind of free silver? At what ratio, and on what terms shall it be coined? The Sun, which may be rated as the leading silver paper of the state, wants one system; Sidney Dell, who has written a book on the subject, another. Then, of the two congressmen and Senator Mitchell, whom the silver advocates claim as theirs—which of their ideas will be adopted? Senator Mitchell is in favor of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1; Congressman Ellis wants "a dollar's worth of silver in a dollar," and (if we remember rightly) Congressman Hermann wants more silver in the dollar.

Now, if it is true that the free silverites are in the majority, yet is each faction in a very small minority. The silver question, with the whole congress and president advocating free silver, would be no nearer a settlement than it is now. The difference between the factions would be more radical than that between the republicans and democrats on the tariff question.

SUES THE WORLD'S FAIR BOARD

Senator W. F. Matlock and his associates on the world's fair commission have been proceeding against and most appear in court. This action was begun by John W. McGinn, attorney for Miss Maud Allen, daughter of E. W. Allen, who filed a petition for the issuance of a writ of mandamus to compel the executive committee of the world's fair commission, consisting of George T. Myers, W. F. Matlock and George W. McBride, to set aside an audit made by them and make a new audit.

It will be seen from the above that the hope of purifying politics by giving women a vote, is liable to prove delusive. Men are corrupt, more or less dishonest, (principally more) and given to many kinds of meanesses, but whenever lovely woman has had an opportunity offered her to measure her talents alongside those of her bearded brother the latter has nothing to boast of in his favor.

Mrs. Allen was the head of the woman's department and employed her daughter Maud, as assistant; not because it was a snap for Maud; not because that young lady could lay loving hands on the goddess of liberty as shown on the "almighty dollar," with gentler touch and the more lasting good of the family of Allens; not for any personal or family reason; not for nepotism or anything of that kind, Oh! no. But the commission having recognized Mrs. Allen's peculiar fitness for the head of the department, it was quite natural on the doctrine of heredity, that the same traits of character should have been inherited by the daughter and thus she would make the most perfect assistant.

FOR 20 YEARS

the formula for making Scott's Emulsion has been endorsed by physicians of the whole world. No secret about it. This is one of its strongest endorsements. But the strongest endorsement possible is in the vital strength it gives. Scott's Emulsion nourishes. It does more for weak babies and growing children than any other kind of nourishment. It strengthens Weak Mothers and restores health to all suffering from Emaciation and General Debility.

values will again advance, and when the prices of agricultural products will also be enhanced.

The report of James Creelman, the special correspondent of the New York World (than whom there is none more reliable) establishes the fact beyond all controversy, that the Japanese army on capturing Port Arthur, was guilty of the most savage barbarism. The inhabitants of the place were brutally murdered and horribly mutilated. The sympathies of the civilized world, which have been with the Japs ever since the war commenced, are being awakened for the Chinese. Japan has made a serious mistake, and one that if repeated, may cause interference by the European governments.

A man connected with the new paper for the development of the immigrant business was arrested this morning charged with stealing wood from the K. of P. It is pleasing to know that the reputation of the newspaper fraternity will not suffer, as the wood was sawed.

BENCH AND BAR.

Qualities Necessary to Make Good Judges and Lawyers. A judge must be fearless; for if timid this weakness is at once taken advantage of by sharp-witted lawyers, who will do all they can to "bluff" him into some unjust concession or unwelcome ruling, knowing his fear of having any unpleasant scene in the court room, writes Eugene Maco in Home and Country. If the occupant of the bench has not the courage to promptly and effectually squelch these blusters, the dignity of the court suffers and the judge in allowing lawyers to domineer over him is humiliated. Under such circumstances reproof must be always administered when deserved, yet it must be administered mildly, although thoroughly, lest by showing his anger or giving vent to it, the court again loses its dignity. A judge should always be prompt to check the arrier of legal windbags, who bring up formidable stacks of sheep-covered volumes, and sit authority after authority in dreary succession regarding points concerning which the court has already passed an opinion. Above all things a judge must not be imaginative, and should never allow himself to be carried away by his feelings. His calmer judgment and reason must be his sole guides. Let it not be imagined, either, that a judge, to perform his duties rightly, must be either devoid of feeling or inspired by inhuman pitilessness. On the contrary, a judge should be great-hearted, while impartial, merciful, while just. "Mercy, indeed, is the laurel wreath of the honor for the just judge. In every truth it is twice blessed—it blesseth him who gives, and him who takes." Often, when confronting a prisoner, whose first offense awaits sentence, the words of the court, as well as the sentence itself, may either harden the poor unfortunate, or else be the turning point for good in his life.

AN HONORABLE THIEF.

The Night Fowler Was as Good as His Word. "I once had an experience that proved to me that there is honor among thieves," said a Cincinnati drummer to a reporter. "It happened several years ago in a little town in Michigan. I retired to bed in the hotel at the usual time, and placed my watch and pocket-book under the pillow. After having been asleep some time I was awakened by hearing a strange noise in the room. You can imagine I was considerably startled at beholding a man with a handkerchief tied over his face standing by my bedside. In his hand was a dark lantern, which shone fully in my face. He did not give me much time to think, but in a gruff voice demanded my watch and money. I don't know whatever put the idea into my head, but, endeavoring to be calm as possible, I said: "If I tell you exactly where they are will you promise not to molest me and leave me to finish my sleep?" "Well, you are a cool one, I must say," he replied, "but you must tell me where your valuables are, and I will promise not to harm you, and leave you in peace." "I will take you at your word," said I; "my watch is at the jeweler's being repaired and every cent I have is locked up in the safe downstairs." "He stared at me a minute or two, as though trying to tell by my face if I had spoken the truth. It must have convinced him, for, muttering something I did not catch, he turned on his heel and walked out of the room without a word."

A SUSCEPTIBLE INDIAN.

Mr. Lo Was Deeply Impressed by a White Woman's Picture. Mr. Cronony, in his "Life Among the Apaches," gives an entertaining account of a lady's man with whom he once enjoyed an interview. "A tall, strong, well-made and handsome young dandy," he calls him; strutting about with an air of very superior consequence, displaying his colossal proportions, his splendid leopard-skin saddle, quiver, leggings and the like.

After awhile Salt-jah came swaggering toward me, and said, in broken Spanish: "Our chief says you great medicine; he says your pistol fires six times without reloading; he says you bring the trees which are afar off close to the eye, so you can count the leaves; he says your guns reach a great way and never miss; he says a great many other wonderful things, which I cannot believe. You have bewitched him." Drawing a six-shooter from my belt, I pointed out a tree about seventy-five yards distant, and began firing rapidly. Each shot struck the tree, and blazed off large fragments of the bark.

Salt-jah was astonished, and made no attempt to conceal the fact; but his admiration broke into emphatic expressions when he witnessed the precision and reach of our Sharp's rifles, and the rapidity with which they could be loaded and fired. His pride had evidently received a heavy fall, and his lofty bearing was toned down many degrees.

In my possession was the miniature of a young lady, whose graces of person, cultivated mind and amiable disposition rendered her one of the most lovely of Heaven's fairest daughters. Salt-jah happened to see this picture, and asked permission to take a good look at the pleasant features. The miniature was placed in his hand, and his eyes seemed to devour its expressive lineaments. Throughout the remainder of the day he bored me with frequent requests for another look, and the next morning, as soon as the camp was astir, he offered me his bow, arrows and splendid leopard-skin for the picture.

The offer being refused, he added his horse, and whatever other property he might have; then, finding me deaf to his entreaties, he took one long last look, vaulted on his horse, set off at full speed, and rapidly disappeared in the distance.

Earthquakes in Hungary.

BUDA-PESTH, Dec. 20.—A violent earthquake shock lasting a minute was experienced at 10.30 p. m. yesterday at Oravitsa, South Hungary. Many houses fell and the walls of the others were cracked, roofs fell in and cornices tumbled into the streets. Less violent shocks were felt at 1 and 2 a. m. today. The inhabitants passed the night in the streets in spite of the severe cold.

Castoria

For Infants and Children. Castoria promotes Digestion, and overcomes Flatulency, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, and Feverishness. Thus the child is rendered healthy and its sleep natural. Castoria contains no Morphine or other narcotic properties. "Castoria is so well adapted for children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ANCKER, M. D., 111 South Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y. "For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results." GEORGE F. FAYSON, M. D., 1215 Street and 7th Ave., New York City. "The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a waste of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach." CARLOS MARTINEZ, D. O., New York City. THE CASTORIA COMPANY, 77 Murray Street, N. Y.
